NATIONAL LIBRARY

ADDRESS.

It is with great pleasure that the Proprietor and Publisher of the Royal National Directory, Mr. I. SLATER, presents this, the Fifth Edition of the DIRECTORY OF SCOTLAND to his numerous Subscribers.

He begs most earnestly and cordially to thank them for their kind and generous patronage so liberally bestowed, and he further adds, that he has endeavoured by every means in his power, to produce a DIRECTORY worthy of the confidence reposed in him, and worthy the Country it represents.

It will be apparent to every one that the compilation of the names, and diversified information contained in a Work of such magnitude as the present, must require the greatest possible care and devotion of considerable energy, ability, and experience. On these all important points the Proprietor believes he has been able to meet as far as is possible the exigencies of the case, and points to his numerous previous Works in evidence of the statements above.

Every improvement in arrangement to ensure simplicity and facility of reference that experience has suggested has been adopted, and many Towns and Villages are introduced that have not appeared in previous Works.

The Proprietor does not forget, but most sincerely thanks the many Gentlemen who, during the progress of the Directory, have kindly given information, or aided the Agents in obtaining it.

A CONCISE EPITOME

OF THE

HISTORY OF SCOTLAND.

SCOTLAND is separated on the south-east by the Solway Frith and the Cheviot Hills from England, and is bounded on every other side by the sea. It is comprised (exclusive of the islands) between latitude 54° 35′ and 58° 45′ north, and between longtitude 1° 48′ and 6° 7′ west of Greenwich. Its extent from north to south is two hundred and eighty British miles, and its greatest breadth about one hundred and fifty. The superficial contents are computed to be 31,324 square miles, or 20,047,462 statute acres (152,967 acres are fresh-water lakes); of which about 6,000,000 are cultivated, and about 13,500,000 uncultivated. The islands and islets on the coast are, it is supposed, nearly three hundred in number; the most remarkable are the Shetland, Orkney, and Western Islands.

EARLY HISTORY.—The most early mention made of this portion of Britain by any historian, is by Tacitus, who flourished about one hundred years after Christ. The original population seems to have consisted of Cimbrians, from the Cimbric Chersonese, the modern Jutland. About two centuries before the Christian era, the Cimbrians appear to have been driven to the south of Scotland by the Caledonians or Picts, a Gothic colony from Norway. Tacitus denominates the country Caledonia; the Venerable Bede, who wrote about the year 700, names the country the Province of the Picts; and Alfred the Great, who translated his history into the Anglo-Saxon tongue, about the year 882, called the people Piohts, and their country Piohtland. From the Picts, then, or Piohts, probably originates the population of the Lowlands, the Lowlanders having been, in all ages, a distinct people from those of the western Highlands. In the tenth and eleventh centuries, the name of Scotia, previously applied to Ireland, was given to modern Scotland, by which title it is designated by Adam of Bremen. About 258 years after Christ, the Dalraids of Bede, the Attacotti of the Roman writers, passed, or repassed from Ireland into Argyleshire, and became the progenitors of the Scottish Highlanders, who speak the Irish or Celtic language, while the Lowlanders have always used the Scandinavian or Gothic. Fergus I, who is supposed to have reigned about 330 years before Christ, is said to have been the founder of the Scottish monarchy. From him, till the year 1006, there are reckoned eighty-two kings; after which, till Britain became subject to one monarch, the succession was as follows: Malcolm II; Duncan I; Macbeath (or Macbeth); Malcolm III; Donald VII; Duncan II; Edgar; Alexander I; David I; Malcolm IV; William; Alexander II; Alexander III; John Baliol; Robert Bruce; Edward Baliol; David II; Robert II; Robert III; James I; James II; James III; James IV; James V; Mary; James VI. In 1603, on the death of Queen Elizabeth, James VI of Scotland ascended the English throne, and constantly resided in England; he and his successors calling themselves kings of England and Scotland, and each country having a separate parliament, till, in the year 1707, during the reign of Queen Anne, both kingdoms were united under the general name of Great Britain.

SURFACE, CLIMATE, &c.—The most remarkable and, perhaps, the most distinctive feature of Scotland is her MOUNTAINS. The principal ones are the Grampian hills, which run from east to west—from near Aberdeen to Cowal in Argyleshire, almost the whole breadth of the kingdom. Another chain of mountains, called the Pentland Hills, runs through Lothian, and joins those of Tweedale. A third, called Lammermuir, rises near the eastern coast, and runs westward through the Merse. Besides the continued chains, among which may be reckoned the Cheviot or Teviot Hills, on the borders of England, Scotland contains many detached mountains, some of them of stupendous height. Ben Nevis, in Inverness, the highest mountain in Scotland, is 4,370 feet above the level of the sea; Cairngorn, in Banff, Ben Lawers, in Perth, Braeriach, in Aberdeen, and some others, are not much inferior in altitude. The general surface of the country is singularly irregular, being, on the whole, hilly or mountainous, more especially the northern district, which comprehends nearly two-thirds of Scotland, and forms what is called the Highlands, extending from Dumbarton nearly to the extremity of the island, about two hundred miles. Nothing can be more awful to a stranger than the appearance of the Highlands, where dusky mountains rise above each other, and lose their heads in the clouds; while the tremendous rocks fill the mind with dismay, heightened in no small degree by the noise of numberless torrents, which pour down their steep sides. The gloomy vales and glens below—narrow, deep, and dark, add sublimity to the scene. The Lowlands, or that part of Scotland not included within the district of the Highlands, may be said to comprise the portion which lies between the Friths of Tay and Clyde, and extends southward to the English frontier, and nearly the whole of Forfarshire. In this division the proportion of cultivated land is very considerable, exhibiting, in many parts, verdant plains, watered by copious streams, and covered with innumerable cattle; in others, pleasing vicissitudes of gently rising hills and bending vales, fertile in corn, waving with wood, and interspersed with flowery meadows. Situated in the midst of the ocean, and in a high northern latitude, Scotland cannot boast of a regular CLIMATE. It is various, too, in different places; the cold, however, is not so intense as it is in similar latitudes on the Continent. The thermometer does not sink so low during the winter, as it does in the vicinity of London. Mountainous countries are always most subject to rain; and Great Britain, being a sort of inclined plane, gradually declining from west to east, it has been thought that, on this account, the western coast is more wet. This excess of rain is, perhaps, rather owing to the prevalence of the west wind, which brings humidity with it in its course across the Atlantic; hence we find that more rain generally falls at Greenock than at Glasgow, and more at Glasgow than at Edinburgh. As a counterbalance to this, vegetation on the eastern coast is checked during the spring months by cold and piercing east winds. Notwithstanding all this the air is in general pure and healthy.

The wild animals are the fox, the badger, the otter, the red deer, the wild roe, the hare, and the rabbit; besides the wild cat, the hedgehog, weasel, squirrel, mole, &c. There is also proof of others having existed in this country, which are now exterminated, namely, the buffalo or wild ox, the wolf, and the beaver. Of the feathered tribe, pheasants are to be found in the woods, though scarce; also that rare and beautiful bird called capercailzie, or cock of the wood. The ptarmigan, black game, and grouse, inhabit the heathy mountains: in the valleys are partridges; in the fens, the snipe and plover; and in the plains, most of the English singing birds, except the nightingale.

Rivers, Lakes, and Railways.—The country abounds with rivers and lakes, which are in general very pure and transparent, and abound with fish. Most of the rivers have a short course from the mountains to the sea, and are consequently very rapid, the principal are the Tweed, Forth, Clyde, Tay, and Spey, of which the Tay is the largest: they all abound with fine salmon and trout. The lakes of Scotland are grand and beautiful, and some of them of considerable extent; their banks are in general clothed with wood, and the scenery is highly picturesque and pleasing. Of these Loch Lomond is the chief, both in extent and beauty, diversified with a number of small romantic woody islands, and begirt with shores in some places decorated with wood, in others naked and majestic. Next to it may be ranked Loch Ness, whose waters never freeze; Loch Tay, Loch Awe, Loch Katrine, Loch Erne, Loch Leven, and many others, are deserving of the traveller's attention. It is worthy of remark, that the name of loch or lake is given, on the western coast, to many inlets or arms of the sea. Throughout the whole extent of coast there are fine fisheries, which employ a vast number of hands, and furnish a hardy and skilful race of seamen for the British navy; while her bleak mountains were esteemed, in more remote times, as an excellent nursery for brave and hardy soldiers. Railways, &c.—This northern portion of the United Kingdom has successfully emulated the more southern, its facilities of intercommunication with various distant districts—River, Road, Canal, and Rail lending their respective aids to effect the accomplishment of this great object; and the last-named has of late years taken a most prominent and valuable part in this department of the 'Country's good,' by opening up a rapid means of intercourse with almost every part of the country. It would be superfluous to give here a list of the railways in operation and in progress, every place visited by a line being specially noticed throughout the work.

Commerce, Manufactures, Minerals, &c.—Scotland produces many valuable articles of commerce: besides the trade in corn, the rearing of black cattle and sheep for the English market is very considerable. Great attention is paid to the breed of black cattle; while the horses and sheep, originally small, now rival those of England. Its woods of oak and fir are considered with proper attention, and made serviceable to the navy. The mines of coal, lead and iron have long been sources of wealth, as have freestone, limestone and slate, which are found in various places, and in great abundance. Some attention is also paid to its marbles, which prove little, if at all, inferior in colour or polish to those of Italy. Scotland cannot, at present, exhibit many of the precious metals, though considerable quantities, both of gold and silver, have, at different periods, been obtained from her bowels; and it is not improbable that the time may arrive when these treasures will again be laid open. Copper has been discovered in many places, though, at present, it is no where wrought to any considerable extent; but a very rich mine of antimony has been worked, richer, it is beleived, than any at present known. Most of the gems and precious stones, with the exception of the diamond, have also been found in Scotland. Manufactures of various kinds are in a thriving condition. The printed cottons, and figured goods, in shawls, &c. equal those of England—shawls especially, for which Paisley has become highly celebrated; and the glass and stoneware are scarcely surpassed anywhere. In linens, particularly those for the table, Dunfermline has long been famous. Manufactures of broad cloth, silks, and gauzes, are also upon a respectable footing. The intercourse with England daily becomes more frequent (thanks to the rail), to the mutual advantage of both countries. This has the affect of rendering the manners, dress, and language of both alike, and extinguishing all national prejudice. The dress of the Lowlanders resembles that of the English: that peculiar to the Highlanders, though not so common as formerly, is still worn by many; it is composed of woollen stuff, called "tartan", of various colours, checkered. Many wear a sort of petticoat, reaching to the knees, and called a "kelt". The stockings, made of similar checkered stuff, are short, and tied below the knee by tartan garters, with tassels.

The Scots are uniformly sober and frugal: instead of lavishing their gains, they are wisely laid by, or economically expended to enable them to live in comfort, and make a respectable appearance. Intelligence is more common than in most countries, owing to the number of excellent parochial schools, and the cheapness with which education is acquired; and there are few branches of literature in which the Scotch have failed in attaining a degree of excellence, although they cannot boast of many authors at an early period. Before the abolition of episcopacy, the ancient church establishment was composed of two archbishoprics and twelve bishoprics. The National religion is now the Presbyterian, founded on an equality among its pastors. A very influential and numerous body, denominated the 'Free Church of Scotland,' was constituted in 1843, and the members have been increasing in number from that time. The clergy of Scotland are well educated, and singularly exemplary in their morals. Roman Catholics, of whom the number is not very considerable, are tolerated, as well as Episcopalians, and various dissenters from the Established Church. There are four Universities; that of St. Andrew, founded in 1412; that of Glasgow, founded in 1433; that of Aberdeen, founded in 1500; and that of Edinburgh, founded by James VI. in 1582. Since the union of the two kingdoms, which event took place in 1706, the political government has been the same with that of England; the civil code, however, and the manner of administering justice are different. Of this, and of the principal events which have occnrred in Scotland, more particular notice will be taken in the historical description of Edinburgh. Scotland, though neither so rich nor so populous as the southern division of the island, has long borne a name for martial exploits; and of late she has risen to as great eminence in literature and the arts.

Divisions, Representative System, Population, &c.—The main land of North Britain is naturally divided into three portions. The extremity is parted from the centre by the Moray Frith, Loch Ness, Loch Lochy, and Loch Linnhe, connected with each other by the Caledonian canal. The midland portion is again parted from the southern by the Friths of Forth and Clyde, the river Forth, Ben Lomond, and its cognominal lake. These are again unequally sub-divided into thirty-three counties, which, in the following table, comprising the sheriffdoms, stewartries, and bailiwicks, and the chief towns, are arranged according to their situation.

The Parliamentary Representation of Scotland, as decided by the Reform Bill, is as follows:—each of the counties returns one member, except Clackmannan and Kinross, which jointly send one; the same with the shires of Cromarty and Ross, and those of Elgin and Nairn; so that the thirty-three counties are represented by thirty members. The cities of Edinburgh and Glasgow return two members each; Aberdeen, Dundee, Greenock, Paisley, and Perth, one each; and the following combined or contributory burghs send one jointly; making the whole number of representatives fifty-three.

PARLIAMENTARY DISTRICTS OF BURGHS.

Ayr:—Ayr, Campbeltown, Inverary, Irvine and Oban.

Dumfries:—Annan, Dumfries, Kirkcudbright, Lochmaben and Sanquhar.

Elgin:—Banff, Cullen, Elgin, Inverury, Kintore and Peterhead.

Falkirk:—Airdrie, Falkirk, Hamilton, Lanark and Linlithgow.

Haddington:—Dunbar, Haddington, Jedburgh, Lauder and North Berwick,

Inverness:—Forres, Fortrose, Inverness and Nairn.

Kilmarnock:—Dumbarton, Kilmarnock, Port Glasgow, Renfrew and Rutherglen.

Kirkcaldy:—Burntisland, Dysart, Kinghorn and Kirkcaldy.

Leith:—Leith, Musselburgh and Portobello.

Montrose:—Arbroath, Brechin, Forfar, Inverbervie and Montrose.

St. Andrews:—Anstruther, East and West, Crail, Cupar, Kilrenny, Pittenweem and St. Andrews.

Stirling:—Culross, Dunfermline, Inverkeithing, Queensferry and Stirling.

Wick:—Cromarty, Dingwall, Dornock, Kirkwall, Tain and Wick.

Wigtown:—New Galloway, Stranraer, Whithorn and Wigtown.

Population of the kingdom, as exhibited by the Government returns, at the following periods:—in the year 1801, the number of inhabitants was 1,608,420; in 1811, 1,805,864; in 1821, 2,091,521; in 1831, 2,364,386; in 1841, 2,620,184; and in 1851, 2,888,742. The total population of the shires, and of the several parishes, cities, towns, &c. will be found detailed in the tables appended to the descriptive sketch of each county.

The total annual value of Real Property in Scotland, as assessed in April, 1815, was £6,652,655; the amount assessed to the Property Tax, in 1843, was £9,284,382 13s. 8d.; and in 1849, £10,715,385.

EDINBURGHSHIRE.

THE County of EDINBURGH, or MID-LOTHIAN, lies in the southern division of Scotland; bounded on the north by the Frith of Forth (an arm of the German Ocean); by Linlithgowshire, or West-Lothian, on the west; by the counties of Lanark, Peebles, and Selkirk on the south; and on the east by Haddingtonshire, or East-Lothian, with small portions of Berwickshire and Roxburghshire on the east. The length of the county, from east to west, is about thirty miles; and its breadth, from north to south (from the centre), sixteen; but from its extreme apex on the south, to near Musselburgh on the north, where the eastern extremity of the county abuts on Haddingtonshire, its breadth is about twenty-two miles. The figure of this county, which is very irregular, may be said to describe the segment of a circle, indented on its southern boundary by the counties of Berwick and Selkirk, and on its south-western verge by Lanarkshire. It contains about three hundred and ninety-seven square miles, or 254,300 statute acres.

NAME AND EARLY HISTORY.—In respect to the appellation 'Edinburgh,' all the information that can be obtained, upon this subject, from the obscurity of ages is furnished in the description of the capital; while that of 'Lothian' will be given in the present article. In the first century of the Christian era, this district of Scotland, according to the best authority (including the Messrs. Chambers, from whose valuable topography we have drawn largely), was inhabited by tribes of Ottadina and Gadeni, the British descendants of those enterprising foreign Celts, who had first landed in the island. The Roman legions entered Edinburghshire about the year 80, when Agricola formed a chain of forts across the isthmus of land between the estuaries of Clyde and Forth. We shall pass over the imperfect history of the wars of the natives and their irresistable enemies, the Romans, who finally secured the space they had at first marked down as their own. The skilful general who restored the Roman power was Theodosius, under the Emberor Valentinian I, who, in compliment to his imperial master, entitled the extensive district he had thus conquered, the province of Valentia, which this warlike people retained possession of three hundred and sixty years. During their residence they reared altars, baths, granaries, and other works of art, still occasionally seen, and left those coins and weapons which, from time to time, are exposed in turning up the surface of the soil. The exigences of the state at length required their presence nearer the Capitol, but it was with extreme regret that they abandoned their settlement. The date of their abdication is 446, and the epoch of the re-subversion of the Romanized Ottadini, by Saxon invaders, is only three years later. After a century of hard fighting, the superior genius of the Saxon Ida fixed this new race in those districts now comprehended in the shires of Berwick, part of Roxburgh, Haddington, Linlithgow, and a portion of Stirling. In the course of time this province obtained the distinctive appellation of Laodonie, Lothene, and more recently, LOTHIAN. The origin of this title has occasioned much controversy, without arriving at a satisfactory conclusion, upon its derivation. In common speech the district is to this day called Loudon; thus the popular phrase is more correct, as regards etymology, than that which is in use among writers. Every foot of ground covered by the metropolis and its environs has been the scene of warlike strife, frequently involving the fate of the kingdom. In the struggle which Edward III maintained for the restoration of the Baliol dynasty, one of the most sanguinary battles was fought on the Borough-moor of the metropolis. In 1385 Mid-Lothian was subjected to the horrors of pillage and conflagration, in the expedition of Richard II; and a century and a half later, it suffered much from the invasion of the English, on account of the treaty of marriage between the son of Henry VIII and the young Queen of Scots. The country was, soon after, the scene of many of the insurrectionary movements against the authority of Queen Mary, particularly that at Carberry Hill. Of the many interesting events connected with this county, the metropolis of it has been the nucleus—and our history of Edinburgh, therefore, in the succeeding pages, will present many details.

SURFACE, SOIL, and CLIMATE.—The greater proportion of the county is, if not mountainous, hilly, and many places wild and pastoral. The most prominent rising grounds are the Pentland Hills, and the following eminences (with their altitude above the level of the sea):—Moorfoot Hills, 1,850 feet; Caerketton (Pentland range), 1,555; Spittal Hill, 1,360; Arthur's Seat (from its base, 700), 796; House of Whim, 884; Woodhouselee, 720; Dalmahoy Hill, 680; summit of Braid Hills, 630; Pennycuick, 586; Salisbury Crags, 550; Craig Lockhart Hill, 540; Battery of Edinburgh Castle, 510; Corstorphine Hill, 470; Calton Hill, 350; Dalkeith, 200. It is ascertained that by the close of the eleventh century agriculture had made some progress in the district of Mid-Lothian. During the last and present century much has been accomplished in this part, in rearing plantations; but it is to the society of Improvers, formed at Edinburgh, about the 1723, that this county is mainly indebted to its advancement in agriculture. In 1744 potatoes were first raised in fields, and in about thirty years afterwards their cultivation was completely established in the county. The agriculture of Mid-Lothian, like that of East-Lothian is now conducted in the best manner that science can suggest, or capital render efficient. In the neighbourhood of the metropolis, there is a great and increasing quantity of land laid out in nursery grounds and vegetable gardens, the produce of which supply the city markets; grass-parks for temporary grazing, and arable fields for hay. The number of market gardens in which fruits are produced is considerable, and employ a great body of men in spade husbandry. Upon the whole, it may be remarked with regard to the soil of this county, and its management, that a very active spirit of improvement everywhere prevails; cultivation is rapidly ascending the hills, while the boggy grounds are gradually undergoing a process of draining. The farmers form a most respectable and well educated body of men; they hold the rank of gentlemen, and are generally in affluent circumstances. The CLIMATE, though in a high latitude (nearly 508), is, upon the whole, salubrious, and not unfavourable to vegetation: its greatest drawback is variability. A single day frequently exhibits all the diversity of the four seasons; and the cold east winds generally prevail for more than two months in the spring.

MINERALS, MANUFACTURES, and COMMERCE.—The county abounds in several valuable minerals, especially coal, sandstone, limestone, and whinstone. In the western part is an extensive coal field and the eastern contains inexhaustible and rich beds of this valuable mineral, extending from the shore at Musselburgh, on both sides of the North Esk, about fifteen miles inward, to the head of that stream at Carlops, on the confines of Tweedale. Mid-Lothian possesses sandstone of different kinds, and of an excellent quality. The quarries of Edinburghshire have long enjoyed a pre-eminence, which cannot be so effectually indicated by anything, as by the appearance of the New Town of Edinburgh. The works of Craigleith and Hailes, near the city, may be justly considered objects of curiosity. Almost all the houses of the New Town, besides other buildings, have been reared from the former mine. There are several other quarries of inferior note throughout the county. Lead was, in former times, found at the head of the North Esk, on the south side of the Pentland Hills. A vein of copper is said to exist in the parish of Currie, but it has never been worked. The MANUFACTURES of Edinburghshire cannot be traced to a remote date, and have never been remarkable for their extent. It is but little more than a century since, that the fabrication of linen was known in the county. In Edinburgh, Leith, and Musselburgh, there are now numerous manufactories of goods of different kinds, which will been found under their appropriate heads in the Directory of these places. The principal articles manufactured in the shire for exportation, either by outports or inland, besides Scotch linens, are glass, soap, salt, candles, refined sugar, beer, ale, whisky, leather, bricks, tiles, pottery, iron, chemical preparations, printing materials, paper, and books. The manufacture of paper became first known in Scotland in this county, and the district still possesses large establishments employed in the manufacture of this invaluable material. The maritime traffic of the county, which is very considerable, is concentrated at Leith, the only port suitable to the entrance of large vessels, and indeed the only one of any kind except those of Fisherrow or Musselburgh, Newhaven, and the rising port of Granton. The formation of a canal, proceeding to the west from Edinburgh, makes the capital of this county not less the entrepot of import as of export goods.

RIVERS AND RAILWAYS.—This county does not possess any large rivers. This deficiency, however, is of little or no importance, in consequence of being placed on the margin of a broad and navigable firth. Next the Forth, the Esk may be said to be the chief river: it is composed of two streams, that unite their waters below Dalkeith, and glide into the Forth, at Musselburgh. The Leith, a valuable small river, takes its rise on the north side of the Pentland Hills, and, after receiving several rivulets, discharges its waters, after a course of nineteen miles, into the Forth. The Almond, the most westerly stream, rises in the high grounds on the borders of Lanarkshire; it is joined by the Briech Burn, in its way to the Forth, which it enters at Cramond.—RAILWAYS. The shire of Edinburgh is extensively interested in the system of railways. The following are the lines already in operation:—the 'Edinburgh and Glasgow' holds intercourse with those two cities, and also the towns of Corstorphine, Ratho, and Kirkliston, within the shire. The 'North British'—a link in the chain of communication between the metropolises of England and Scotland, has branches to Musselburgh and Fisherrow, to Dalkeith and Hawick. A line from the Hawick branch runs to Peebles. The 'Edinburgh, Perth and Dundee,' and the 'Edinburgh, Leith and Granton,' are lines whose destinations are indicated by their names. The 'Edinburgh and Bathgate' railway forms a junction between the 'Edinburgh and Glasgow,' and the 'Caledonian' lines. Edinburgh is also in communication with the 'Caledonian' line, by a branch which runs through Mid-Calder, &c.

CIVIL DIVISIONS, REPRESENTATION, &c.—This district became subject to the government of a sheriff, prior to the reign of David I. The office of sheriff of Edinburgh seems to have been, at all times, an appointment of great trust and dignity; and from the thirteenth to the eighteenth century was filled by the heads of families of note in the shire and its vicinity. The county is now governed, and its affairs conducted by the usual number of functionaries, with about forty deputy-lieutenants, distributed over six districts, each composed of a certain number of parishes. Besides Edinburgh, the shire does not comprise any royal burghs, but possesses three of regality, namely, Musselburgh, Canongate and Portsburgh and the town of Leith. Its only burgh of Barony is Dalkeith. The contributory burghs belonging to this county, represented in parliament, are Leith, Musselburgh, and Portobello: the city of Edinburgh sends two members to parliament, and the county at large one. EDINBURGH AND LEITH,

WITH THEIR ENVIRONS,

INCLUDING THE PARISHES AND VILLAGES OF CRAMOND AND GRANTON, RESTALRIG, STOCKBRIDGE, NEWHAVEN, GORGIE, AND THEIR VICINITIES.

EDINBURGH, the beautiful metropolis of Scotland, and of its county, occupies a site in the northern part of the county of Mid Lothian, remarkable for its romantic inequalities, its rich historical reminiscences, and for the beauty of its architectural features, within two miles from the south shore of the Firth of Forth; in latitude 55° 57′ 23″ north, and longtitude 3° 10′ 30″ west; and distant from London 392 miles, (by rail 427), 91 from Carlisle, (110 by rail), 55 from Berwick-upon-Tweed (57¾ by rail), nearly 44 from Glasgow (47½ by rail), from Dundee (by rail) 66, 109 from Aberdeen, and 241 from Inverness, by Aberdeen.

ORIGIN, NAME, AND BRIEF NOTICE OF EVENTS CONNECTED WITH THE CITY.

LIKE many other towns of high antiquity, the origin of EDINBURGH is shrouded in great obscurity, and tradition can scarcely be said to have imparted much information upon this interesting subject; most authorities, however they may be at variance in their opinions connected with its early days, agree in thinking that the lofty Castle rock so peculiarly eligible for a fortress, and almost impregnable before the introduction of gunpowder, would not remain long unnoticed and unoccupied as a place of defence. The most ancient name on record applied to the rock is Casteth Mynyd Agnes, meaning 'the fortress of the hill of Saint Agnes.' This, however, seems not to be connected with its present appellation—which is said to be derived from Edwin, the Anglo-Saxon King of Northumbria. This monarch fell a victim to intestine turbulence in the year 634; for, during the era of Anglo-Saxon domination in Lothian, the Northumbrian chiefs, occasionally occupied the castle, and Edwin more frequently than the rest—from whom the place received the appellation of Edwin's Burgh, subsequently contracted to Edinburgh. Upon the cession of Lothian to the Scots, in 1020, the castle often became the residence of the Scottish monarchs, and David I. distinguished it as his favourite habitation. Under his royal patronage dwellings multiplied around it, and the Abbey of Holyrood soon acknowledged him as its founder, whose canons he empowered to erect a suburb westward of their abbey, to unite itself with his own burgh, which had rapidly extended itself down from the declivity of the castle eastward. The monks gave the name of Canonsburgh, or Canongate, to their new town, which appellation it still bears. The long street thus formed between the abbey and the castle consisted, it is presumed, of very humble dwellings, as it appears that long posterior to this period they were thatched with straw. From William the Lion, about the close of the 12th century, it is supposed the town received the privileges of a royal burgh, and the honour of being a place of mintage; but soon after, this monarch, as the price of his liberty, surrendered it to Henry II, king of England, by whom it was retained until 1186. In the year 1214 the first parliament assembled here, in the reign of Alexander II, which first gave to Edinburgh the semblance of a capital. In 1239 a general council of the 'Scotican' church met here; and during the reign of Alexander III it became the royal residence, and the depository of the records and regalia of the kingdom. In 1291 the town and castle were surrendered to King Edward I, but were speedily regained by the Scots, who held them, until the fatal battle of Dunbar, in 1294, enabled Edward to re-capture them. The castle continued in possession of the English until 1312, when it once more reverted to Scotlad. In 1326 the fourteenth parliament of Bruce met in Holyrood Abbey; and the next year was memorable for the admission of the borough representatives among those of the other estates, and for the confirmation of the treaty of Northampton, by which the independence of Scotland was acknowledged by Edward III. Shortly after, Robert I granted a charter to the inhabitants of Edinburgh, and placed under their dominion the town of Leith, 'with its harbour and mills.' During the reign of Edward III the possession of the castle twice changed hands, but it ultimately submitted to its natural masters, and the city continued rising in consequence until it became the residence of the chief functionaries of the government, subsequent to the murder of James I, in 1436-7, at which period it assumed the attitude of the metropolis of the kingdom. While James II was besieging the castle of Roxburgh, a great gun of Flemish manufacture, constructed of longitudinal bars of iron fixed with iron hoops, which were made tight in a very rude manner by strong oaken wedges having been overcharged, unfortunately exploded and struck the king with one of the massive wooden wedges in the body. The blow caused instant death, and his remains were removed to Edinburgh and buried in the Abbey church of Holyrood. This fatal event happened on the 3rd of August, 1460, in the twenty-ninth year of his age, and twenty-fourth of his reign. About the middle of the fifteenth century it was encircled by walls, at the instigation of James II, the marriage of which monarch with Mary of Gueldres, and her coronation also, were celebrated with great pomp in the Abbey of Holyrood, which abbey became the tomb of the king eleven years afterwards. The turbulent reign of James III. succeeded, during which the sites of the markets were determined, the provost made hereditary sheriff within the town, and various municipal privileges granted to the inhabitants; in token of the bravery and loyalty of the Edinburghers a banner was also given to them, to be displayed 'in defence of their king, their country, and their own rights.' This flag, from its colour, received the name of the 'blue blanket,' and remains now in the custody of the convener of the trades, at whose appearance therewith, says tradition, not only the artificers of Edinburgh, but those of the whole kingdom, are to repair to it, and fight under the convener. On all great pageants this memorial of the loyalty of the Edinburghers to the house of Stuart is ostentatiously displayed. In 1508 the thickly covered lands of the 'Borough Moor' were cleared of their trees, in virtue of the powers granted by the king; and, in order to obtain purchasers for the timber, the magistrates enacted that whoever bought as much as would be sufficient to make a new front to his house, might extend the same seven feet further into the street, by which impolitic permission the town was filled with wooden houses, and the main street contracted fourteen feet in width. The year 1513 was memorable for the double calamity of the plague and the disastrous defeat at Flodden. This latter misfortune filled Edinburgh with consternation; all capable of bearing arms were ordered to defend the walls, and 'the women were discharged from crying or clamouring in the streets;' the privy council, for safety, adjourning to Stirling, where James V was crowned. At this alarming crisis the fortifications were strengthened, and a new wall built, which encompassed the high grounds on the south, more than half of which still remains. The plague continuing its virulence, the young king was removed to Dalkeith or Craigmiller. During his minority the Earl of Arran and Cardinal Beatoun, jealous of the influence acquired by the Earl of Angus, through his marriage with the queen dowager, attacked him and his partisans in the streets near the Netherbow-port, in which conflict more than two hundred and fifty men were slain, and the residue of the Hamiltons, or Arran's party, were expelled by the Douglasses, or faction of Angus. This bloody affair was designated by the populace 'Cleanse the causeway.' Similar sanguinary occurrences were not unfrequent in these contentious times; and, during this whole minority, the capital was the theatre of tumult, chiefly through the turbulence of the house of Douglas: as a proof of the prevailing disquietude, the privy council and parliament frequently met in the Tolbooth or common gaol. In 1514 the small force was appointed, afterwards known by the name of the 'city guard,' which was dissolved so lately as 1817. In 1528, excitements and disturbances arose in the city, from the secret diffusion of the principles of the Reformation. The year 1532 is signalised by the establishment in the capital of the College of Justice, which important corporation, including the whole body of functionaries connected with the supreme courts, endowed Edinburgh still more with the attributes of a metropolis: and as it rose in dignity the parliament thought it their duty to interfere for the correction of its deformities. Rows of obstructing tenements were removed, and many salutary regulations enforced for the prevention of impurities; the High street was paved, and lanterns were ordered to be hung out at night by the inhabitants. In 1534 Norman Gourlay and David Straiton were tried and condemned at Holyrood for heresy, and executed at Greenside. In 1543, the magistrates having thought proper to deprive the craftsmen of the privilege of voting at the election of the provost and baillies, the deacons drew their swords in the council chamber; but the strife was subdued, partly by compromise, and partly by the irresistible reasonings of an armed force. The next year was a disastrous one for the rising metropolis; Henry VIII of England, in revenge for the opposition made by the catholic regency of Arran and Beatoun to the intermarriage of his son Edward with the young Queen Mary, sent an army and fleet to ravage Scotland, under the command of the Earl of Hertford, who, landing at Leith, set fire to Edinburgh, and burnt the abbey and palace of Holyrood. The attempt to capture the castle was unsuccessful, but the departing foe destroyed the pier of Lieth, seized the ships in the harbour, and 'neither pyle, village, town, nor house, in their way homewards was left unburnt.' In consequence of this outrage a French garrison was introduced four years afterwards, under d'Esse, who fortified Leith, and took every precaution to prevent a repetition of the calamity.

About the year 1556 the intrepid reformer, John Knox, became a conspicuous personage in these days of agitation. Being a great favourite with the populace, he was courageously defended against the attacks of the ecclesiastical powers; and when the reformers and the queen regent came to open rupture, the demolition of the religious houses, and the destruction of all the symbols of the Romish faith, by the populace, exhibited their hostility to papacy, and their zeal in its subversion. On the anniversary of Saint Giles, the patron saint of the city, the priests and monks were furiously attacked and dispersed, and the effigy of the saint, which they were carrying in procession, was indignantly destroyed; and when the lords of the congregation arrived from Perth, Stirling and Linlithgow, they found their purposed work of desecration had been anticipated by the people: but it is fortunate that the rage of the reformers was confined to the decorations and furniture of the churches, so that two of the chief ecclesiastical edifices still remain, while the convents and monasteries have been converted into dwelling-houses, some of which are now standing. The struggle between the two parties now became fierce, and but for the arrival of an English force to the assistance of the protestants, the issue of the contest would have been doubtful; but the reformers, with these auxiliaries' becoming ascendant, the triumph of the popular sentiment was complete. The first assembly of the reformed kirk met in Edinburgh on the 15th of January, 1560. On the 9th of August, 1561, Mary, Queen of Scots, landed at Leith, from France, to sway the sceptre of her ancestors, and she was well received; but her predilection for the Romish ritual soon abated her popularity, and subjected her to insult; even her private chapel was invaded, and her devotions interrupted. The drama became now fearfully interesting, the scenes were rapidly shifted, and tragical incidents were occurring in quick succession. Darnley was proclaimed king at the market cross on the 28th of July, 1565, and on the next morning, within the chapel of Holyrood, he became the husband of Queen Mary. On the 9th of the following March, David Rizzio, the Italian favourite of the queen, was murdered, in the palace, by Darnley and his confederates. On the 19th of June the queen gave birth to a son, afterwards James the Sixth of Scotland and the First of England. On the 10th of the ensuing February, 1567, Darnley, while sojourning in a secluded house, called the Kirk-o'-Field, near the site of the present university, was blown up by gunpowder, and many circumstances coincided to involve Bothwell in suspicion of planning the murder, and the queen of a guilty privity. Be this as it may, Bothwell, having divorced himself from his wife, became the husband of the queen in three short months after its perpetration. This shameless marriage took place on the 15th of May, 1567, in the Palace of Holyrood, and was the occasion of fresh disturbances in Edinburgh. So formidable was the insurrection, that the queen and Bothwell, on the 6th of June, fled from the popular odium, first to Borthwick Castle, and thence to Dunbar, which abandonment of the capital was followed by the entry of three thousand insurgents, who took possession of the seat of government. Shortly afterwards the queen was brought back to Edinburgh, a spectacle for the insults of the populace, and the next day was sent a prisoner to Lochleven Castle. A regency was then formed in the name of the infant son of Mary, James VI, and the Earl of Murray was proclaimed regent; but the assassination of this popular favourite, two years after, at Linlithgow, threw the capital into confusion. The struggle between the contending parties was renewed with alternate ascendancy; the Earl of Lennox became the new regent, and Kirkcaldy, of Grange, the provost of the town and governor of the castle, declared for the queen, whose party held a parliament in the Tolbooth, while that of the regent held theirs in the Canongate. Kirkcaldy seized all the arms he could find, and planted a battery on the steeple of Saint Giles, and being supplied by France with money and ammunition, he and his associates became formidable antagonists to the regency. Morton and the regent, on the other side, having united, fortified Leith, and for two years the two parties waged a fluctuating warfare, until Queen Elizabeth, of England, at the entreaty of Morton, sent a small army from Berwick, which soon reduced the castle; and the captive Kirkcaldy, with his brother, were shortly afterwards hanged at the cross, although they had surrendered under a promise of merciful treatment. But the time had now arrived for the young king to assume the government himself. He entered the city with great pomp, and immediately convened a parliament in the Tolbooth, and tranquillity was, in some degree, restored. The Earl of Morton, the late regent, was now accused of being an accessory to the murder of Darnley, was convicted, and executed by a machine called the 'maiden,' alleged to have been an invention of his own. It was similar in its construction to the guillotine of France. The Reformation being now firmly established, education became an object of solicitude; the University of Edinburgh arose, and around it many subordinate colleges and schools, by which the character of the city became morally elevated. The poor, also, were not forgotten; funds for their maintenance were granted from the revenues of the suppressed religious houses and their lands. King James, though he had assumed the throne, held the sceptre with a feeble hand. The chief nobility, clergy, and a considerable portion of the community were jealous of monarchy, and the uncompromising character of the new religion, with the austere manners of its professors, were little in unison with the manners and practices of the court. One anecdote will exhibit the prevailing feeling—The king, desirous of shewing civilities to two French ambassadors, requested the magistrates to entertain them with a banquet (and, by the way, the frugal James was much addicted to being hospitable by proxy), but the French not being in good odour with the ministers, and the propriety, moreover, of protestants dining with papists being questionable, in their judgment, the ministers, in order to keep in check any tendency to excess, ordered a fast to be kept on the day of the feast; and the pulpit of Saint Giles was occupied during the whole of the day by three of their preachers in succession, who inveighed vehemently against voluptuousness and popery, the nobles, and the magistrates, who were partaking of the banquet by the direction of the king. The marriage of the king with the Princess Anne of Denmark involved the citizens in grievous expenses. They preferred presenting James with 5,000 merks, to providing an entertainment, and shortly after they were required to send a beautiful ship to Denmark, at the cost of £500, to bring home the king and his bride; they also presented the bride with a valuable jewel, pledged to them by the king as security for a considerable sum advanced him. Still these munificent donations did not exempt the citizens from 'intolerable impositions and grievous exactions.' Mary, after having been nineteen years in captivity, was, in 1586, tried by a special commission, on a charge of having conspired against the life of Elizabeth, which she denied, but was nevertheless found guilty and condemned to be executed. When the news arrived in Edinburgh of the execution of Queen Mary, James' grief and resentment was seconded by the indignation of his subjects, at the dissimulation and injustice of Elizabeth—whose cruel policy in this ruthless act it is for the English historian to justify or condemn. As a prominent character in Scottish annals, we have accompanied the ill-fated Mary to the final consummation of all the errors and injuries that marked the life of this frail princess. In 1591 the Earl of Bothwell made a daring attempt to seize the person of the king. Having introduced himself at night into the court of the palace, he advanced to the royal apartment; but before he could force the doors the alarm was given, the citizens flew to arms, and frustrated the attempt. Bothwell escaped, but eight of his followers were executed. A fresh cause of tumult soon arose; the young Earl of Murray, the heir of the regent, was assassinated by the Earl of Huntly; and as the king was suspected of connivance, the citizens indignantly arose and openly insulted both the king and his ministers. James thought it prudent to retreat to Glasgow, where he remained till the hurricane had subsided. Not long afterwards the monarch was presented by these same citizens with ten tuns of wine, and a hundred of their number were in attendance at the baptism of Prince Henry; a guard of fifty citizens was also appointed to protect his person from Bothwell. In 1598 a rebellion broke out among the boys in the High School, and one of the baillies was shot by a youth while attempting to subdue it. James, annoyed by the freedom of the language that was uttered from the pulpits, attempted to restrain it, which excited an insurrection that not only occasioned his prerogative to be insulted but his person to be endangered. He, in consequence, retired from the city, ordered all the public courts to be removed, and was only prevented from avenging himself on the city still further, by the supplications and cash of the magistrates. In 1596 James was again in collision with his subjects, in consequence of some English players being introduced into the city, and Shakspare is supposed to have been one of the number, the clergy fulminated their abhorrence, and the presbytery issued a decree against them, which the privy council annulled, and the continuance of the players was tolerated, which was followed up, in June, 1598, by an ordinance that every Monday should be a play day. At this period an important alteration was made in the computation of time. The year had hitherto commenced on the 25th of March, but by a convention of estates, which met on the 10th of December, 1599, it was ordered that in future new year's day should be on the 1st of January. The manners of the times are thus described by an Englishman who visited Edinburgh in the year 1598:—'Myself,' says he, 'was at a knight's house, who had many servants to attend him, that brought in his meat with their heads covered with blue caps, the table being covered with great platters of porridge, each having a little piece of sodden meat, and when the table was served, the servants sat down with us; but the upper mess, instead of porridge, had a pullet with some prunes in the broth; and I observed no art of cookery or furniture of household stuff, but rather rude neglect of both, though myself and companions, sent from the governor of Berwick about bordering affairs, were entertained after the best manner. They drink pure wines, not mixed with sugar like the English; yet at feasts they put comfits in their wines, after the French fashion, but they have not our vintners' fraud to mix their wines. I did never see nor hear that they have any public inns with signs hanging out, but the better sort of citizens brew ale, their usual drink, which will distemper a stranger's body. Their bedsteads were then like cupboards in the wall, with doors to be opened and shut at pleasure; so that we climbed up to our beds,' &c. In 1600 the Duke of Rohan, having visited Edinburgh, states that the city was about one thousand paces in length, and from four to five hundred in breadth; and adds that there was nothing remarkable in it but the great street, which was very long and broad, and extended from one end of the town to the other; the houses, he says, were not sumptuous, being almost all built of wood. On the 24th of March, 1603, Queen Elizabeth died, which event elevated James to the throne of England, to which country he immediately departed, after taking a formal farewell of the citizens of Edinburgh, at the church of Saint Giles, where he addressed them after the sermon, and both parties, it is said, evinced deep emotion. The superior splendour of the English throne caused James, perhaps, to think his Scottish one too plain and unostentatious, and to change its character a little, he sent down to the magistrates of Edinburgh patterns for their gowns, which they were directed to wear, and moreover, to have a sword of state carried before them; but instead of sending, with these patterns, 59,000 merks, which he owed, he obliged them to be content with 20,000, in full of all demands; notwithstanding which, when the king paid his long-promised visit to his Scottish capital in 1618, he was received with pomp, and addressed with adulation; these placable functionaries, upon the 'verie knees of their harts,' styling him the 'perfection of eloquence and the quintessence of rulers,' and entertained him with a banquet, and presented him with a silver basin with 10,000 merks of double gold angels in it. A parliament was immediately convened, and among other acts which it passed was one for the restitution of archbishops, bishops, and chapters. About this time the town council purchased the mills of Bonnington, from Robert and John Logan, with the lands and tiends belonging to them, for 1,230 merks Scots (£68. 6s. 8d. sterling). In 1621 an act passed for the coping of houses with lead, slate, or tiles, instead of thatch, and water was introduced the same year by pipes; three new bells, also, were imported from Holland—two for Saint Giles's Church, and one for the Netherbow Port. March 27th, 1625, closed James's career; and on the 31st Charles the First was proclaimed king in his stead; and in June, 1633, he was crowned King of Scotland in the Abbey of Holyrood.

The erection of Edinburgh into a bishopric, and an order for the introduction of a liturgy into the churches, caused great tumults in the city, resulting in a general assembly at Glasgow, in 1638, by which presbyterianism was immediately restored. The treaties of Berwick and Ripon exhibit both the hatred of the Scotch to prelacy and the folly of the monarch in endeavouring to enforce it. Soon after the treaty of Ripon Charles visited Edinburgh, but though he was ostentatiously received, his conduct during his residence was neither discreet nor grateful. The 'great rebellion,' as it is termed, broke out shortly after, during which the 'solemn league and covenant' between the two nations, for the extirpation of prelacy, was signed in the High Church, Edinburgh, in July, 1643, and twelve hundred men were sent in consequence, to assist the English parliamentary forces against Charles; but in 1645, the covenanters being routed by Montrose, at Kilsyth, Edinburgh was threatened with destruction by the marquess, unless the prisoners of the king's party were instantly released; and the city at this moment being desolated by the plague, his demands were complied with. On the 18th of May, 1650, the same Marquess of Montrose was brought a prisoner into Edinburgh, and three days after was suspened on a gallows at the Cross. Averse to republicanism, the Scots proclaimed the exiled Charles the Second as their king, which brought upon them the avenging sword of Cromwell; and in December, 1650, this renowned general was in possession of Edinburgh and its castle, but the magistrates had fled to Stirling, the head-quarters of Charles, leaving the city to be governed by thirty chosen citizens. The battle of Worcester having placed the whole of Scotland in the power of Cromwell, commissioners were sent by him from England to rule the kingdom, who arrived at Dalkeith in January, 1652; and from these the humbled citizens were obliged to obtain consent ere they could elect new magistrates. Under the sway of Cromwell Edinburgh and Leith enjoyed repose, but so greatly were they impoverished by so many years of strife, that very few of the inhabitants were in a condition to pay their debts, and the magistrates were served with a charge of horning for £550,000 Scots, which, with difficulty, they obtained time to pay. During the period of the Commonwealth there was a virtual union between the two countries, and much salutary reform was introduced in the municipal regulations. The restoration of Charles in 1660 was hailed by the town council, who, in return for a donation of £1,000 made to his majesty, received permission to levy a tax upon the citizens of one-third of a penny on each pint of ale, and twopence on each pint of wine consumed in the city; indeed, at this epoch, both loyalty and disaffection were made pretexts for amercing the citizens, the first being called a tax and the latter a fine. Adam Woodcock, at this period, was licensed by the town council to run a coach between Edinburgh and Lieth, the fare to be fourpence each person; and Baron Bailie, of Broughton, had a grant made to him of the goods and chattels of all women condemned for witchcraft. In August, 1660, the English tribunals gave place to the ancient forms of government, and the first parliament in 1661 rescinded all acts during the last twenty-three years, and restored episcopacy. Severities towards the presbyterians followed, and Scotland, in consequence, during the succeeding twenty-seven years, was in a state of insurrection and anarchy; the lawn of the prelate was stained with the blood of the presbyterian, and the slaughtered bodies of the covenanters were strewed thickly on the land, until at last the mantle of Knox proved more invincible than the mail of the cavalier. The covenanters, however, dispirited by the desertion of more than one half of their number—which never much exceeded five thousand, and fatigued by their long march, reached the Pentland hills on the 28th November, 1666, where they were overtaken by General Dalziel, with a body of cavalry. Though now reduced to eight hundred, they bravely repulsed several attacks of their assailants, but were at length overpowered and dispersed. About fifty were killed, one hundred and fifty taken prisoners—twenty of these were executed at Edinburgh, thirty-five were hanged in the country, before their own doors, and others were grievously tortured. The magistracy about this time, by bribes and entertainments, entailed a debt upon the city which to this hour is a vexatious burden to its inhabitants. The Duke of Lauderdale appears to have been a prime recipient of the corporation money. Some curious specimens of the trifling of the municipal functionaries occur at this period. Women were forbidden to were plaids on their heads on pain of seizure. The charges made at 'penny weddings' were solemnly moderated, and one James Michael Philo, physician, is authorised to erect a stage in Edinburgh, on which to practise his profession, but is discharged from any performance of rope dancing, until his claim has been examined by the 'master of the revells.' In 1678, it appears from a "list of the hail possessors (of houses) in the different parishes," taken under authority of the magistrates, that there were at this time within the royalty, 3,333 families, and that, five being the supposed average number of each, the population amounted to 16,665.

In the year 1679, James, Duke of York, took up his abode in Holyrood House, and won the affections of the citizens by the gaiety of his court, and by his conformity to their predilections; balls and masquerades were got up by the ladies in his suite, and the novel beverage tea was introduced to their parties; to the popularity acquired by James in this visit, may be, in some degree, ascribed that zeal for the Stuart cause which was manifested in 1715 and 1745. In January, 1685, an equestrian statue of Charles the Second was ordered to be erected in Parliament Close, now Parliament Square; and on the 15th of February following the flagitious original was as cold and as lifeless as the statue. A few days afterwards a stage was erected at the Cross, from which the lion king at arms, attended by all the great functionaries, proclaimed King James, and swore unto him allegiance and fealty: the pulpits became rostrums for adulation; and Viscount Melfort, one of the secretaries of state, was presented by the obsequious town council with a jewel, worth £500 sterling, for the many services he had rendered the city,—and three days afterwards with £300 cash, for delivering the city address to the king. A few months after the accession of James, the citizens beheld the unfortunate Earl of Argyll led ignominiously to the same gallows on which Montrose had suffered, a melancholy victim to the failure of the Duke of Monmouth's disastrous insurrection. The fact, which afterwards transpired, of the Earl being indebted to Heriot's hospital to the amount of £58,403. 10s. Scots, threw one ray of light upon the previous darkness of his inexplicable conduct; the corporation of Edinburgh was compelled to pay the money. The suspension of the test soon disclosed the intentions of the king; and, early in 1686, every printer and bookseller in Edinburgh was forbidden by the privy council to print or sell any book animadverting on the Romish faith; but when the officer of the privy council waited upon James Glen with this prohibition, Glen said he had 'one book in his shop which was all against popery, but which he would sell in spite of the mandate." 'What book is it?' inquired the officer. 'It is the BIBLE,' answered Glen—'the worst enemy the church of Rome ever fought against.' Tumults now became rife. The chancellor's lady and other persons of distinction, were insulted as they were returning from the celebration of mass; this led to an order from the privy council, that one of the rioters, a journeyman baker, should be whipped through the Canongate: the populace rushed to the rescue of their martyr, beat the executioner, and continued tumultuous during the night; the king's foot guards and soldiers from the castle fired upon them, and a woman and two men were killed; next day several of the captive rioters were ordered to be whipped—the council, however, took care to have musketeers and pikemen in attendance, to prevent the repetition of a rescue. A drummer was shot, for having said he could find in his heart to run his sword through some papists; and a fencing master was hanged at the Cross, merely for having drank 'confusion to papists,' and having likewise expressed his good will towards the rioters. Such were the measures of the city magistracy, in defiance of the murmurs and disgust of the citizens; and shortly afterwards we find these servile minions assuring the king that they were 'ready with their lives and fortunes to stand by his sacred person upon all occasions, and praying the continuance of his princely goodness and care towards the city.' This fawning was rewarded by the surrender to them of the impost upon ale, of which the corporation had for some time been robbed by the treasury. So zealous indeed, were the magistrates in the papal cause, that one Watson, a popish printer, having been distrained upon for rent, the articles seized were forcibly taken from the officer, and these, with their owner, conveyed to the sanctuary of Holyrood; Watson was afterwards made king's printer, which appointment was continued to his son in the reign of Queen Anne. From the records of Fountain Hall, we find that, on the 23rd November, 1686, the king's yacht arrived at Leith, with the altar, vestments, images, priests, and their appurtenances, for the popish chapel in the abbey of Holyrood. On St. Andrew's day the chapel was consecrated by holy water, and a sermon from Wederington. On the 8th of February, 1688, Ogstoun, the bookseller, was threatened for selling Archbishop Usher's sermons against the papists, and the history of the French persecutions, and all the copies were taken from him. On the 22nd March, the rules of the popish college in the abbey of Holyrood were published, inviting children to be educated gratis. But the landing of the Prince of Orange, in England, changed the scenes of this pantomime. The Presbyterians now poured into Edinburgh, and the papists rushed out—and all was uproar: the Earl of Perth, the chancellor, fled the city, and the government fell into the hands of the revolutionists. The populace assembled at beat of drum in multitudes; the abbey was attacked—the assailants were fired upon, and a dozen were killed and thrice as many wounded. This caused their retreat, but they quickly reappeared, headed by the magistrates, town-guard, train-band and heralds; another skirmish ensued, in which Wallace and his men were defeated; the abbey church and chapel were ransacked, the college of Jesuits destroyed, and the houses of the Roman catholics plundered: in short, every symbol of the scorned religion existing in the city was extirpated with a fierceness approaching to frenzy — even the wynds and closes were explored, and many religious houses therein were entered and sacked: the only class that remained true to the popish cause was the clergy, and they were the chief sufferers by the change. The privy council and magistrates veered with the shifting wind; these men, who so lately were ready with their lives and fortunes to stand by King James, with a baseness unmatched, were the first in 'offering their services to the Prince of Orange,' and the loudest in their complaints of the 'hellish attempts of Romish incendaries.'

On the 14th of March, 1689, assembled the convention of estates — the most momentous meeting that Edinburgh ever witnessed. It resolved, that James having forfeited the crown, it should be offered to William and Mary; a second result of their deliberations was the memorable 'claim of rights:' a new election of municipal officers was advised, by poll of the burgesses paying watching and warding, and liable for other public claims: several ministers were deprived of their pulpits for refusing to pray for the new sovereigns; the convention became a parliament, and the established religion was declared Presbyterian. The predicament of Edinburgh at this moment was singularly critical: on the one hand was the convention, surrounded by the masses of its supporters, armed and unarmed, including 6,000 Cameronians from the West; on the other was the castle, in the hands of the Duke of Gordon, the partisan of James, and who could, if he willed it, make the city a ruin; numerous violent royalists also paraded the streets, with Lord Balcarres and the reckless Dundee at their head—the latter, indeed, with a party of fifty horse, waiting his signal for mischief. Yet no explosion took place: Dundee quitted the city for Perthshire, first clambering up the western side of the castle rock to commune with the governor. The death of this daring foe on the 17th of July, 1689, and the surrender of the castle on the 13th of June 1690, secured the permanency of the salutary changes.

During the reign of King William, Edinburgh reposed in comparative peace; but the new civic government became jealous of the college of justice, whose members it disarmed: the gaol was filled with the disaffected — among the number were the Lords Balcarres and Kilsyth, and the atrocious Earl of Perth, and many acts were perpetrated by the new authorities which required more ingenuity than candour commonly posseses to defend. Towards the close of William's reign a trading speculation to the Isthmus of Darien cause six ships to sail out of the Frith of Forth, amid the acclamations of multitudes; and when its failure was communicated in March, 1699, the rage of the people was ungovernable, as the miscarriage of the enterprize was attributed to the influence of the king; the prisons were broken open, and many acts of violence perpetrated before the popular effervescence subsided. On Saturday, the 3rd of February, 1700, a dreadful conflagration, broke out on the south side of Parliament Square, which destroyed an extensive pile of buildings—including amongst others the Advocates' Library, the Bank of Scotland, and dislodging nearly two hundred families from their dwellings.

The Reign of Queen Anne was signalised by the event so momentous to Scotland, the 'Act of Union.' Alarming were the disturbances which manifested the unpopularity of the measure, and the period between January 11th, 1705, and January 16th, 1707, during which it was discussed, was one of clamour and outrage. The parliament and commissioners were compelled to seek the protection of the military during the ratification of the articles; many of the prognostications of the adversaries of the union were realised; the capital was soon deserted by the higher classes of its residents, and their expenditure, in consequence, transferred to the rival metropolis; and among other causes of regret was the discontinuance of the popular city pageant called, the 'riding of parliament,' which was a grand and gorgeous procession. From the 1st of May, 1707, when the Act of Union came into operation, the aspect of the Scottish capital became strikingly changed, the city ceased to improve, and its inhabitants to be joyous; for nearly half a century, with only three interruptions, Edinburgh reposed listlessly and inanimate on its lofty site, as if exhausted by the violence of its former excitements. The first disturbance of this slumber occurred in 1715, when two attempts were made by the Jacobite party to get possession of the city, both of which failed. The remarkable tumult, known by the appellation of the Porteous mob, was the second, and happened in 1736: its particulars, including the attempted rescue of Wilson, the smuggler; the firing upon the mob by Porteous, the commander of the civic militia; his trial, conviction, reprieve, and subsequent execution by the hands of the rioters; the arrest of the lord provost for his want of precaution, and the fine of £2,000 imposed upon the city as a compensation to the widow of Porteous—are all fully detailed in Sir Walter Scott's 'Heart of Mid Lothian;' and it is not the least extraordinary circumstance connected with this singular affair, that none of the actors in the tragedy have ever been discovered, although a large reward was offered. The next agitating event was the memorable invasion of Prince Charles Edward in 1745, to whom the city of Edinburgh surrendered, which was followed by the proclamation, at the Cross, of James VIII, as king of Scotland. The battle of Preston Pans quickly succeeded, terminating in favour of the Pretender, after a conflict of ten minutes duration only; it was at this battle that the good Colonel Gardiner fell. After an impolitic continuance in the city for six weeks, the chevalier departed with 6,000 troops, which after marching and wandering for six months, agitated alternately by hope and apprehension, met their final overthrow on the plains of Culloden, April 16th, 1746. Between this period and 1779 few events occurred important enough for our brief chronicle. In 1778, the mutiny of Lord Seaforth's Highland regiment, on account of their being ordered to India without payment of some arrears, and a stipulation as to the limits of their service, occasioned a considerable sensation. The mutineers ascended the lofty eminence of Arthur's Seat, where they remained encamped until an adjustment was effected by Lords Dunmore and Macdonald.

The eruption of that moral volcano, the French revolution, caused, in Scotland, as well as in the sister kingdom, a diversity of opinion. Those who hailed the emancipation of a great people from vassalage formed associations for the nurture of the principles of freedom and the diffusion of political knowledge; these were watched with jealousy by the British government, and a system of espionage was established, the treacherous agents of which incited their victims to enthusiastic imprudence, and then betrayed them to their employers. Among the numbers so denounced were Messrs. Watt, Downie, Muir, Margarot, and Gerald; the first was convicted and hanged; the others were transported; Watt had been formerly a government spy. The trials of these gentlemen, and the severity of their sentences shed no lustre upon Scottish jurisprudence; but as such transactions, we trust, will never more occur, any stronger animadversion may be inexpedient. In the latter part of 1811, during the period of the 'volunteer' mania, the lower class of the population having become demoralised and profligate, recklessly concocted a plan for the indiscriminate plunder of the citizens, and on the last night of the year a numerous gang of juvenile desperadoes sallied forth with bludgeons, and knocked down every one whose appearance gave them the chance of a booty. Resistance was ineffectual, for the police were routed, and High-street and North Bridge-street were, for hours, in the possession of the plunderers. Many persons were dangerously wounded and several mortally. Three of the delinqnents were executed in High-street, after conviction, for murder. The 15th August, 1822, will be memorable in the Scottish calendar, being the day on which George IV disembarked at the landing-place of Leith. Our limits will not permit a detail of the movements of royalty, nor of the pompous preparations which were made for its reception: the accomplishment of so much in a period so short, was a matter of wonder. Well might the monarch exclaim 'how superb,' as he gazed upon the magnificence of the New Town on one side, the majestic grandeur of the Old Town on the other, and Calton Hill in front, with myriads of his Scottish subjects on its sides, and its monumental tower on its summit. Dalkeith House had the honour of his majesty's residence, and Old Holyrood that of a levee; the castle was also inspected, and on Sunday his majesty performed his devotions in the High Church. On the 26th, his royal presence graced the ball of the Caledonian Hunt, and the next day the sovereign witnessed Rob Roy at the theatre. Neither must we omit to notice the splendid banquet prepared for his majesty in the great hall of the parliament-house, by the lord provost, magistrates, and town council: the former received the compliment of a baronetcy. On the 29th, after partaking of a repast at Hopetoun House, the king embarked on board the royal yacht at Port Edgar, near Queensferry, amid the cheering acclamations of assembled thousands; and thus closed a spectacle which will long live in recollection.

We shall now pass over a period of twenty years, and arrive at one of great excitement to the loyal citizens of Scotland's metropolis. On Monday the 29th of August, 1842, Her Majesty Queen Victoria, with her royal consort, prince Albert and suite, embarked at Woolwich, to visit the Scottish capital: on Thursday morning the approach of the royal squadron was announced by the firing of two guns, from the castle; at eight o'clock it arrived at Granton Pier and in little more than an hour after, the royal party landed on the platform erected for the occasion—amid the enthusiastic greeting of the populace. The reception of Her Majesty was in keeping with that of the generality of her subjects throughout her dominions, but we are precluded from entering into details of the particular demonstrations made in this city, which were upon a scale of grandeur unequalled in the annals of Scotland. On Tuesday morning the 6th of September, Her Majesty took her departure for the north, and she and her royal consort were received with every expression of joy and loyalty wherever they went. On Monday the 14th of September Her Majesty again passed through Edinburgh on her way to Dalkeith, for embarkation at Granton, which took place about nine o'clock, amid the acclamations of assembled thousands. On the 27t of September, 1849, Her Majesty and suite passed through Edinburgh on their journey from Balmoral Castle, to London, by railway. At twenty minutes past five o'clock, the signal was given by the electric telegraph, that Her Majesty had reached the Greenhill junction, and in a few seconds the royal train emerged from the Waverley Bridge. Upon the occasion of this 'flying visit,' but few ceremonies were observed, and these, together, occupied not more than ten minutes, when the train, consisting of twelve carriages, and trucks, drawn by the North British engine, glided slowly away, on the iron road, amid the cheers of a vast assemblage. Since the last-mentioned period, Her Majesty has paid annual visits to Scotland, and Balmoral Castle may now be reckoned amongst her palaces for occasional retirement, and has been fitted-up and embellished for the reception of royalty. On her return visit, October, 1859, the Lord Provost of Edinbugh, Sir John Melville, was knighted by Her Majesty, in the presence of a select company at Holyrood Palace.

INTERESTING RELICS OF ANTIQUITY.

Edinburgh Castle is situated on the western and rugged extremity of the central hill, on which the ancient part of the city is built. It is of great antiquity, the rock is supposed to have been first fortified about the year 617 by Edwin, son of Ælla, king of Northumberland. The area of the rock, on which the castle stands, measures about seven statute acres; it is elevated three hundred and eighty-three feet above the level of the sea, and is accessible only on the eastern side, the others being nearly perpendicular. Within are several batteries, magazines, storerooms, and arsenals, for upwards of thirty thousand stand of arms; barracks, containing lodging for two thousand men with their officers, and every other requisite for the mustering and accommodation of a numerous garrison. In a small room on the ground floor, Mary Queen of Scots, was delivered, on the 19th of June, 1566, of her only son James VI, of Scotland, afterwards James I, of England, in whom were united the crowns of the two kingdoms. This room was long part of the canteen, and accessible to strangers, but since her majesty visited the fortress, it has been separated from that house. The oak panels have been renewed after their pristine form, and copies of original portraits of Queen Mary and her son placed in it. For a long period it was the general belief of the people of Scotland, that the regalia (placed in the castle in 1707) had been surreptitiously removed to London: by virtue of a royal mandate a search was made in 1818, when a large oaken chest was found, in what is now called the 'Crown room,' firmly secured with locks; these having been forced, the regalia, consisting of the crown, sceptre, and sword of state, were discovered carefully wrapped in fine linen cloth. They are of elegant workmanship, and in perfect preservation. The crown is of pure gold, highly ornamented with precious stones: the sceptre is of silver, double gilt, with a stem two feet long, of an hexagonal form, divided by three buttons, or knobs; it is surmounted with a crystal globe, two inches and a quarter in diameter; its whole length is thirty-four inches. The sword of state is five feet long, and of exquisite workmanship; the pommel and hilt are silver gilt, and fifteen inches in length: the traverse is seventeen inches and a half. The scabbard is of crimson velvet, and richly ornamented. This sword was presented by Pope Julius II to James IV. The lord-treasurer's rod of office is of silver gilt and of beautiful execution. These relics, together with a ruby ring set with diamonds, worn by Charles I at his Scottish coronation; the golden collar of the Order of the Garter, sent by Elizabeth to James VI; and the badge of the Order of the Thistle, set with diamonds, bequeathed by Cardinal York to George IV, are exhibited three hours in the day—(tickets of admission may be obtained gratuitously, at the Royal Exchange). Edinburgh Castle has a governor, generally a native nobleman; a barrack master, a fort major, a store keeper, a master gunner, and a chaplain. Queen Margaret, the widow of Malcolm Canmore, died here in 1093, a few days after her husband was slain; and in the same year it was besieged by Donald Bane, brother to king Malcolm, assisted by the Norwegians. William the Lion occasionally resided in it, and in 1174 it was delivered up to the English, pledged for his ransom, when taken prisoner at the battle of Alnwick, but shortly after restored on his marriage with the daughter of Viscount Beaumont. In 1239 the daughter of Henry III, of England marrying Alexander III, had this castle assigned for her residence. During the contest between Bruce and Baliol, in 1296, the castle was besieged and taken by the English. In 1297 it was dismantled by Sir William Wallace; having been repaired it again fell into the hands of the English, when Robert Bruce caused it, with the other recovered fortresses, to be demolished. It was in ruins in 1336, when it served for a retreat to Count Namur's forces, defeated by the Earl of Moray. It remained in ruins till 1337, when King Edward III gave orders for its being re built, and placed a strong garrison in it. In 1341 it was surprised by William Douglas. In 1371 David II died in it. During the reign of Robert III the burgesses of Edinburgh had the singular privilege conferred upon them of erecting dwellings within the castle, subject to no other limitation than that they should be persons of good fame. In 1400, the castle was repeatedly assaulted by Henry IV, of England. It was seized by the Earl of Douglas in 1416, but was restored by him in 1418. After the murder of James I, at Perth, 1436, his queen and the royal family took refuge in the castle. James II, in the year 1438, was detained here by Sir William Crichton, the chancellor, in a sort of honourable durance, till by a stratagem of the queen mother, he was conveyed, with his own consent, out of the castle in a wordrobe chest. Here too, William, sixth earl of Douglas and his brother David were, in 1440, basely murdered by Crichton, who envied the Earl's riches and dreaded his power. James III was also confined in this castle by his subjects for nine months, till he was released, in the year 1482, by the Duke of Albany, who, assisted by the citizens of Edinburgh, surprised the castle. It was converted into a state prison for James V and his brother, while infants. In 1573, this fortress was held for the unfortunate Queen Mary, at that time a prisoner in Fotheringay Castle, by the faithful and heroic Kirkcaldy, of Grange, who resolutely defended it, for thirty-three days, against the united efforts of the Scots and English. When the fortifications were battered down, the blockhouse on the east taken by assault, every supply of water exhausted, and the garrison in a mutiny, he made an honourable capitulation—not to the regent Morton, but to Sir William Drury, commander of the English forces: but Queen Elizabeth, regardless alike of her general's honour and her own, gave them up to the regent's disposal. In 1650 the castle sustained a siege of above two months against the parliamentary army, commanded by Cromwell, and, at last, yielded on honourable terms. After the resignation of James II, at the close of 1688, it was long held for him by the Duke of Gordon, with a weak and ill-provided garison. In 1715 an unsuccessful attempt was made by the rebels to surprise this fortress; and in 1745, although the Highlanders were masters of the town, they did not venture to attack this post. During the late war, a number of French prisoners was confined in it. Processional visits were made to the castle by George IV, in 1822, and by Victoria in 1842. In March 1829, the ancient piece of ordnance, called 'Mons Meg, was restored, having been removed from the fortress in 1754; this curious gun is supposed to have been fabricated at Mons in the fifteenth century. Although now useless, it is held in high estimation, and is mounted on an elegant new carriage, sent from Woolwich.

THE PALACE OF HOLYROOD HOUSE stands at the eastern extremity of the city, and at the bottom of that part of the High-street called the Canongate. It is a beautiful building, of a quadrangular form, with an open court, which is ninety-four feet square in the centre. The more ancient parts of this magnificent edifice, consisting of the north-west towers were built by James V. about the year 1528; though it seems to have been a royal residence for ages before. During the minority of Queen Mary, the Palace of Holyrood House was burnt, as well as the city, by the English forces under the Earl of Hertford; soon after it was repaired, and enlarged beyond its present size. At that time it is said to have consisted of no fewer than five courts, the most westerly of which was the largest. Great part of the Palace of Holyrood House was burnt by the soldiers of Cromwell; but, at the Restoration, it was again repaired, and altered into its present form by King Charles II. The paintings of the Scottish monarchs were much defaced by the English soldiers in 1745. In the same year Prince Charles Stuart took up his residence for some time in this mansion of his forefathers; and hither the inhabitants of Edinburgh repaired to pay the contribution levied on the city. Of this palace the Duke of Hamilton is the hereditary keeper; he has apartments within it, as have also several others of the Scottish nobility; notwithstanding which, a great part of the building remained uninhabited, till, in 1793, apartments were fitted up for the residence of the Compte d'Artois, the Ducs' d'Angouleme and Berri, and others of the French exiled nobility. In 1831, the Compte d'Artois returned to his old apartments, after an absence of thirty years, under the title of Charles X, King of France, with several of his family, but soon quitted them, and departed for Germany, where he died in 1836. Previously to the visit of George IV to Scotland the apartments in the palace were fitted up for his use; and, though he resided at Dalkeith, a levee, drawing-room, and meetings of privy council, were held here. The apartments of the Queen of Scots and the chapel are shown to visitors; the former contain her bed, several articles of furniture, pieces of needle-work by her own fingers, &c. The palace is now fitted up as a residence for her present majesty. The armour, and the boots and gloves which Darnley wore when he slew Rizzio, are placed in a small apartment in which the deed was done.

Adjacent to the palace stand the ruins of the church, which belonged to the abbey of Holyrood House. In 1128 David I founded this abbey by a charter, the original of which is the archives of the city; it was bestowed on the canons regular of St. Augustine, who had also granted to them the church of Edinburgh Castle, with those of St. Cuthbert, Corstorphine, and Libberton, in the county of Mid-Lothian, and of Airth, in Stirlingshire; the priories of St. Mary's Isle, in Galloway; of Blantyre, in Clydesdale; of Rowadill, in Ross; and three others in the Western Islands. They had also portions of land assigned them in different parts, with a most extensive jurisdiction: and so many other grants and privileges were bestowed on this abbey, that it was deemed the richest foundation in Scotland. In 1177 a national council was held in this abbey, on the arrival of a papal legate, to take cognisance of a dispute between the English and Scottish clergy, as to the submission of the latter to the ecclesiastical jurisdiction of the English prelates. In 1332 the army of Edward plundered it, and it was burnt in 1383 by the forces of Richard II. In 1544, during the irruption of the Earl of Hertford, the abbey was nearly reduced to ashes, and nothing was left but the nave, of which the ruins still remain. At the Reformation and Revolution it equally suffered, and in 1768 the roof fell in. The royal chapel is built of freestone, and is of an oblong form, about one hundred and forty-eight feet from east to west, and sixty-six from north to south. This was the nave of the original church, which, when entire, consisted of a centre and two aisles. In the south-east corner of the chapel is the royal vault, in which were deposited the remains of David II, James II, Prince Arthur, third son of James IV, James V and his consort, Magdalen, with their second son, Arthur, Duke of Albany, and Henry Lord Darnley. This repository of the royal dead did not escape the fury of the Revolution; part of the leaden coffins was then carried away, and the remainder at the clearing out of the rubbish, after the roof fell, in 1768. The area of the church is used as a cemetery. The precincts of the abbey of Holyrood House, including an extensive part enclosed by James V., are a sanctuary for insolvent debtors. A very handsome fountain was erected in 1859, opposite to the front of the royal palace. This fountain is a copy of an old and very beautiful one still standing in the courtyard of the ancient palace of Linlithgow.

THE MINT OF SCOTLAND.—In the lane called Gray's close stands the little court of buildings formerly occupied by the Mint of Scotland. They were erected in 1574, but no money has been struck since the union of the two kingdoms; the officers are, however, still maintained. The first coins seem to have been struck in Scotland in the time of Alexander I, who commenced his reign in 1107. These coins were thin pieces of silver called pennies; and this was the silver coin in use until the reign of Queen Mary, who introduced reals or royals, afterwards called crowns. The oldest gold coins bear the name of Robert, but whether of Robert I is not fully ascertained. James V, in his bonnet-pieces, contracted the surface and increased the thickness of the coinage. The general names for gold coin in Scotland were florins or nobles, and lions. When copper was first coined in Scotland is uncertain; James III, however, in 1466, procured an act from his first parliament for coining copper money, four to the penny. Pennies, worth one-twelfth of an English penny, were coined by James VI., and two-penny pieces, or baubees, after the Restoration. To the prince formerly belonged the exclusive right of coining money, and all mines of gold and silver; but the manufacture of currency was not confined to the capital, as many coins bear the name of Aberdeen, Perth, Stirling, Dundee, Linlithgow, and Dumbarton. The principal instruments used in coining, before the Restoration (when the mill and screw were introduced), were a hammer and steel dies. It is conjectured that the total sum of money in circulation, at the union, amounted to upwards of £900,000 sterling.

The PARLIAMENT HOUSE, or, as it is now designated, the OUTER HOUSE, is a spacious hall one hundred and twenty-two feet in length, and forty in breadth; the ceiling is of massive carved oak, and the floor is also of oak, arranged in panels. This apartment now forms a handsome promenade, where gentlemen of the legal profession meet daily during session, to transact business, and attend their cases pending before the court. At the south end is a large and beautiful window of stained glass, on which is depicted a female figure of Justice. There are in the hall four marble statues—one by Roubillac, of Lord President Forbes, in his judicial robes; one of the first Lord Melville; and another of Lord President Blair, by Chantrey; also one of Lord Chief Baron Dundas, of Arniston. Within this hall was held the great banquet, given by the corporation of the city to George IV., on his visit to Scotland, in 1822. Leading from the hall are the court-rooms, in which the first and second divisions of the court of session are held; there are also entrances from it leading to the libraries of the advocates, and writers to the signet. This noble hall, with the justiciary, exchequer, and jury courts, the Union Bank of Scotland, and the offices of the police commisssioners, form a group called Parliament-square—in the centre of which is an equestrian statue of Charles II; the figure, which is in Roman costume, was raised in 1685, at an outlay of £1,000.

The COUNTY BUILDINGS stand at the extremity of the new library rooms of the advocates and writers to the signet. The general plan is taken from one of the finest models of antiquity—the temple of Erectheus, in Athens, while the principal entrance is in the style of the choragic monument of Thrasyllus. The length of the eastern front is nearly one hundred and three feet, and of the northern front fifty-seven. The principal floor contains a large hall, fifty feet in length and twenty-seven in breadth; a court-room forty-four feet long, thirty feet wide, and twenty-eight feet high; a committee-room, &c. Above are offices for the sheriff, sheriff's clerks, &c. The building was finished in 1819, at an expense of £15,000.

JOHN KNOX'S HOUSE.—This venerable habitation, once occupied by the dauntless reformer, Knox, is a conspicuous object in passing from High-street towards the Canongate, as it projects at the terminating corner of the former, narrowing the street several feet at the point called the Netherbow. On its angle there is placed a small bust of this stern opposer of popery and prelacy, stretching forth his arms from a pulpit, and pointing to a stone above, on which is the name of the Deity in Greek, Latin, and English; and it is recorded that he often preached from one of the many windows which enlighten this ancient but not inelegant structure. In consequence of the dilapidated state of the building, its removal was, some short time since, contemplated; a subscription, however, has been raised, to avert an act that would have been greatly deplored by many.

EARL OF MORAY'S HOUSE.—This handsome mansion stands not far from the above, on the south side of the Canongate, and is commonly called 'Regent Murray's House,' but the style of the edifice is in too good taste for that age: it was probably erected during the reign of James VI. or Charles I. and occupied by the Earls of Moray, and subsequently by Lord Chancellor Seafield, which occasioned many meetings to be held here during the deliberations upon the great question of the union; and many of the signatures to the ratification of the treaty were affixed in the summer-house of the garden, now a hothouse, a drawing of which is given in some editions of Sir Walter Scott's 'Tales of a Grandfather.' In the garden, at the back of the house grows a venerable thorn of uncommon size, which tradition affirms was planted by Queen Mary; but this, from the modern aspect of the mansion, is questionable. The house is now occupied as the normal school of the Free church.

PALACE OF MARY OF GUISE, AND RELICS OF OTHER OLD BUILDINGS.—The wreck of this structure, once tenanted by the Queen of James V. regent of Scotland in 1550, now forms Blyth's-close, on the north side of the Castle-hill, consisting of a group of the most squalid and wretched tenements in the Old Town. The building on the right, at the bottom, was the oratory, and that on the left was the principal section of the palace: over the doorway a cypher, formed out of her initials, is still to be traced, and the inscription Laus et honor Deo. A house, surrounded by a grove, stands near the same spot, built by Allan Ramsay, the poet, and afterwards occupied by his son, portrait painter to George III. Within an obscure court, in the Westbow, still exists the former abode of Major Weir, the reputed wizard, who was burnt in 1678—a name still held in abomination by the Scottish peasantry; and on the opposite side of Westbow is a house, divided into many wretched tenements, but which, prior to this subdivision, contained rooms capacious enough for balls and entertainments during its occupation by the noble family of Somerville, whose arms and motto, In Domino confido, still appear above the doorway. In the centre of the wide street called the Grassmarket, the paving stones are arranged in the form of a small St. Andrew's cross to mark the spot on which stood the fatal 'gallows-tree,' during the century previous to 1785; and also whence the spirit of many a martyr to the cause of Presbytery has winged its way to glory, during that persecuting period when Charles II. and James II. attempted to enforce prelacy upon its scorners. To the west of Candlemaker-row is the cemetery of Greyfriars church, formerly the Scottish Westminster Abbey. George Buchanan, Sir George Mackenzie, Colin Maclaurin, Allan Ramsay, Adam, the architect, Robertson, the historian, Blair, author of the popular sermons, and Alexander Henderson, chief delegate to the great Westminster assembly, and author of the Assembly's Catechism, are a few of the eminent men whose remains are here interred.

DESCRIPTION OF THE CITY AND ITS INSTITUTIONS, MONUMENTS, &c.

The city now consists of two parts, called the Old Town and the New, singularly contrasted in their aspects; the ancient portion, venerably majestic, covers an elevated ridge, gently sloping from the rocky eminence that sustains the castle, on the west, to the base of a group of hills, at the eastern extremity, named 'Arthur's Seat,' Salisbury Crags,' and 'the Calton Hill.' The modern division gracefully spreads itself over a plain, which declines gradually towards the north, till it joins the town and port of Leith, on the shore of the Frith of Forth. These two divisions are separated by deep hollows or ravines, and the main communication is by bridges or mounds thrown across them. To the spectator, viewing the city from either of the eminences named, the situation appears strikingly adapted to afford security in times of discord and to give display to architectural beauty in the happier days of peace. For several centuries prior to the year 1763, Edinburgh had made little effort to enlarge its boundaries; but, since that epoch in its history, its extension has been marvellous; and Provost Drummond had the honour of giving the first impulse to this progression, when, on the 21st of October, in the year just mentioned, he laid the first stone of the 'North Bridge,' the completion of which formed a ready connection with the site which the New Town now occupies; the North Loch, which this bridge bestrides, had been previously drained. In 1767 an act was passed for extending the royalty over the fields to the north; the New Town was immediately commenced, and the buildings proceeded with so much rapidity, that, in 1771, St. Andrew's square, and the streets in direct junction with it, were nearly finished; since which, streets, squares, places, terraces, crescents, circuses and public edifices, have arisen in rapid succession, wholly built of stone—an assemblage which, for regularity and beauty, will bear a comparrison with the most magnificent cities of Europe. The NEW TOWN of Edinburgh now consists of three parts. The first of these divisions, which stands upon the horizontal ridge on the north side of the Old Town, is laid out in the form of a parallelogram. The principal longitudinal streets are three—Prince's-street, George-street, and Queen-street; and these are intersected by six others. George-street, which is one hundred and fifteen feet broad, has, perhaps, no rival in the grandeur of its appearance, the elegance of its architecture, or its exact uniformity: on the east it is terminated by a beautiful square, called St. Andrew's; on the west by another, of superb buildings, named Charlotte-square; and it is ornamented by two statues, executed by Chantrey—one of George IV. the other of Mr. Pitt—the latter greatly superior to the former in dignity of expression and attitude. In the centre of St. Andrew's square stands the elegant column, erected by subscription, chiefly of naval officers, to the memory of the late Lord Melville: this noble pillar, the design of which was copied chiefly from Trajan's column at Rome, was begun in April, 1821, and completed in August, 1822; the entire height of the pedestal and pillar is 136 feet 4 inches, and the statue on the top 14 feet additional. That part of the North Loch which lies to the west of the mound was enclosed in 1821; the ground was drained, planted with trees, shrubs and flowers, and walks formed. Queen-street gardens, comprising the space between Queen-street and Abercrombie-place, had, previously to this period, been laid out by the proprietors of the houses, in a shrubbery with walks, though an act of parliament for this purpose was not procured till 1822. The central street of the second new town, is calledGreat King-street,and is terminated like George-street, by large open areas; one of these is named Drummond-place,the other the Royal circus. A third section of the new town occupies the site formerly the park of the Earl of Moray, between Charlotte-square and the water of Leith, comprising Moray-place, Ainslie-place Randolph-crescent, and many superb streets. A noble bridge of four arches has been erected in this vicinity, across the water of Leith, called Dean-bridge, opening a communication from Queensferry-street to the parks on the other side, in which detached villas are sprinkled in ornate diversity, with pleasure grounds and shrubberies attached. The eastern new town comprehends the erections contiguous to the greatly improved Leith-walk, including the two magnificent terraces, and the crescent encircling Calton-hill, which towers above, bearing on its summit its observatory and a pompous group of monumental architecture. In a line with Prince's-street is the grand approach to the city by the Regent's bridge, which bestrides the unsightly district called the Low Calton. The act of parliament authorising the erection of this bridge, and the formation of the road, the most stupendous and useful of the improvements of Edinburgh, was passed in 1814; the bridge was finished in March, 1819. The arch over the Low Calton is fifty feet wide, forty-five feet in height on the north side, and fifty-four feet on the south; the roadway is formed of reversed arches, which support the rocky materials of which it is composed; the bridge is ornamented at its centre by Corinthian pillars and open arches in the line of the adjoining buildings, called Waterloo-place. Immediately adjoining is the new post-office, now being erected on the site of the old theatre royal, Prince's-street,—this handsome building will greatly add to the beauty of the city, as well as the convenience of the postal service. The southern district of the city occupies the rising ground on the opposite side of the central ridge. The buildings in this quarter, contain a mixture of ancient and modern architecture: of the former description are the suburbs of Potter-row and Pleasance; of the latter are George's-square, Brown-square, and Argyll-square—George's-square, by far the most extensive of any in this quarter. In the neighbourhood are elegant mansions, genteel streets, and pleasant walks.

The Old Town of Edinburgh has been so largely noticed in the preceding article, that it will not be necessary to say much about it here. The loftiness of its houses, built entirely of stone, the length and width of its main line of streets, and the elevation of its castle, give it an air of solemn grandeur. The Lawnmarket, High-street and Canongate, form a continuous line between the castle to the palace of Holyrood, varying from ninety to fifty feet in breadth. From this line descend in parallel lines, countless numbers of alleys and lanes, called closes and wynds; very many of which—especially of the former, are steep, narrow, dark and filthy. Rapid improvement is, however, happily being effected,—at least so far as the new town is concerned,—and before many years, if improvement progresses in the same ratio as during the last ten, it is confidently expected nearly all the filthy closes and purlieus will have disappeared, to give place to neat and substantial, if not elegant, houses. South Bridge-street and Nicholson-street is a second handsome line, running in a southern direction from High-street, ornamented by the university, the college of surgeons, and other respectable structures. The town declines gradually from the castle, so that the parts near Holyrood are comparatively low.

In every part of the city vestiges may be discovered of by-gone days, and specimens of the architecture of different periods,some which have been already noticed. The venerable and beautiful cross, once standing on ths south side of High-street, near the High church, has long since been removed; so also have the tolbooth (or the 'Heart of Mid-Lothian'),the Netherbow port, the Old guard, the Luckenbooths, and the venerable edifices in Parliament-close; the five former were demolished by man, the latter by fire. The stranger, on entering the Old Town, by the earthen mound, cannot but be struck with the altitude of the houses towering before him to the height of nine storeys. To the left is the noble building appropriated to the Bank of Scotland.

Monuments.—The Monument to Lord Nelson.—This memorial, which stands on the highest rocky eminence on the Chalton Hill, is a circular tower, one hundred feet high, its base being 356 feet above the level of the sea; visitors are permitted to ascend it. This is a conspicuous object from many parts of the city.—The*Equestrian Statue of the Duke of Wellington* (by Steele), is placed in front of the Register Office, Prince's-street. It was erected by public subscription, and represents the 'Iron Duke' directing his forces on the field of battle.—A fine bronze Statue(by Chantrey), of William Pitt, stands in the centre of George-street, where it is intersected by Frederick-street; another statue, by the same artist, Francis Chantrey, of George IV, with royal robes and sceptre, occupies a place in George-street also.—The monumental tributes to Professor Playfair, and Dugald Stewart are contiguous. One of Burns, the Scottish poet, has been erected on the southern side of the hill, nearly opposite the high school; and on the east of the post office is the Calton burying-ground, on which is a monument to Hume, the historian. The column and statue of Lord Melville have been noticed in our mention of St. Andrew's-square: in the same square opposite the Royal Bank, is a fine equestrian statue of the Earl of Hopetoun.—The National Monument of Scotland, which was commenced in 1822, to commemorate our victories during the late war, was abandoned for want of funds, the twelve columns which decorate the summit of the Calton Hill, bearing the semblance of a ruin, are all there is to show for an expenditure of £13,000, more than £1,000 a column. The foundation stone was laid by commissioners specially appointed by George IV as patron. The original plan was to construct an edifice bearing some resemblance to the renowned Parthenon of Athens, by which the 'modern Athens' would be made to assume a still more prominent feature of the ancient city.—Sir Walter Scott's Monument.—The foundation stone of this beautiful structure was laid in Prince's-street Gardens, opposite St. David-street, on Saturday the 15th of August, 1840. The day was observed throughout the city as a general holidry; the procession formed in honour of the occasion was most imposing, and included more than two thousand members of the various masonic lodges; the civic authorities and great numbers of the nobility and gentry of the land. The grand ceremony of the inauguration of this monument, which took place in August, 1846, was one of the most exciting and generally interesting scenes that ever was witnessed within this city, and the number attending far exceeded those present at the laying of the foundation stone. On the report of the first gun the screens which had concealed the statue of the once 'Great Unknown,' which is placed in the space formed by the open central tower fell instantly, when a long, loud, and simultaneous cheer from all beholders testified their delight, and the appreciation of the sculptor's art. The design of the monument is by the late Mr. G. M. Kemp, who died during its erection. It is a great ornament to the city, and combines the beauties of the most admired specimens of the monumental cross. The erection covers an area of fifty-five feet square, and rises to the height of one hundred and eighty feet. The four principal arches that support the central tower resemble those of the transept of a Gothic cathedral, and the lower arches on the diagonal abutments, are copied from the narrow north aisle of Melrose Abbey. It is covered by a grooved roof copied from the compartments still entire of the roof of Melrose choir; and that celebrated abbey is freely followed as a model in many of its details. Here almost 'breathe in stone' several of the characters delineated in the author's poems and novels—the figure of 'Prince Charles Stuart' is seen over the triumphal arch—'Meg Merrilies' is seen looking eastward—the 'Last Minstrel' fills the western niche, while, on the south, is recognised 'The Lady of the Lake.'

CLUB HOUSES.—The superb edifice erected in Prince's-street, for the occupation of the New Club, is another graceful ornament to the 'modern Athens.' The Caledonian United Service Club is situated in Queen-street; the Northern Club in George-street.

FUEL, WATER, &c.—Edinburgh is now well supplied with coal; the different railway companies, the Union canal, and the neighbouring pits, constantly pouring in an ample quantity for the large consumption. The city receives a copious supply of water from Glencorse, Swanston, Comiston, Listonshiells, and Bavelaw springs; and within the last year a large addition to the supply has been made from the Colzium springs, about sixteen miles from Edinburgh. The supply is now constant, and almost entirely of the finest spring water; it is under the management of an incorporated company. There is a large reservoir in the city, on the Castle-hill, for the purpose of regulating the constant service. The company was incorporated in 1819, previous to which the supply was under the management of the Corporation. Edinburgh is illuminated with coal gas, produced by two companies.

THE GENERAL POST OFFICE is an elegant building, in Waterloo Place, four storeys high, with a spacious saloon on the ground floor; but in a short while this building will be vacated in consequence of a large and more appropriate building being required for this important service, and as before stated a new post-office is now being erected on the site of the Theatre Royal, Princes-street. The regulations of this establishment are given in another part of the Directory. The Stamp Office occupies a spacious building in Waterloo-place, and as well as the Post Office, is decorated with the royal arms. The Excise Office also occupies a part of this building. The Tax Office is in the same building with the Stamp Office, and is conducted by a comptroller and his assistant, five clerks, and a solicitor, besides several surveyors. The Royal Exchange is in High-street; it is quadrangular, and surrounded with offices, among the number are the city chambers, charter house, chamberlains and session clerks. The Corn Exchange stands in a part of the old town called the Grassmarket, and is a neat and commodious building. The Cattle Market is held in its immediate neighbourhood.

TRADE AND TRANSIT.—Notwithstanding its favourable position Edinburgh possesses but few manufactures—still there are some departments in which it may justly boast a superiority. Among these may be mentioned linens, shawls and carpets, tartans, in silk and woollen, cabinet work, &c. In the article of shawls, Paisley, now takes the lead, but those of the city are still in considerable demand. Large quantities of printing types of an excellent description, and lithographic stones are exported; and the printing and publishing business is carried on to a prodigious extent, and employs some thousands of hands. Edinburgh ale has long been famous, and there are many extensive breweries in the city that send immense quantites to England. In banking, Edinburgh takes a high stand, and her establishments are alike celebrated for their sagacity, their integrity, and their monetary precision, whilst their branches are spread all over Scotland. The agencies are multifarious — in fire and life assurance, there are many original establishments, of high standing, and these have branches opened in the principal towns throughout the United Kingdom. The buildings devoted to Banking and Insurance transactions are most of them of a first-class order—the Bank of Scotland, Bank-street; the Commercial and the Clydesdale Banks, George-street; the British Linen Company, and the Royal Bank of Scotland, St. Andrew Square, are exceedingly commodious and elegant buildings, elaborately decorated in the most artistic style. The Scottish Widows' Fund, formerly the office of the Western Bank; the Life Association, Princes-street (one of the most prominent amongst the buildings erected by the public companies); the Standard Assurance Co., the Caledonian Insurance Co., the Royal, the Edinburgh, the Scottish Union, and the Alliance offices are all of them splendid buildings, and most of them present architectural features of a high order. Several of the other assurance companies also have erected handsome buildings such as the North British, the English and Scottish Law Life, and the British Guarantee, Princes-street: the Scottish Provident and the Scottish National, Saint Andrew Square. It may not be out of place to remark here that the business of the Scotch offices is mostly confined to life assurance and annuties, and their aggregate annual income is at present (1859) not less than two millions sterling, and their invested funds amount to upwards of three millions sterling. From Edinburgh there are many means of transit to all parts of the United Kingdom, supplied by the rail, the road, the sea, and inland navigation. Among these, the modern appliance to travelling has, to a wide extent, included this portion of the empire in its bensfits; and railways now intersect the country from east to west, and from north to south—connecting its capital with almost every city and town in England and Scotland. The principal lines are, the North British (by Berwick), and the Caledonian (by Carlisle), to London — the Edinburgh and Glasgow; the Dundee, Perth, and Aberdeen, and the Edinburgh and Bathgate are lines, the destinations of which are indicated by their names. There are besides various branches, that connect places with the trunk lines. A valuable means of water carriage is furnished by the Union Canal, between Edinburgh and Glasgow, but the traffic on it has much diminished since the opening of railways. The basin of the canal is situated about half a mile south-west of the castle, and is called Port Hopetoun, the completion of it in 1822, caused a great metamorphosis in this quarter of the city, which, once so rural, is now environed by wharfs and warehouses.

MUNICIPAL, LEGAL, and NATIONAL INSTITUTIONS AND COURTS OF LAW.

The chief magistrate of Edinburgh is the Lord Provost, whose office, both as it respects its dignity and its duties resembles that of the lord mayor of London, while the functions of the four baillies are analagous to those of the aldermen. The town council is composed of twenty-five members, elected by the several wards into which the city is divided, one-third part of whom go out annually in rotation. The treasurer, the dean of guild, and the convenor of trades are also office bearers of high consideration. There are fourteen incorporated trades—which we shall briefly notice in the following order:—The Surgeons, with whom the Barbers were formerly associated, were constituted by a 'Seal of Cause' in 1505, and several Crown Charters subsequently. The barbers were separated from them in 1722 by decree of the Court of Session; and in 1778, the surgeons were incorporated by royal charter under the title of the 'Royal College of Surgeons.' The Hall for the meetings of this society is in Nicolson-street, and is an elegant apartment; and the museums belonging to the body are extensive and valuable; consisting chiefly of anatomical and pathological preparations. The Goldsmiths, formerly attached to the Hammermen, were constituted by a Seal of Cause in 1581; their Hall is in South Bridge-street. The Skinners or Glovers, incorporated in 1586, have their Hall in Skinner's-close. The Furriers were formed by Act of Council in 1593; and the Hammermen in 1483—the latter first consisted of blacksmiths, goldsmiths, lorimers, saddlers, cutlers, and armourers. The goldsmiths were separated from them in 1581; but they have since received an addition to their number, which has increased the trades belonging to this corporation to seventeen. They meet in the chapel of St. Mary Magdalen, in the Cowgate. The Wrights and Masons were constituted in 1475; but by a decree of the court of session, in 1703, the bowmakers, glaziers, plumbers, and upholsterers were added to the masons; and to the wrights were attached the painters, slaters, sieve-wrights, and coopers. This incorporation assembles in St. Mary's Chapel, Burnet's-close. The Tailors were incorporated in 1500; to this society anciently belonged the superiority and direction of all the tailors within the suburbs of Edinburgh and the town of Leith; and they still retain superiority over those in the more ancient suburbs. The Bakers were in existence as a corporate body before 1522, but the exact period of their constitution is unknown. The Fleshers (or Butchers) were formed in 1488; the Cordwainers (or Shoemakers) in 1475; the Websters (or Weavers) in 1530: and the Hatters in 1684. The Bonnet Makers were incorporated in 1500; and in 1684 the trade of Lister (or Dyer) was united with them, but the original name is still retained. The CandleMakers were chartered by the magistrates in 1517 and confirmed by royalty in 1597; and again in 1695. The Burgh of Canongate, though an integral part of Edinburgh, is governed by its own local officers, and has its distinct incorporation of trades. The former are baillies, a treasurer, clerks, a procurator fiscal, and an assessor; and the latter comprise the eight following trades:—Skinnermen, Tailors, Wrights, Bakers, Shoemakers, Weavers, Fleshers and Barbers. The Dean of Guild Court grants licenses for the erection of buildings, and condemns insecure ones. The magistrates of Edinburgh hold criminal and civil courts; and there is a small debt court held in the council-chamber every Monday morning at ten o'clock.

The National Gaol is situated on the south side of the Calton Hill; it was completed in 1817, and is in the Saxon style of architecture; the length of it is 194 feet, and the depth 40; it has four storeys, and in the centre is a chapel and a house for the governor, from which he can observe all that passes within—the system of classification being adopted; but it is to be regretted that debtors as well as criminals should be immured within the same walls. Separated from this prison by a high wall, is the Bridewell, with the house of the governor in front; which efficient personage, from a dark apartment, can observe the movements of the inmates without being visible himself. Connected with the discipline of this prison is a treadmill. The Lock-up House is at the back of the parliament house, and is for the reception of offenders under examination; for the refractory in the police court; for those unable to accomplish bail or fines; and for the unhappy convicts to pass the last mournful night in, prior to their execution. The Canongate Tolbooth is a gloomy antique-looking building, not much unlike its defunct rival, 'the Heart of Mid-Lothian.' There is a Latin inscription on the front, bearing the date of 1591. The Police Establishment was re-modelled in 1822, and is greatly improved in efficiency; it consists of thirty-two general delegates, elected by the inhabitants of the thirty-two wards, into which the city and suburbs are divided. Each ward has also two resident commissioners; all housekeepers or shopkeepers, paying £10, or upwards of rent annually, are entitled to vote. In nineteen of the wards a person paying £20 rent is eligible for a commissioner, in the other eleven £30 is the qualification; in addition to these commissioners there are magistrates and sheriffs. A criminal court is held daily, upon the plan of the London police offices, where a baillie presides, and the sheriff holds a similar court every day for offences out of the bounds of the royalty. The executive part of the establishment is performed by a superintendent, four lieutenants and other officers, such as inspectors of lighting, &c.; and their efficiency is exhibited in the improved illumination, cleanliness, and security of the city.

Before the Scottish Burgh Reform Act--which passed in 1833, the corporation of Edinburgh was of a close character, though not altogether without an admixture of popular representation. Since the passing of this act, the city has been divided into five wards or districts, with special places for polling. The city returns two members to the imperial parliament, and the shire at large one—the gentleman sitting for the city are, the Lord Advocate the Right Hon. James Moncrieff, and Adam Black, Esq.; the county member is the Right Hon. the Earl of Dalkeith.

COURTS OF LAW AND LEGAL INSTITUTIONS.—College of Justice.—This incorporated body, constituted in 1532, as has been stated in our historical narrative, comprehends all the functionaries connected with the supreme courts, including the judges (who are styled its senators), the faculty of advocates, writers to the signet, solicitors, clerks to the judges, extractors, and the keepers of the differents departments. This important body, among other privileges, enjoys that of exemption from the assessments of the town council, and also the annuity tax, originally conferred to induce a permanent sitting of the court in Edinburgh.

The Court of Session, and Teind Court.—The former the highest civil court in Scotland, is a court of law and of equity, in which preside thirteen judges, separated into inner and outer houses. The inner house is divided into first and second divisions; in the former, eight lords; and in the latter, five who are lords ordinary. The presiding judge in the first division is the lord president, and in the second division, the lord chief justice clerk. To one or other of the ordinaries, all cases come, in the first instance, but can be carried by appeal to the collective lords of the 'inner house,' as it is termed, but to that division only to which the ordinary was attached who first took cognisance of the case. The office of 'lord ordinary of the bills' is held, for a specified time, by one of the judges, or, during vacation, it is taken in rotation by all except the presidents. This high functionary sits permanently, either at his residence, or in the Bill-chamber at the Registrar House, exercising the functions of supreme magistrate in all civil matters; and as all warrants require the sanction of the court of session before her majesty's signet is affixed, they are brought, in the shape of what is technically called 'bills,' to the lord ordinary, or his deputy, for assent, by which means he can suspend or affirm the judgment of the inner courts; he also grants deliverances or sequestrations, under the Bankrupt Act. By a recent act, the power of trial by jury is conferred on the court of session, to the extent of trying issues as to matters of fact. The presiding judges on jury trials are one or more of the judges of session. The court of session has a winter term of four months, and a summer term of two, but there is a month's recess at Christmas. Appeals from the judgment of this court can be carried to the House of Lords. The Teind Court is held every alternate Wednesday during term, and has the power of regulating and enforcing the payment of tithes or teinds; for the clergy cannot themselves exact their tithes, which are obtained from the the landowners, and not tenants; it is through the medium of this court only that they receive them. The judges of the court of sessions are also of this court, nine being a quorum.

The High Court of Justiciary is the supreme criminal court, and generally sits every Monday during session, and also during holidays: it is presided over by a lord justice general. The first efficient judge is styled the lord justice clerk, subordinate to whom are five other judges, who are also lords of session. During the vacation in the court of session, the commissioners of justiciary proceed on circuits. The causes which come before this court are tried by a jury of fifteen persons, a majority of whom decide the issue, from which there is no appeal.—The Commissary Court. Since the year 1830, the duties which this court formerly performed, have been transferred to the court of session; still, however, a few commissioners take cognisance of testaments of persons dying abroad, having property in Scotland.—The Court of Exchequer. This court, which till recently was presided over by a chief baron and three ordinary barons, has lately undergone such a change as to be virtually abolished. The duties are now performed by certain judges of the court of session, in rotation.—The Lyon Court, which is nearly obsolete, formerly regulated state pageants, executed the writs of the supreme courts, and decided upon armorial bearings. In the execution of the duties still remaining, the 'Lord Lyon' is assisted by a body of messengers-at-arms, heralds, and pursuivants.

The Faculty of Advocates.—The members of this society occupy a position similar to that of barristers in England: it appears to have been instituted about the same time as the College of Justice (1532), and was first limited to ten members; the number at present on the roll is about 430. Although candidates for admission are not required to follow any prescribed course of preparatory study, they must pass a tolerably strict examination—first on civil law, and then, after the lapse of a year, on the laws of Scotland. The fees, including stamps, &c., amount to about £330. An advocate, when admitted, is privileged to plead in every court in Scotland (unless debarred by special statute, as in the small debts act), and also before the House of Lords: it is from this society, too, that the Bench is supplied with judges, and that the sheriffs of counties are selected. Though possessing no charter of incorporation, it has always exercised corporate privileges, by electing its own office bearers—the principal of whom is president, or, as he is styled, the dean of faculty. The library, which is by far the largest, as well as the most valuable in Scotland, will be described hereafter.

The Writers to the Signet are an important body, who have the sole right of passing warrants under the seal or signet of the reigning monarch, in order to render them valid: in addition to which, they act as conveyancers, and as attorneys, in the supreme courts. This body, besides its other functionaries, has a professor of conveyancing in the university of Edinburgh. The qualifications for admission are an apprenticeship for five years, after two years previous study at the university, attendance on a course of lectures on conveyancing, and on the Roman and Scottish law. The members of this respectable body amount to nearly six hundred: they have a valuable library, and an ample fund for widows. The Solicitors in the Supreme courts, as an association, were first publicly acknowledged in 1754, by an act of Soderunt, in which were set forth rules for their direction; these rules were altered and improved by another act in 1772. In 1797 they obtained a royal charter, which erected them into a body corporate, by the title of solicitors in the court of session, the high court of justiciary, and the commission of teinds. Members of this corporation are required to attend three classes of the Scotch law, and conveyancing, previous to admission.—Solicitors at Law were incorporated by Royal Charter 1780: they practice before the Sheriff, Commissary, and City courts. Intrants, or candidates for admission, are required to serve a regular apprenticeship, and after going through a private examination before the society, are sent up to a public one before the judges.

Sheriff Court.—The officers of the Scottish militia receive their commissions from the lord lieutenant, or sheriff of the county. The sheriff-depute is wholly distinct from and independent of the high sheriff. A sheriff-depute, who must be an advocate of three years' standing, is appointed by the crown for every county of Scotland. He receives the royal revenues from the collectors within his district; he summonses juries for the trials before the court of justiciary, and is the returning officer for county members of parliament. The decrees of sheriff courts are subject to be reviewed by the supreme courts of session and justiciary.

The Justice of Peace Court is of no earlier origin in Scotland than 1609. The justices are empowered to judge in cases of breaches of the peace; to regulate highways, bridges, and ferries; to see the laws executed against vagrants, beggars, transgressors of the game laws, and frauds against the revenue, besides many other branches of jurisdiction. But the principal business of the justices in Edinburgh comes before them, as a court for a speedy settlement of debts under £5, commonly called the Small Debt Court, which sits weekly in Edinburgh, and at intervals in the different villages in the county. This court, as well as that of the sheriff, is held in the new buildings for the county.

The Convention of Royal Burghs, instituted by James III, meets annually in Edinburgh, and consists of two deputies from each burgh. The lord provost of Edinburgh is perpetual president, and the city clerks of Edinburgh are clerks to the convention. The powers of this court chiefly respect the establishment of commercial regulations; and, as the royal burghs pay a sixth part of the sum imposed as a land tax on the counties of Scotland, the convention is empowered to assess the proportions of each burgh. The place of meeting is an aisle of the church of Saint Giles, in Edinburgh.

The Register House is the depository of state papers, public archives, title deeds of property, and of all legal contracts and mortgages; the records of all suits at law, and the various documents which have been produced in actions before the supreme courts, are also placed here. This establishment, important as it is, is almost peculiar to Scotland. The collection of documents deposited here is immense, and of course accumulating; but few are of ancient date—for the greater part of the papers relating to this kingdom, prior to the Restoration, were carried away, at a very early period, by Edward I., and at a later era by Cromwell; and a considerable portion of those that were suffered to remain were unfortunately lost, or destroyed, in consequence of the fire in 1700. The most interesting and important document here is the copy of the articles of the union and of its ratification. The building is situate at the east end of Prince's-street, fronting the North bridge, and is worthy of its precious deposit; it was planned by Robert Adam, and is a chaste specimen of Grecian elegance, combined with a happy adaptation to its purpose. The frontage is 200 feet wide, and its depth 120; the extended front is relieved by a pediment and Corinthian pilasters above the entrance. There are turrets at the corners, one exhibiting a clock, the other a wind dial. The structure is square, with a circular saloon in the centre, surmounted by a dome; the documents are neatly bound, and are arranged around this lofty receptacle. The Register house was finished in 1822, and the enormous cost was defrayed in part by a grant from George III of £12,000, arising from the sale of forfeited estates, and the remainder by the government, who also provided for its maintenance. The front of the building is now ornamented by an equestrian statue of the Duke of Wellington, by Steele. The supreme manager is termed the Depute-clerk Register. In consequence of the greatly increased demand for space to transact the official business belonging to this important department of the public service, a very large addition is now being made immediately behind the site of the house where once Hogg, the Ettrick Shepherd, Christopher North, and their jovial companions were wont to meet, and at which place the famous 'Noctes Ambrosianæ,' were concocted.

RELIGIOUS EDIFICES.

The Established Churches of Edinburgh are maintained and erected out of the funds of the burgh; from the same source, and from the port dues at Leith and Port Hopetoun, the stipends of the ministers are derived. The stipends, together with those of the precentors, amount to nearly £11,000 per annum, to meet which a tax is levied, by the town council, of six per cent, on the house rents, besides the rent derived from the pews, and notwithstanding the surplus which these sources produce, the council have the power of imposing an additional cess for the erection of new churches.

Saint Giles' Church.—This capacious and venerable metropolitan church stands on an elevated site in the High-street, forming one side of Parliament-square; and before the alterations and repairs, about twenty years since, its shape was cruciform, and dimensions as follow:—Length from east to west, 206 feet; breadth at the centre, 129 feet; at the west end, 110; and at the east 76 feet. A square turret rises from the centre, and from each corner of the tower springs the section of an arch, which, meeting together, present the appearance of a crown; these arches are ornamented with pinnacles, and from the apex rises a small spire, the summit of which is 161 feet in height, and may be seen from a great distance. The late renovation of the church has altered a little its original form, as well as its dimensions. Of Saint Giles, the patron Saint, little more is known than that he was born in Greece, in the sixth century, and died in France, after living so saintly a life as to make it worth while to have one of his arm bones enshrined in silver, and deposited in the church. This venerable fabric has witnessed many changes around and within. The liturgy displaced the mass, and the ritual of the presbytery has superseded both. The date of this foundation is uncertain: it is first noticed in 1359, when David II granted some lands to one of its officiating ministers. In 1466 it was created a collegiate church by James III. Soon after the restoration Saint Giles' was divided into four distinct places of worship, and it was despoiled of all its precious relics; it now consists of three separate churches, called the High Church, the Tolbooth Church, and the Old Church, the chief of which is the High Church, wherein the civil, judicial, and ecclesiastical dignitaries are accustomed to worship. It is proper to mention that the Government contributed £10,000 towards the alterations made twenty-five years ago. St. Giles has been the scene of some of the most important historical events. Here it was that John Knox preached, and that James VI bade farewell to his Scottish subjects, before his departure to take possession of the throne of England. Here it was that Jenny Geddes struck the first blow at the episcopacy of Laud, when she hurled the old stool on which she had been sitting at the head of the dean as he began to read from the book of Common Prayer: and it was in this church also that the solemn league and covenant was signed by a committee of the Scottish parliament and the English commissioners.

Trinity College Church, although no longer in existence, must not escape being noticed; it stood at the foot of Leith-wynd, and the principal access to it was by the Low Calton. It was founded by Mary of Gueldres (before mentioned), consort of James II., in the year 1462, and was an elegant structure of the perfect Gothic order, and in cathedral form; but its original plan was never completed, for only the choir or eastern part, and the transept, were erected. It continued to be used as the parish church of a particular district until 1848, when the fabric was purchased by the North British Railway Company, for the sum of £13,325 sterling, and demolished to make way for that railway. The stone, however, has been carefully preserved, and will be used, it is said, in the building an edifice, to perpetuate its name and memory, on Calton Hill. The congregation belonging to Trinity Church worship in Free Canongate (John Knox's) Church, until a suitable one is erected.

New and Old Greyfriars' Churches.—The Old Greyfriars' Church, which is situated in the Grassmarket, was founded in the year 1612. The spire, which was used as a powder magazine, was unfortunately destroyed by an explosion on the 7th of May, 1718. The magistrates finished a new church at the western end of the old one in 1721, at an expense of £3,045. This church was also burnt down in 1845, and shortly afterwards one of them was restored—both of them are now so. Robertson, the celebrated historian of Charles V, once officiated as minister of this United Church; and close to in the churchyard his smouldering ashes repose, mingled with the dust of many other eminent Scotchmen, amongst whom may be mentioned George Buchanan, Allan Ramsay, &c.; but the burial ground has already been pointed out as an object of interest.

The Tron Church, so called from a tron or weighing machine, which formerly stood near it, and to which, in former times, it was customary to nail false notaries and other malefactors by the ears, is situated in the High-street, at the corner of South Bridge-street. An inscription over the doorway informs the reader that it was formerly called Christ Church, and consecrated in 1641. The front, towards High-street, is handsome, with a main and two side doorways, with semi-Gothic windows, and the base of a turret in the centre, ornamented with pilasters. The original steeple was destroyed by fire in 1824, and the present very ornamental one was erected in 1828. The clock is illumined after sun-set. Lady Yester's Church, nearly opposite to the Royal Infirmary, was originally founded in 1647, principally by the munificence of Margaret Ker, Lady Yester. It was taken down in 1803, and the present elegant Gothic building was erected on its site.

Canongate Church, a Gothic building in the form of a cross, founded in 1688, was built at the expense of £2,400, from a legacy left by one Thomas Moodie, a pious citizen of Edinburgh. This church has two ministers, one nominated by the crown, the other by the town council and inhabitants of the Canongate. Many distinguished persons repose in the churchyard; Adam Smith, Dugald Stewart, and Ferguson the poet, among the number. The gravestone of the latter was placed here by the poet Burns. The visitor will be struck by the rows of iron coffins which appear here on the surface of the ground. New-street Church was opened as a chapel of ease to Canongate parish in 1794, and cost nearly £3,000. In 1834, it was disunited from Canongate, and placed at the head of a district separated from that place.

Saint Cuthbert's Church, or the West Kirk, situate near the foot of the rock on which the castle stands, has nothing particular to recommend it to notice, except that it is considered to be the largest place of worship in Edinburgh. It has two tiers of galleries. The burial ground is spacious, and many of the monuments are costly. There are several tasteful chapels of ease subordinate to this church: the first was erected in 1757, at the Cross-causeway; a second stands on the west side of Clerk-street; and a third near Stockbridge, in the New Town. Clerk-street Church, which is a chapel of ease to Saint Cuthbert's, was erected in 1823: it has a handsome spire, one hundred and ten feet high, furnished with a clock and bells. The church will contain 1,800 auditors; the principal front is of Grecian architecture, and is a pleasing object to the stranger, as he enters the city by the Carlisle Road.

Saint Andrew's Church stands on the north side of George-street, in the New Town. It is surmounted with a fine tapering spire, one hundred and sixty-eight feet high, in which is a chime of eight bells. The whole is elegantly finished. The church is an oval. Saint George's Church, on the west side of Charlotte square, forms the terminating object of George-street. The dome, which is seen to advantage in almost every direction, was intended as a miniature representation of that of Saint Paul's, London. The building cost £33,000, and is calculated to contain 1,600 people.

St. Mary's Church is the central ornament of Bellevue crescent; it has a Corinthian portico and an elegant spire, 186 feet high. The church will contain 1,800 people.—Saint Stephen's Church stands in St. Vincent-street; its architecture is in the mixed Roman style; its shape octagonal, with a tower 162 feet high. It cost £21,000 and will accommodate 1,500 auditors; and is of recent erection.—Greenside Church, which is situated at the base of Calton-hill, facing Leopold-place, is a plain building without a spire, but one is to be added. The church was opened in October 1839, and contains over one thousand sittings.—St. Paul's Chapel, an unpretending building in Nicolson-street, was opened for divine worship on Sunday the 4th of December, 1836.—Dean Church—a chapel of ease to St. Cuthbert's, was opened May, 1836, and is a tasteful structure.—St. David's Church, Gardner's-crescent, is a handsome chapel of ease to St. Cuthbert's.—The Gaelic Chapel, the service of which is performed in the Gaelic tongue, is situated in North College-street.

Scottish Episcopal Church.—This communion possesses seven chapels in Edinburgh, several of which are very neatly ornamented, and within these the service is conducted after the ritual of the Church of England. Scotland is divided by this body into seven dioceses, over which preside the same number of titular bishops. The clergy are mainly supported from the produce of the pew rents.

St. Paul's Chapel, Carubber's-close.—This is the oldest episcopal chapel in Edinburgh; it certainly existed in 1734, and perhaps much earlier; it was long the chief place of worship for the Jacobites in the last century; it is very plain, and has an organ. For many years the names of the reigning Hanoverian family were rigidly excluded from the devotional services of this chapel.—St. Peter's Chapel is in Roxburgh-place, and is a plain modern building with an organ.—St. John's Chapel, at the west end of Princes-street, is in the florid Gothic style, with a tower 120 feet in height; it was finished in 1817, at a cost of £15,000. The eastern window is of stained glass, as are also the windows above the pillars; and as this is the chapel in which ordinations take place, the interior is fitted up with appropriate conveniences and much elegance; the west end possesses a fine organ and choir. The remains of the celebrated Scottish philosopher, Sir William Hamilton, are interred in a vault connected with this chapel.—St. Paul's Chapel, York-place, is also Gothic, with four octagonal towers at its angles; it has buttresses surmounted with pinnacles. The conspicuous situation which it occupies, at the corner of York-place and Broughton-street, is felicitous for the display of its beauty. In one of its four turrets hangs a bell formerly used in the chapel royal of Holyrood. The organ is considered the finest in Scotland; it was built in Germany. This chapel was erected in 1818, and cost £12,000. The Bishop of Edinburgh usually officiates in this chapel.—Saint George's Chapel stands at the south side of York-place, and is singularly fashioned; it is nearly circular, and very low, and was erected in 1794. Grahame, the author of 'The Sabbath,' was a candidate for its ministerial duties.—Saint James Chapel is an ordinary structure, at the north-west corner of Broughton-place.

United Presbyterian Church.—This respectable body of presbyterian dissenters has a presbytery and synod in Edinburgh, and numerous congregations; their most conspicuous chapels are the following:—Nicolson street Chapel is on the west side of Nicolson-street, and its lofty Gothic front is very commanding; the fine Saxon arch of the doorway springs from two sculptured human heads. For many years, Dr. Jamieson, the compiler of the 'Scottish Dictionary' was the minister of this numerous congregation.—Broughton place Chapel is a modern Grecian-order edifice, with a portico and Doric columns; it will contain 1,600 worshippers.—Rose-street Chapel is a handsome building, in the eastern division of Rose-street, and is very capacious.—Cowgate Chapel was formerly episcopalian: since the change of its proprietary it has been considerably improved and altered; but the fine paintings in the recess at the eastern side by Runciman, have been preserved. The other chapels are in Bristow-street, Potter-row, Portsburgh, Stockbridge, and Lothian-road.

The Associate Synod of Original Seceders has also a presbytery in Edinburgh, and two congregations; one in Davie-street, the other in Adam-square. The congregation assembling in the latter were honoured by having for their pastor the late Dr. M'Crie, the admirable biographer of Knox and Melville.—The Synod of Relief and Original Burgher Associate Synod, have likewise congregations, which, with those belonging to other denominations, of dissenters, are mentioned, together with the names of their respective ministers in a list which precedes the Public Buildings, &c. of the city at the end of its Directory. They include Baptists, Independents, Glassites, Bereans, Unitarians, Friends; New Jerusalem Church, and Methodists; there is also a Jew's Synagogue.

The Tolbooth Church, or the Assembly Hall.—The foundation stone of this Church or Hall was laid in September, 1842, during a visit by her present majesty to the castle, as before mentioned. The ceremony was performed by Lord Frederick Fitzclarence, Grand Master Mason of Scotland, attended by three hundred brethren—deputations from numerous lodges in the country This hall, which was erected to accommodate the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, stands on the Castle-hill. The Hall when not required for the Assembly is used as the Tolbooth Church. Beneath the Hall there is a room nearly sixty feet long, which affords excellent accommodation for synod, presbyterian and other meetings, and adjoining are several committee-rooms.

The principal Roman Catholic Chapel, St. Mary's, occupies a site near York-place, in Broughton street, and is a handsome Gothic edifice: it was built by subscription in 1813, and cost £8,000. It has a very fine organ; and above the altar is an excellent painting by Vandyke, representing a dead Saviour. There is also a second chapel (Saint Patrick's), of smaller dimensions, near Lothian-street; a third at St. Margaret's convent, and another in Leith.

The Free Church of Scotland.—Long previous to the year 1843, there had been two parties in the Church of Scotland, distinguished by the names of Intrusionists and Non-Intrusionists. The conflicting opinions held by each we shall not presume to discuss; but merely record some of the prominent facts connected with the parties. The meeting of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, in the above year, was held in St. Andrew's Church, and had been looked forward to, throughout the whole country, with deep interest, mingled with much anxiety and great excitement. Every seat in the church was occupied long previous to the hour of meeting; and many applications were made by ladies for permission to sleep all night in the church. The members on both sides began to assemble about twelve o'clock. We abstain from giving the names of the champions on either side. There was but little manifestation of feeling on the entrance of the leaders of the Intrusionists; but on the appearance of those advocating spiritual independence, they were hailed with the applause of their adherents. The Lord High Commissioners procession was on this occasion unusually magnificent: after seating himself on the throne, the moderator proceed to read the protest of his party—the Non-Intrusionists;—this though of great length was listened to throughout with the most marked attention, from every quarter of the building; when concluded and having bowed to Her Majesty's representative, he left the church, followed by all those of his party. The Lord Provost of the city, who left his place beside the throne, drove in his carriage before the procession—which proceeded to a large hall in Cannonmills, that had been previously fitted up as the new place of meeting of the seceders. A new moderator was immediately appointed, and this honour was wisely bestowed upon one of the most distinguished individuals in the kingdom, for piety and talent. The protesters and all their adherents—who were very numerous, constituted themselves into a body under the denomination of the 'Free Church of Scotland.' They hold a general assembly at Edinburgh, in the month of May, besides several meetings of its commissions. They have twenty-five churches or more, in the city and suburbs; and a college—a beautiful edifice, at the head of, and fronting the Earthern Mound: the Free High Church, which forms its eastern wing, was opened on the 4th February, 1850.

EDUCATIONAL ESTABLISHMENTS & INSTITUTIONS FOR LITERATURE, SCIENCE, AND THE ARTS.

The University.—Edinburgh could not boast of an university at an early period; in the year 1579 a collection of books was bequeathed to the intended university by Mr. Clement Little, as a foundation for a library. The building was begun in 1580; a charter of erection was granted by James VI. in 1582; and in the year following the college was opened for the reception of students. In 1617 James was so pleased with the progress which his favourite university had made, that he honoured the establishment by calling it 'The College of King James.' In 1619 Sir William Nisbet, provost of Edinburgh, gave £1,000 Scottish towards the maintenance of a professor of divinity. The Protector Cromwell, with the liberality worthy of a great mind, endowed the university with an annuity of £200 sterling. William III. also bestowed on it £300 a year; but part of this grant was afterwards withdrawn by Queen Anne. By a recent act, for the regulation of Scotch universities, the University of Edinburgh has acquired a franchise which, for the first time, provides it with a chancellor, like the chancellorships of Oxford and Cambridge, to be held for life and filled by the votes of the members of the university council. This council consists of the professors, of masters of arts, of doctors of medicine, and of the university court, which consists of the rector, principal, the Lord Provost of Edinburgh, and five assessors; and on the 28th of October, 1859, the Right Honble. Lord Brougham was duly elected first chancellor of this ancient and honourable university. The school of medicine, which has since risen to so much eminence, was first founded in 1721; and the Royal Infirmary was opened soon after. At present lectures are delivered by professors, who rank amongst the most eminent in Europe, in the various branches of literature and philosophy, theology, law, medicine, in natural history, and in agriculture. The students are not obliged to adopt any particular mode of living, or of dress; in the arrangement of their academical studies they are also left at perfect freedom. The abilities of its professors, and their assiduity, are such, that the University of Edinburgh has become a seat of education, not only to youth in every part of the British dominions, but students have been attracted to it from almost every nation in Europe, and every State in America. Considerable sums having been obtained for the erection of a new structure more consistent with the dignity of the establishment, a plan was prepared by Mr. Robert Adam, part of the old building taken down, and the foundation of the new college was laid on the 16th of November, 1789; but the sum collected, though large, being far from sufficient for the erection of a building of such elegance and magnitude, it was necessarily stopped. In 1815, however, parliament made a yearly grant of £10,000, to be expended in the completion of the building, under the superintendence of commissioners appointed by parliament. A handsome portico, supported by stone columns of the Doric order, twenty-six feet high, forms the chief entrance. The east and west sides of the square are 255 feet in length, and the south and north 356 feet. The interior court is surrounded by a continuous range of buildings, in a corresponding style of architecture.—The University Museum.—Sir Andrew Balfour, to whom Edinburgh owes the institution of the botanic garden, was also the founder of this museum His collections, which were very extensive, were placed after his death, in 1694, in the hall of the college, lately the library; and, in 1697, Sir John Sibbald presented the college with a great variety of curiosities, both native and exotic; but from neglect and a want of taste, it was almost completely demolished. This museum has been since enriched by various and extensive collections, particularly by the purchase of the magnificent one of M. Dufresne, of Paris; and the collection of birds alone contains upwards of 3,000 specimens, besides minerals, &c.; and the building in which they are contained is the most superb and elegant part of the college. The whole collection is exceeded by few in Europe.—The University Library is valuable and extensive, and contains many interesting historical documents. The college library of Edinburgh receives a copy of every book entered at Stationers' Hall. The only other funds for its support are 10s. paid by each student for his matriculation ticket, and £5 paid by each professor on his admission. The volumes, which are under the care of a librarian and his deputy, amount to nearly 80,000; independent of which there are several curious and valuable manuscripts, such as the protest of the Bohemian nobles against the burning of John Huss; the original marriage contract of Queen Mary with the Dauphin of France, a vellum copy of Fordun's 'Scotichronicon;' and by numerous other ancient documents The books are deposited in a hall 198 feet long by 50 wide, one of the noblest rooms in Scotland.

The present grammar school, emphatically called the High School, was established in the year 1578. At first it contained only a master and an usher, but before the end of the century it was established nearly in its present form. The great increase of scholars having rendered the former building insufficient, the foundation of a new school was laid in 1777, by Sir William Forbes, Grand Master Mason of Scotland; but this being afterwards found too narrow in its limits, the present elegant structure, which graces the south side of the Calton-hill, was commenced in 1825. It is in the Grecian style, 270 feet in length, with a centre and two side wings. The centre has a very tasteful portico, supported by Doric columns; and the building is finely displayed upon a rocky terrace, elevated ten feet above the level of the road. The play-ground is nearly two acres in extent. The cost of this edifice was £30,000. The teachers are a rector and seven masters; and the number of scholars may be computed at from 700 to 800. The magistrates and town council are the patrons; and the education imparted is of a first-class character.—The Edinburgh Academy is a handsome and capacious structure in Henderson-row, erected in 1824. Its object is the education of the youth of the higher classes, upon a system similar to that of the High School, for which purpose a fund was raised by shares of £50 each, amounting to nearly £13,000. The appointments are filled by gentlemen of high attainments in their respective departments. In Edinburgh, besides the above, there are many private academies and lecture-rooms for classical and medical instruction, superintended by able teachers and professors.

The Royal College of Physicians was incorporated in 1681, by a charter, in which it is provided that they shall, at least twice in the year, visit all the apothecaries' shops within the city and liberties of Edinburgh, and destroy all damaged drugs. The hall, which is in Queen-street contains a library and a museum of materia medica.—The Royal College of Surgeons was incorporated in 1778, and is possessed of a most valuable museum; the bequest of Dr. Barclay's, and the purchase of Mr. Bell's, in addition, have rendered their collection of anatomical preparations perhaps unequalled in Great Britain. The hall is in Nicolson-street, and is a noble edifice, in the Grecian style, with a portico in front, supported by fluted Ionic columns. The Royal Medical Society has an extensive library and a valuable museum; there is also the Royal Physical Society.

The Royal Botanic Garden.—The first botanic garden in Scotland was formed by Sir Andrew Balfour, was soon after assisted in his meritorious exertions by Mr. Patrick Murray, of Livingstone, and Sir Robert Sibbald. The Royal Botanic Garden, which was formed by Dr. John Hope, in 1767, was situated on the west side of the road to Leith; but has been removed to a commodious garden of fourteen and a half acres in extent, on the lands of Inverleith, within a mile of the town, and is now in a thriving state. There is a magnetic observatory within the garden, under the superintendence of the professor of natural philosophy. Strangers are freely admitted to visit this garden.

The Advocates' Library, by far the most valuable in Scotland, was founded by Sir George Mackenzie, in 1682. In addition to a large collection of manuscripts, relating chiefly to the civil and ecclesiastical history of Scotland, it contains nearly 200,000 volumes of books. The names of Thomas Ruddiman, the celebrated Latinist, and David Hume, the historian, adorn the list of its librarians. It is one of the five public libraries still enjoying the privilege of receiving, under the copyright, a copy of every book published in the kingdom. It is distinguished by the liberality of its management—every respectable applicant being freely permitted to consult its contents.—The Library of Writers to the Signet was formed about the middle of the last century, and has a large annual fund for its increase and support. It is very rich in the departments of British and Irish history, antiquities, topography, and biography: it comprises about 50,000 volumes. The signet library, advocates' library, exchequer chambers, and court-room, communicate with the large hall of the Parliament House. Besides these libraries, Edinburgh possesses subscription ones, and also a Biblio-Critical Library, the object of which is to collect scarce and valuable books in sacred philology.

The Royal Institution arose in 1819, and was incorporated by royal charter in 1827, being for the encouragement of the fine arts. The apartments of the institution are within a magnificent structure, situated on the north end of the Earthen Mound, in Prince's-street; it is of the Doric order, with fluted columns ranging on each side, and in the front is a third range, supporting a pediment, on which is now placed a statue of the Queen, by Steele. The interior apartments are spacious and elegant. There is a free exhibition of pictures by ancient masters during nine months of the year. The foundation stone of the National Gallery was laid by His Royal Highness Prince Albert, on the 30th of August, 1850. It is a tasteful building, comprising two suites of spacious octagonal rooms. The eastern suite of rooms is occupied by the Royal Scottish Academy of painting, sculpture, and architecture, who held their first exhibition there in March, 1855, and who continue to hold their annual exhibitions there during the months of March, April, and May. This exhibition forms one of the greatest attractions of the city during the spring season. The Board of Manufactures and also the Board of Fisheries, have offices in the Institution.—The Society of Arts, which was incorporated in 1822, and has since obtained the Royal charter, is very efficient in the enouragement of useful inventions, models of which are exhibited at the meetings. These are held once a fortnight in their Hall, below the Assembly Rooms, George street.—The Royal Society, incorporated by charter in 1783, is likewise accommodated in the Institution.—The Antiquarian Society exhibits a large collection of coins and antiquities, in its Hall, in George-street.—The other societies, in harmony with this article, are too numerous in Edinburgh for detail in our limited space—the names of a few being all that is practicable:—The School of Arts, the Wernerian, the Diagnostic, the Dialectic, the Horticultural, the Hunterian, the Forensic, the Juridicial, the Scots Law, the Speculative, the Phrenological, the Harveian, the Medico-Chirurgical, the Geological, the Obstetrical, the Theological, the Literary and the Metaphysical, have their respective patrons and members.

Though parish schools do not exist in Edinburgh in numbers proportioned to those of the rural districts, there is a Sessional school, patronised by the different kirk sessions of the established churches, which, in a great degree, remedies the defect; there are also several schools connected with the Free Church, a City school in Niddry-street; Infants' schools, an Episcopal Free school, a Catholic school, and schools of other denominations. Numerous Sunday evening schools are in beneficial operation. Other academies and schools of a private character, and superior grade are conducted by their respective teachers, upon the best plans of instruction, for pupils of either sex—they will all be found in their proper list in the Directory. The Military and Naval Academy, for objects which its name imports, is situated in the New-buildings, in Lothian-road, and the Lancasterian School is in Davie-street.

The Observatory and Astronomical Institution.—After several ineffectual attempts to erect an observatory, the foundation stone of the present building, on the Calton-hill, was laid in 1776; but the money being spent before its completion, the magistrates finished it in 1792. The Astronomical Institution was established in 1812, and the magistrates granted to the association the ground and building on the Calton-hill, formerly destined for the purposes of an observatory, on the condition of their not being applied to any other purposes. The property of this institution was originally held in transferable shares, of twenty-five guineas each, but is now the sole property of government, who pay a salary to one professor, who is Astronomer Royal for Scotland, and one assistant: a regular series of observations are published yearly. The new observatory, erected by the Astronomical Institution, a little to the east of the former, was founded in 1818: it is a cross of sixty-two feet, with four projecting pediments of twenty-eight feet each, supported by six columns of the Doric order, fronting the four cardinal points of the compass. In the centre is a dome, thirteen feet in diameter, under which is a pillar of solid masonry, of a conical form, six feet in diameter at the base, and nineteen feet high, intended for the astronomical circle. On the northern side of the Castle-hill, and at the top of Ramsay Lane, is Short's Observatory, which commands a splendid view of the city, and contains a fine camera obscura, besides other attractions.

CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS.

Heriot's Hospital.—This magnificent endowment, one of the richest in Edinburgh, is indebted to the munificence of George Heriot, jeweller to King James VI., for its origin. It is situated in the southern district of the city, opposite the Castle-hill, and is managed by a treasurer and other officers, and teachers appointed by the governors; the latter, are the lord provost, magistrates, and council, and the city clergy. The building forms a quadrangle, whose external sides measure one hundred and sixty-two feet. Over the gateway is a tower, surmounted by a dome of stone, with a clock, the corners or wings of the building are ornamented with circular turrets, the windows, of which there are upwards of two hundred, are all differently ornamented at the top. Boys when admitted must have attained the age of seven, and be under ten, and are comfortably provided for until the age of fourteen. Such of them as become apprentices receive ten pounds annually for five years, and a further sum of five pounds at the termination of their apprenticeship, as a reward for good behaviour. Those who manifest talent, and have a desire for the learned professions, are qualified to enter the University of Edinburgh, with an allowance of thirty pounds annually for four years. There are also ten bursaries for young men not connected with the Institution, the successful competitors receiving twenty pounds annually for four years. The number of boys maintained in the hospital is one hundred and eighty, and the revenue, arises principally from land, of rapidly increasing value. The founder of this munificent charity was born in the parish of Gladsmuir, and, in 1580, he wrought in a close, lately demolished, as a working goldsmith; and on pulling down his humble dwelling in 1809, the identical forge and bellows were found, with which he operated. When his patron James, ascended the English throne, Heriot followed him to London, where he died in 1624, leaving £50,000, out of which he provided for two illegitimate daughters, and some other relations, and bequeathed the residue for the foundation of an hospital for the maintenance and education of the sons of poor burgesses of Edinburgh. His noble purpose was effected by the completion of this superb building in 1660, at an expense, it is said, of nearly £70,000. In 1836, the governors obtained an act of parliament empowering them to extend the benefits of the institution, and ten free schools are now in full operation, attended by nearly three thousand children.

George Watson's Hospital (a kindred institution to that of Heriot's) so called from its founder, stands a little to the southward of Heriot's. In 1723 Mr. Watson left £12,000 for the maintenance and education of the children and grandchildren of decayed members of the merchant company of Edinburgh. In 1738, when the sum had accumulated to £20,000, the present building was erected at the expense of £5,000. About eighty boys receive a classical and polite education in this hospital.—John Watson's Hospital is situated on the land of Dean, about one mile from the north-west part of the city. This structure is in the Grecian style, with a portico and a range of columns: its object is the 'maintenance and education of destitute children, and bringing them to be useful members of society, and also for assistance in their outset in life.' Mr. Watson was a writer to the signet, and bequeathed the whole of his property, in 1759, for this benevolent purpose. Between sixty and seventy boys, and forty girls are maintained and educated in it until they have reached the age of fourteen.—Gillespie's Hospital stands in a beautiful situation, in the south-west suburb of the city. It owes its erection to the benificence of the late Mr. James Gillespie, of Spylaw, who in 1796, bequeathed considerable property for the purpose of founding and endowing an hospital for old men and women, and a free school for the instruction of one hundred and seventy-five poor boys. The present building was commenced in 1801, and contains about fifty inmates of both sexes.—Trinity Hospital, the oldest charitable institution in the city, owes its foundation to Mary of Gueldres (who also founded Trinity College Church), in the year 1461, for the reception of thirteen poor persons. The building was demolished in 1846, to make way for the North British Railway, and the funds are now distributed in outdoor relief.—The Orphan Hospital originated with Andrew Gairdner, merchant, in Edinburgh, and was founded in 1732. The present handsome edifice was completed in 1833, at an expense of about £16,000: it is situated a little to the west of the Dean bridge, and maintains and educates about one hundred children—orphans, received between the ages of seven and ten—from any part of the country. The revenues arise chiefly from benefactions.—The Merchant Maiden Hospital was founded in 1695, by voluntary contributions, for the education and maintenance of daughters of merchant burgesses of Edinburgh. Mrs. Mary Erskine gave £1,000, besides several other sums, for the purchase of a building. The foundation stone of the present edifice, which is of Grecian architecture, was laid on the 2nd of August, 1816; it is one hundred and eighty feet in length, and cost in the erection and fitting up, £12,250. The girls, of whom there are nearly one hundred in the house, are taken in from seven to eleven, and must go out at seventeen. On leaving the hospital, each receives £9. 6s. 8. The annual revenue is about £3,000.—The Trades' Maiden Hospital was founded in 1704, by the incorporations, for the maintenance and education of the daughters of decayed tradesmen belonging to the incorporated trades, or who may be freemen of the city. To this hospital, Mrs. Mary Erskine was a liberal contributor. About fifty girls are maintained and educated here. The buildings stand on the south side of Argyll-square.—Cauvins' Hospital is situated in Duddingstone. The edifice, which resembles a large elegant villa, was opened in 1833. It was founded by Louis Cauvin, in 1825, for the education and maintenance of the sons of poor teachers and farmers. Boys are admitted between the ages of six and eight, and retained until fourteen. There are at present upwards of twenty on the foundation.

Donaldson's Hospital, about half a mile from the city, on the Glasgow road, was founded in 1828, by James Donaldson, printer, and long proprietor of the Edinburgh Advertiser newspaper: he bequeathed about £200,000 for the erection and endowment of an hospital for the maintenance and education of poor boys and girls. This princely edifice, completed in 1850, is a square, in the Elizabethan style of architecture, from a design by M. H. Playfair, and is constructed to accommodate three hundred children of both sexes; provision has, however, been made for such addition to the building as will enable it to contain one hundred more. The age of admission is from six to nine, and they are discharged at fourteen. Many of the present inmates are deaf and dumb. A beautiful little chapel is attached to the edifice, which is well worthy of a visit. Stewart's Hospital, another palatial pile, was founded by Daniel Stewart, who died in 1814, he bequeathed about £13,000, besides some house property in the old town of Edinburgh; this has accumulated to above £90.000. The building is situated in the Queensferry-road, and is the design of David Rhind, in the Elizabethan style. Poor boys of the names of Stewart and Macfarlane have a preference of admission.

Asylum for the Industrious Blind.—The idea of this institution was first communicated by the late Dr. Blacklock to Mr. Miller, who were both blind from their infancy. After various meetings, subscriptions and communications, a house was taken in 1793, and nine persons admitted. In 1806 they bought property in Nicolson-street for £1,575, and, in 1822, other property in the same street for £2,200. The lower part of these buildings is advantageously laid out in shops, while the upper part is retained for the accommodation of the objects of the institution. These two asylums contain about one hundred persons of both sexes. The males are employed in making mattresses and cushions of hair and wool, straw baskets, mats, hair gloves, nets, cord, and twine, and in weaving linen and cotton cloths; the females are engaged in needle-work, net-work, spinning, and knitting Of all these various kinds of articles there is constantly an assortment at the asylum, and the annual amount of sales effected exceed £3.000. The Institution for the Education of the Deaf and Dumb, established in 1810, is a large plain structure, situated in Henderson-row. The expense of the building, furnishing, &c. was upwards of £7,000. Her Majesty is the patroness, and the Duke of Buccleuch the president. — The Magdalen Asylum was originally instituted in 1797. The building, plain and commodious, is situated in Canongate, and will accommodate from fifty to sixty penitents. This charity is supported by contributions, bequests, and the profits arising from the work of the inmates.

The Ministers' Widows' Fund.—This meritorious scheme, originated in 1743, received the sanction of parliament in 1744, and was established on its present footing by acts passed in 1778 and 1814; by the latter act it was provided that an addition of 20 per cent. on the former rates should be imposed; that every person in future admitted to a benefice for the first time, or to an office in an university, should pay a contribution of £10. A grant was made of the bishops' stipends in Scotland, and of the stipends of the vacant churches. The four annual rates, to one of which every minister and professor is subject, are £3. 3s., £4. 14s. 6d., £6. 6s., and £7. 17s. 6d. The widow is entitled to an annuity, corresponding to the rate her husband had chosen; and his children, if he leaves no widow, to provisions of £100, £150, £200, or £250, according to the rate the father may have paid. Similar schemes have been formed by the society of writers to the signet, by the parochial schoolmasters of Scotland, and by the dissenting clergymen.—Horn's Charity distributes the interest of £3,500 to day labourers out of employment at Christmas, &c.—Dr. Robert Johnston's Bequest of £3,000 is equally appropriated in finding employment for the poor, in clothing the boys in Heriot's Hospital, and in support of poor exhibitioners at the University. —The income of Mr. Strathan's Estate is bestowed in small annual sums on poor old people not under sixty-five years of age, and on orphans not above twelve.

The Charity Workhouse, which is situated in the southern district, was erected, by voluntary contributions, in 1743. The principal funds for the support of this institution are, a tax on the valued rents of the city, collections at the church doors, charitable donations, and contributions. The average number of its inmates is upwards of 700. There is also another workhouse in the parish of Saint Cuthbert, which was opened in 1762, and is conducted nearly on the same plan with the former.—The House of Refuge, in Canongate, is for the reception of all persons in a state of destitution, into which the Mendicity Society has lately merged.

The Royal Infirmary.—This admirable remedial establishment stands in Infirmary-street, and occupies the site of the house in which Darnley was murdered; though founded in 1736, it is indebted mainly to the exertions of the late Provost Drummond for its present efficiency, whose bust decorates the hall. The building is three hundred and fifty feet by two hundred and ten, the front is elegant, with a clock in the centre, and in a niche below is a statue of George II; a theatre for surgical operations is in immediate proximity to the premises.—The Royal Public Dispensary, in Richmond-street, was founded in 1776, by the late Dr. Andrew Duncan, and is liberally conducted, but still too limited in its scale for a population so large as that of Edinburgh; consequently several others have arisen in different localities, including those exclusively for the eye and the ear.—The New Town Dispensary, in East Thistle-street, should not be omitted. It was instituted in 1815, and is supported by subscriptions. There are several other charities for the relief of the afflicted poor, which will be found noticed, with their locality, in the list of public charities and institutions; so will those for religious objects—including Bible and Missionary Societies, &c.

PLACES OF AMUSEMENT, EXHIBITIONS AND NEW BUILDINGS.

The Queen's Theatre Royal, occupying the site of the old Adelphi Theatre, which was burnt down in 1853, stands at the head of Broughton-street and Leith walk. It was erected in 1855, from designs by Mr. David Bryce. The interior is tastefully decorated. The stage has been built on the most improved plan, and an efficient dramatic company is kept up under the management of the lessees, Mr. and Mrs. Wyndham. —The Assembly Rooms are in George-street, and were erected in 1787: these form part of a plain building, ornamented by a portico and pillars. The Hopetoun Rooms, in Queen street, are also appropriated to balls and concerts. Exclusive of the balls here, many others, as well as concerts, take place during the season, under distinguished patronage.

The national game of golf has several clubs to promote its practice. There are curling and skating clubs also, and a royal company of archers; the latter had the honour of being the king's body-guard during he visit of George IV, and more recently to Her Majesty Queen Victoria, on her return visit from Balmoral 1859.

The Exhibition of Statuary, Calton Hill.—This collection of sculpture, from the chisel of Mr. Forrest, is much visited; and the admiration excited by the beauty of the figures is increased by the reflection that the artist is a self-taught stonemason. Other exhibitions and several museums, as places of attraction, have been already noticed, in company with artistic institutions.

MARKETS.—Beneath and west of the North Bridge are the chief markets for the town, which are plentifully supplied with flesh, fish, poultry, game, and vegetables: one called the veal market, is for veal, poultry, and game; the next three, mostly covered, are for beef and mutton; the lowest, which is an extended area, surrounded by a piazza, is for fish and vegetables. Saturday is the chief market day. There are also markets at Stockbridge, and in Broughton-street, for the convenience of those vicinities, and likewise a corn market and one for cattle—the former at, and the latter contiguous to, the Grassmarket.

A FEW PLACES OF ATTRACTION IN THE ENVIRONS OF THE CITY.

Arthur's Seat is a lofty conical eminence, upwards of eight hundred feet above the level of the sea; from its summit may be discerned the outlines of twelve counties. To the west is the range of rocks called Salisbury Crags, which are more than five hundred feet in height; to the north are the ruins of Saint Anthony's Chapel and Hermitage, and near the foot is Saint Anthony's Well; west of Salisbury Crags is the lower hill of Saint Leonard, where existed, in former days, a religious establishment, and a cemetery. The whole of this region is romantically grand, and derives additional interest from its being the locality of many interesting scenes in 'The Heart of Mid-Lothian.'

Bruntsfield Links are situate on the road to Morningside, and are well adapted for the recreation of the citizens and for bleaching-grounds; here the national game of golf is often played. A Roman Catholic nunnery, the convent of St. Margaret, was erected here in 1834. Beyond this common are the Meadows, forming one of the most beautiful walks in the vicinity of the city. The tract of ground now called by this popular title is about three quarters of a mile in length, and rather less than a quarter of a mile in breadth, and from its noble expanse of green, shrouded by umbrageous trees, it resembles rather one of the rich verdant fields of the Netherlands than a park in this northern kingdom. The walks are kept in a state of praiseworthy neatness, and no carriages or horses are permitted to intrude.

Stockbridge and Saint Bernard's Well.—The waters of the latter spring are medicinal, of a sulphureous kind; their virtues fell under the notice of the late Lord Gardenstone, who purchased the property, and erected over the well a temple-like building, with a circle of columns supporting a dome, and having in the centre a figure of Hygeia, the goddess of health. At one time this spring was much visited, in the morning, by citizens who had complaints, real or imaginary, which the fancied virtues of Saint Bernard's waters would remove; but now Stockbridge and its springs are completely surrounded by the lately erected streets of the metropolis—and its rural attractions having disappeared, the medicinal ones of the well have become all but neglected.

RESTALRIG or Restalric, is about a mile east of the Old Town, between the sea shore and Holyrood House. It was formerly an independent parish, with a collegiate church, the fragments of which are still remaining; the burial ground was a favourite depository of deceased Episcopalians. Near Restalrig is Saint Margaret's Well, covered by an arch, the only remains of a handsome structure; and part of the ancient castle of the barons of Restalrig opposite the west end of the church, forming the foundation of an ordinary modern house.—JACK'S LODGE, a straggling village, south of Restalrig, consists of numerous villas, and smaller houses which have arisen around the spacious cavalry barracks here. These are built in the form of a regular square of large dimensions, with a fine parade ground in the centre, and are generally occupied by cavalry. The proper name of the place is Piershill Barracks, but this appellation is now but rarely applied.

LEITH,

WITH THE PARISHES AND VILLAGES BEFORE MENTIONED.

LEITH, the sea port of Edinburgh, is situated on the south shore of the Frith of Forth; distant from the Royal Exchange of Edinburgh, rather more than one mile and a half, the road between which is called Leith, walk, and is a noble street, animated by the incessant traffic arising from the intercourse between the metropolis of Scotland and its port. The original name of this town was Inverleith, or the mouth of the Leith; and, though it is indebted to its proximity to Edinburgh for its commercial prosperity, it has suffered greatly from being involved in the fate of that city, and also from the jealousy of its inhabitants. In 1485, the magistrates of Edinburgh ordained that no merchant of the city should take an inhabitant of Leith into partnership, and that none of the revenues of Edinburgh should be farmed by any inhabitant of Leith. Many of the misfortunes of this town, arising from its neighbourhood, will be seen by a reference to the history of Edinburgh, in the preceding pages. The first great disaster which befel this rising town was its seizure and burning by the Earl of Hertford, in 1544. Three years afterwards Leith was again visited and injured by the same general, and after the year 1547, it became involved in almost every transaction of importance during the regency of Mary of Lorraine, in her efforts to oppose the Reformation; and when Mary Queen of Scots mortgaged the superiority of Leith to Edinburgh, redeemable for one thousand merks, with reversion in favour of Bothwell, the citizens of Edinburgh marched to Leith, and by taking possession of it, destroyed its independence. In 1643, the Solemn League and Covenant was signed at Leith, and the inhabitants ever evinced the sincerity of their attachment to it. In 1650, Lambert, the parliamentary general, took possession of the town, and when Monk became commander-in-chief, he resided for some time in it, and by the orders of Cromwell the citadel was greatly strengthened. During General Monk's residence he induced a number of English to reside here, who infused a spirit of mercantile adventure into the inhabitants. In 1715, the fort which was called the citadel, was seized by the Jacobites, who after holding it a short time, and plundering the Custom House, hurriedly evacuated it during the night. Towards the close of the last century the celebrated Paul Jones threatened it, but a sudden storm coming on the buccaneer was obliged to make a precipitate retreat. The subsequent history being involved with that of Edinburgh our readers are referred to our history of that city for the details. In 1838, Leith was separated from Edinburgh, and the common good, customs, rates, &c., were vested in the provost and magistrates of the town, with the exception of the revenues arising from the harbour and dock dues.

The council of Leith have the power of admiralty over Leith, and the sea to a certain extent, and appoints an admiral for the execution of this duty, who performs it chiefly by the agency of the resident bailies, who are admirals depute, with a procurator fiscal, and other officers. There are ten wards of police, each of which formerly had two commissioners, chosen by the inhabitants; but the commission is now vested in the town council, who are the ex-officio commissioners of police; and these have the charge of watching, lighting, and cleansing the town; the latter is divided by the river into two parts, called North Leith and South Leith, the larger portion lying on the east or South Leith side. Leith, in conjunction with Musselburgh and Portobello, sends one representative to the imperial parliament: the first member returned under the Reform Bill was J. A. Murray, Esq., the then Lord Advocate; the one at present sitting is William Miller, Esq.

DOCKS, TRADE, PUBLIC BUILDINGS, &c.

The tide harbour of Leith has been frequently improved; but the shallowness of the water prevents the admission of vessels of considerable burthen. In 1799, the magistrates obtained an act authorising them to borrow £160,000 to execute part of a range of docks, designed by John Rennie, Esq., civil engineer. The eastern wet-dock, next the tide harbour of Leith, was begun in 1800, and finished in 1806; the middle wet-dock was begun in 1810, and finished in 1817. Each of these docks is two hundred and fifty yards long, and one hundred yards wide, both amounting to more than ten and a quarter English acres, and sufficient to contain 150 vessels of the ordinary classes, that frequent this port. On the north-side of these are three graving docks, each one hundred and thirty-six feet long and forty-five wide at the bottom; one hundred and fifty feet long and seventy wide at the top: the width at the entrance is thirty-six feet. The cost of the whole was £285,108, exclusive of £8,000, for building the bridge over the water of Leith. By an act of parliament, passed in 1826, the debt on the docks was reduced to £265,000., which government lends to Edinburgh at the rate of three per cent, to be redeemed by a sinking fund formed by a deposit of one per cent for twelve years, and two per cent afterwards, till the debt is extinguished; after which the docks revert to the city of Edinburgh. Government also agreed to expend £19,000 for the extension of the western pier, and the city £2,800 on the eastern. In 1847, an act was obtained for the construction of additional docks, and the extension of the pier, government granting £135,000 for the purpose. It is anticipated that these works and the new harbour at Granton, will afford the requisite facilities for the entrance of vessels, at any period of the tide, as the deficiency of water formerly has caused much shipping to prefer the ports of Aberdeen, Dundee and others, by which the trade of Leith suffered. An extensive and commodious range of warehouses line the whole length of the west side of the docks, and the Edinburgh, Perth and Dundee, and North British Railway are brought direct into the dockyard. There are two companies in the town engaged in the London and Leith trade, and others for the trade between Leith and Hull, Liverpool, Newcastle, Aberdeen, Dundee, Inverness, Stirling, Pelmsdale, Hamburgh, Rotterdam, &c. The greater part of the coasting vessels lie in the harbour, the others in the docks. The numerous steam vessels land and take aboard both at Leith and Granton. The east pier is now a mile in length, constructed partly of wood and partly of stone, and the new west pier constructed entirely of wood is about three quarters of a mile in length. In 1849, the official returns state the aggregate burthen of the vessels belonging to this port at 22,449 tons. The manufactures of Leith are considerable, they comprise colour and paint works, roperies and canvas, sail and soap making, sugar refining, brewing and tanning, fish curing and coopering, and the manufacture of glass bottles. Ship building is a prominent pursuit in the employment of capital and labour, and many remarkably fine vessels have been launched from the different yards. Saw mills are likewise in great activity here. There are several banking establishments—as will be seen in the list in the Directory, under their head. The building in which the 'National (formerly the Leith) Bank,' transacts its business is very handsome, ornamented with Ionic columns, pilasters, &c. A bank for savings is also established in Leith.

The Public Buildings of Leith are neither remarkable for their number or their architectural superiority, the temples for divine worship, and the edifices for charitable purposes preponderate. Saint Mary's church at South Leith, is an ancient Gothic structure, on the east side of Kirkgate; it was originally cruciform, and was ornamented by a turret and spire, which, becoming delapidated and insecure, were taken down in October, 1836, and re-built in 1848, after designs by Mr Thomas Hamilton. The cemetery around the church is prettily arranged. The church of North Leith stands to the westward of the town, and was erected in 1814; it has a lofty spire, the first compartment being in the Doric order, the second Ionic, and the third Corinthian, the height to the summit of the cross is one hundred and fifty-eight feet; the portico is a model of an Ionic temple on the Illysus, near Athens. It can accommodate a congregation of two thousand. The inhabitants have the right of nominating their minister, whose stipend is one of the best in Scotland. Saint Thomas' church, Shirra Brae, was founded and endowed by Sir John Gladstone, Bart., a native of Leith, in 1840. It is a handsome building, with turret and spire. Saint John's Free Church, in Constitution-street, formerly a chapel of ease, is a spacious and handsome building. The Mariner's Church, conveniently and appropriately situated near the docks, North Leith, is a building commodious for its purpose. It was erected by subscriptions generally throughout the country. Restalrig church re-built, under the church extension scheme, in 1837, is now in connection with Saint Mary's, South Leith. There are places of worship for Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Wesleyan Methodists, and other dissenting denominations. Among the public educational establishments are the Leith High School; erected in 1805; Doctor Bell's school, built in 1839; a boy's charity school, and one of industry for girls. These, among other useful institutions, will be found under their appropriate heads of Public Buildings, or Schools. The Court House is a handsome structure, situated at the corner of Charlotte-street. There are numerous charitable institutions and benefit associations, together with bible and missionary societies, a mechanics' institute, and libraries, baths, &c. At the east end of Bernard-street, in Constitution-street, stand the Exchange Buildings, the largest public pile in Leith, which cost £16,000. in erection. The contain an assembly-room of large dimensions, and a reading-room. The buildings are in the Grecian style of architecture, three storeys in height and ornamented in front with five Ionic columns, Within this building are the post office, and that for money orders. The Custom House is in North Leith, at the end of the lower drawbridge, erected in 1812, and cost £12,617, it is in the Grecian style, with a pediment and columns. The business of the excise office is likewise transacted within it. The Trinity House on the west side of Kirkgate, was originally founded in 1555, and re-built in 1817, in the Grecian style of architecture, at an expense of £2,500. The poor house in Great Junction-street was erected in 1850, at a cost of £4,500, raised by assessment on the heritors of South Leith. Contiguous to St. Thomas's church is the hospital erected by means of a bequest of £1,000, made by a Mr. Stewart, and the like sum raised amongst the inhabitants. Mr. Peter Hamilton, of Edinburgh, was the architect. Seafield baths are situate at the eastern extremity of Leith Links; they were erected in 1813, at an expense of £8,000, raised in £50 shares. These baths are both elegant and commodious, and contain hot, cold, tepid, and shower baths.

The market-places of Leith are situated a short way east from the Tolbooth, and were erected so late as the year 1819. The areas of the different markets are surrounded with neatly fitted-up stalls, and the whole has a commodious and creditable appearance.

CRAMOND is a village and parish—the latter is partly in the county of Edinburgh, and the remainder in Linlithgowshire, lying on the south shore of the Frith of Forth. The western part of it is intersected by the river Almond, which falls into the sea at a creek—on the east side of which, on a declining bank, lies the village of Cramond, known to have been an important Roman station. On the opposite bank of the Almond Creek, on a craggy eminence, a fortification existed; and from this circumstance the name is derived—Car-Almond (changed to Cramond), signifying 'the Castle on the Almond.' A little below the village, on the sands, stake nets are fixed for the fishery here. Within the parish is the village of CRAMOND BRIDGE and port of Granton—the latter we shall again notice below; the former is situated on the Almond river, which is here crossed by a very fine stone bridge, connected with the road from Edinburgh to South Queensferry, five miles from the city. There are considerable iron works established in this locality.

GRANTON, as before stated, is in the parish of Cramond; situated on the Frith of Forth, about two miles north of Edinburgh, and the same distance west of Leith. This now important port—rapidly increasing in shipping requirements and conveniences, is the exclusive property of the Duke of Buccleuch. In 1837 an act of parliament was obtained for the construction of a pier here—the port of Leith being ill adapted to the reception of vessels at low water. The pier, which extends seventeen hundred feet into the Forth, is of solid substantial masonry, built of stone obtained in the immediate neighbourhood. The depth within the pier, at low water, is from ten to twelve feet, and at high water, about twenty-seven. Two extensive breakwaters are now constructing—the one to the west, nearly completed, will exceed one thousand yards in length, and when both are finished vessels can enjoy protection from the wind, from any point of the compass. One of Morton's patent slips is being laid down, which it is said will be one of the largest, if not the largest, in the kingdom; and Messrs. Meldrum have taken spacious premises with the intention of pursuing shipbuilding on a large scale. Warehouses have been licensed for the reception of bonded goods. A large hotel has been opened here; and the Edinburgh, Perth and Dundee Railway Company have a station; and hence passengers and goods are embarked for Burntisland, whence the railway is continued to Aberdeen, &c. It was at this port (Granton) that Her Majesty Victoria, landed on her first visit to Scotland on the first of September, 1842. The population of Granton is returned with Cramond parish.

NEWHAVEN is a considerable village, in the parish of North Leith, from which it is distant one mile, and from Edinburgh one mile and a half: the road to the latter place is good, but that between Newhaven and Leith cannot be commended. Formerly this village owed its consequence entirely to its fishery, which is still the main source of its support; but recently it has attracted many visitors for the purpose of sea-bathing, for whose accommodation tasteful cottages have been erected. The chain-pier, which cost £4,000, is a little to the west of the village, and was constructed by Captain Brown, R.N.; it is seventy-four feet long and four feet wide, over which 120,000 persons used to pass annually; but since the opening of Granton pier, June, 1838, a marvellous decrease has occurred; moreover, both this and the low-water pier are frequently unapproachable by the steamers at particular periods of the tide. The fishwives of Newhaven and Fisherrow are a singular race, both as respects their amazonian strength and their costume; they carry, commonly in creels or willow baskets, on their backs from one hundred and fifty to two hundred pounds weight of fish, supported by a bandage which passes across their forehead; they wear a close fitting jacket, and the lower half of their person is enveloped in numerous petticoats, more remarkable for their variety and circumference than their length: by this sturdy race are the markets of Edinburgh and Leith most copiously supplied. Between Newhaven and Leith are the extensive barracks of the royal artillery and to the westward of Newhaven is TRINITY, so named from the land being the property of the Trinity House; it contains commodious baths, which attract numerous visitors in the season, and many villas and dwellings have been built for their accommodation.

GORGIE is a small village, situated about two miles west from Edinburgh, on the road to Glasgow, by way of Mid-Calder. An extensive establishment belonging to the Messrs. Cox, for tanning and dressing skins is in the village.

TOWNS IN EDINBURGHSHIRE.

CALDER, MID, EAST AND WEST.

MID-CALDER is a parish and village—the latter 12 miles W.S.W. from Edinburgh, and 8½ E. from Whitburn; pleasantly situated on the road from Glasgow to Edinburgh, on an eminence between the water of Limehouse and the Almond; and Calder wood, which is of considerable extent, overhangs it. Coal abounds in the parish, and on the estate of the Earl of Morton is a lime-quarry, the stratum of which is sixty feet thick. The parish church is a fine specimen of Gothic architecture, but appears to have been left in an unfinished condition; an united secession chapel is the only other place of worship. To the west of the village is Calder House, the seat of Lord Torphichen, where the picture of John Knox is hung in the hall in which he first dispensed the sacrament of the Lord's supper after the reformation. The house of Greenbank, in the vicinity, is celebrated as the birth-place of John Spottiswoode, archbishop of St. Andrews. Fairs are held in this village on the second Tuesday in March and October.

EAST CALDER is a small village, lying one mile east from Mid Calder, on the south road from Edinburgh to Glasgow.

The village of WEST CALDER is destitute of any trading establishment, but the parish is rather extensive, being about ten miles in length by five and a half in breadth. The village is about five miles from that of Mid Calder, and sixteen and a half from Edinburgh, it contains a church of the Establishment, a Free church, and an associate congegational meeting house. Two miles and a half hence, on the estate of Harburn, is a place called 'Cromwell's Wit,' from Cromwell having commanded at a battle there; several stone coffins have been dug up from beneath the surface of this spot, containing the bones of those who were buried in them. In the immediate vicinage, at a place called Castle Craig, are the traces of a Roman encampment.

POST OFFICE, MID CALDER, Sarah Cruikshank, Post Mistress.—Letters from all parts arrive at a quarter before eight every morning, and at seven in the evening, and are despatched at half-past five in the morning, and five in the afternoon.

Money Orders are granted and paid from nine in the morning, until six in the evening.

Post Office, WEST CALDER, John Mungle, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive at a quarter before eight in the morning, at twelve noon, and seven in the evening; and are despatched at a quarter past eight in the morning, and a quarter past four in the afternoon.

Money Orders are granted and paid from nine to six.

COLINTON,

SLATEFORD, CURRIE, JUNIPER GREEN, AND KIRKNEWTON.

COLINTON, or Collington, is a village and parish, the latter lying at the base of the Pentland Hills, part of which it includes. The grounds rise beautifully from the vale of Corstorphine, and are finely cultivated, enclosed and planted; the water of Leith passes through them, and its banks are here romantic and wooded. The kirk and manse of Colinton, standing in the midst of lovely scenery, are four miles from Edinburgh. The manufacture of paper and snuff is carried on—the formerly extensively, both here and at SLATEFORD, a village in this parish; and the district abounds with limestone and freestone. On the lands of Comiston, which lie to the east, are vestiges of a very extensive encampment, near which is a rude massive block of whinstone, called, "Camusstone," said to indicate the burial-place of some Danish commander. On these lands the fountain for the Edinburgh water cistern was first erected. Logan-house Hill, in this parish, is a considerable eminence, rising upwards of fifteen hundred feet above the level of the sea.

The parish of CURRIE is bounded by Corstorphine and Ratho on the north, Colinton on the west, and the Pentland Hills skirt it on the south. Through the low grounds runs the water of Leith, and on its northern banks, six miles distant from Edinburgh, stands the village of Currie, through which the road to Lanark passes. The church is erected on a very commanding situation. The manufactre of paper and snuff prevails in this parish to some extent, the former particularly. On the estate of Maleny, beyond Currie, and rising above the banks of the Leith, is Lennox Tower, anciently the residence of the family of Lennox, as well as the occasional one of Mary Queen of Scots. At a short distance from it, on the opposite bank of the river, are the ruins of another ancient edifice, once the mansion of the Skenes, of Currie-hill. The parish also contains the house of Baberton, which is remarkable as having been used as a hunting seat by royalty at two distant periods: first by James VI, of Scotland, previous to his accession to the English throne; and, secondly, by Charles X, of France, after his expulsion from his dominions in 1830.

KIRKNEWTON, about nine miles from Edinburgh, is a small village and parish; the latter, which includes the abrogated parochial division of Calder Clere is bounded on the south and west by Mid Calder, on the east by Currie and Ratho, and on the north by Slateford. In the burial ground of the church, which is about half a mile distant from the village, lie interred the remains of the celebrated Dr. William Cullen, who was proprietor of the estste of Ormiston-hill, where he introduced, so early as the year 1758, an improved mode of culture. The river Almond, the water of Leith, and the great Glasgow road, intersect the parish, which abounds with excellent limestone, and contains some fine seats and pleasure grounds; one of these is called Meadowbank, once the residence of a late senator of the College of Justice, entitled Lord Meadowbank, who was one of the chief improvers of this neighbourhood.

CORSTORPHINE, GOGAR AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

CORSTORPHINE is a village and parish—the latter which commences about two miles to the west of Edinburgh, presents, on the whole, a remarkably level surface—the only eminences being its cognominal hills not exceeding in altitude 470 feet above the level of the sea. The southern and western sides of these hills are beautifully decorated with villas, and well enclosed plantations. The whole of the parish consists of rich arable land, producing crops of all kinds. The village of Corstorphine is three miles from Edinburgh, on the high road to Glasgow, in a very pleasant situation; that of the church is particularly romantic, and the building itself an interesting one. This edifice (once collegiate) bears every appearance of having been a favourite establishment of the Forresters, a family of importance in this part of Mid-Lothian; all over the erection, to this day, their arms are blazoned in stone; and, within ornamentd niches, their effigies, in exquisite sculpture, are yet extant. These and other memorials of a past age are still entire, and, from their antiquity and variety, must be considered eminently worthy of a visit. A mineral spring, which has been neglected for nearly a century, has just been opened, and forms one of the chief attractions of the village.

GOGAR—formerly an independent parish,—is a pleasant village in the parish of Corstorphine, situated on the banks of the Gogar burn, a tributary rivulet of the Water of Leith. Here stood a chapel previous to the reformation, the interesting ruins of which still remain a source of attraction to the antiquary and tourist. There is a station on the line of the Edinburgh and Glasgow railway, about three quarters of a mile from the village.

POST OFFICE, CORSTORPHINE, William Pearson, Post Master.—Letters arrive from all parts at half-past seven, and eleven in the morning, and in the afternoon at five, and are despatched at half-past seven in the morning, at five in the afternoon, and in the evening at half-past eight

DALKEITH,

WITH THE PARISHES AND VILLAGES OF NEWTON AND MILLER HILL, NEWBATTLE, COCKPEN, BONNY RIGG, AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

DALKEITH is a busy and populous market town, a burgh of barony, and a parish 6 miles s. from Edinburgh, and is a station on the Edinburgh, Dalkeith and Hawick branch of the North British Railway and on the recently formed railway to Peebles. It occupies an exceedingly delightful and dry situation, in a fertile district, diversified with hill, dale, and wood—with the North and South Esk flowing round the place. The town of Dalkeith is the largest in the county, except Edinburgh. It has been long celebrated for its weekly corn market, held every Thursday, and for a similar although smaller market for the sale of meal. Until a recent period the corn market was the largest in Scotland, but since the concentration of so many railways was effected in the capital, the Edinburgh grain market has greatly exceeded in magnitude every other Scottish market. Until the year 1854 the weekly market was held on the open street, since then it has been held in a covered building near the east end of the town. This new market place is one of the finest and most commodious structures of the kind in Scotland—the large hall being 172 feet long, 50 feet wide, and 45 high. It cost £3,800, of which £1,500 was raised by subscription, and arrangements were made for paying off the balance by a small tax on ten grain exposed for sale therein in the course of ten years. Prior to the formation of the Edinbugh and Hawick Railway the grain sold was all brought to the market in carts; now a considerable portion is brought by rail, though the number of carts ranged on the streets with grain on market days is still very considerable, amounting throughout the winter months to several hundreds. The progresive increase of banking establishments in Dalkeith may be considered as a fair exponent of its business importance. The 'Commercial Bank' opened an agency here in 1810; the 'National Bank' in 1825, the 'Royal Bank' in 1836; and the 'Edinburgh and Leith' afterwards the 'Edinburgh and Glasgow' in 1839, but which merged in the 'Clydesdale' in 1858. In 1839 a 'National Security Savings Bank' was established, which is well supported, and it has proved a great boon to the humble and frugal portion of the community. The district around Dalkeith abounds with coal, which is of an excellent quality, and is worked to a great and increasing extent. The extensive iron works of Messrs. W. & R. Mushet and of Mr. Meiklejon affords employment to a large number of people—the Messrs. Mushet's works have been in operation for more than half a century, and are celebrated throughout the kingdom for the quantity and quality of stoves and grates which they produce. This establishment, in full operation, turns out about 100 register grates per day, besides other work. At Mr. Meiklejon's works an extensive business is done in heavy castings, and hot water apparatus for conservatories, &c. These, together with its markets, may be mentioned among the chief sources of the town's characteristic animation and prosperity. There are however various other agencies which operate in the same direction—such as Mr. Dawson's brush manufactory, several corn mills, brick-fields, tanneries, &c., and Messrs. Thomson's brass foundry &c., in High street. It is proper to mention, too, that Dalkeith owes not a little to the activity and enterprise of its mercantile class. The amount of wholesale and retail businesses in grocery, ironmongery, and tobacco establishments, being probably greater than in any other Scottish town of similar size. The town has very much improved during the last twenty years, and is being gradually extended with excellent houses and cottages, enclosed in neat gardens and luxuriant shrubberies.

The municipal government is vested in a board of fifteen trustees, under an act of parliament—they have not however power to assess, and in consequence the sanitary and police regulations of the town are scarcely in keeping with its advanced social and commercial position. It is some comfort, however, that there are no local taxes, paving rates, lighting and water duty (except the case of private pipes), being wholly unknown. A sheriff's court is held at the assembly rooms on the third Thursday of every month, (September excepted), and a police court at the same place on the last Thursday of every month. There are eleven places of public worship, namely, two parish churches, one Episcopal, and one Roman Catholic chapel, three United Presbyterian, one Free, one Independent, one Wesleyan, and one Evangelical Union or Morrisonian churches. There are several public schools and some good private ones. As indications of social and literary activity it may be mentioned that the Scientific Association, which was formed in 1835, continues with undiminished spirit and success, and that Young Men's Societies and Literary Unions flourish vigorously. The real rentals of the lands and heritages for the year 1858-9 was £23,373 13s. 6d. The assessment for the poor was 1s. 6d. per £1, and the sum raised £1,399. The great impulse to pauperism in Scotland by the Poor Law Amendment Act of 1845 led here, as elsewhere, to the erection of a workhouse, in order to furnish a test of poverty and provide a suitable refuge for the destitute and infirm. The Dalkeith Union workhouse was the first of such houses in Scotland; it was opened in 1849 for the poor of four parishes, but it is now the property of ten parishes. The cost of the building, which is capable of accommodating 100 inmates, was £4,058 18s. 10d., and this sum with the interest has been paid off in ten yearly instalments. There are a number of villages in the parish, the inhabitants of which are engaged in the colleries, brick fields, or other public works, of the Duke of Buccleuch, by whom these villages were erected. The character of the dwellings provided for these as well as all of the Duke's labourers, is of a very superior kind, and reflects much credit on His Grace's considerateness and liberality; indeed they may be regarded as model cottages, and they deserve study by those who seek to improve the poor man's dwelling,

Dalkeith has been lighted with gas from almost the first introduction of that illuminating power. The company which was formed in 1827 had a severe struggle for some years with expensive works and small returns, but ultimately all difficulties were overcome, and the town is now well supplied with cheap and excellent gas. In the neighbourhood are the mansions and grounds of Newbattle, Melville, and Dalhousie, the properties of the Marquess of Lothian, Viscount Melville, and the Marquess of Dalhousie; whilst, adjoining to the town, and on the southern bank of the North Esk, stand Dalkeith House, the principal seat of His Grace the Duke of Buccleuch: this building occupies the site of an ancient castle, which was long in the possession of the family of Douglas, and afterwards the frequent residence of the regent Morton, during the minority of James VI. when it was commonly and significantly called 'the lion's den.' The present edifice, which was built by the family of Scott, about the close of the seventeenth century, consists of a body and two wings, with ornaments of the Corinthian order in front, and may be termed rather a good and substantial than an elegant house. The park contains about eight hundred Scottish, or one thousand English acres (surrounded by a stone wall), adorned with much fine wood, and beautified by the windings of the two rivers Esk. The hall, the grand staircase, and the several suites of apartments within, are spacious, elegantly finished, and enriched by a valuable collection of paintings; his late Majesty, George IV, on his visit to Scotland, sojourned in this mansion; and her present Majesty, Queen Victoria, has likewise honoured it with her presence. Dalkeith gives the title of Earl to the eldest son of the Duke of Buccleuch. Independent of the markets before noticed, for grain and meal; two fairs are held annually on the first Thursday after Rutherlin, (in May) for horses, and on the third Tuesday in October for cattle.

NEWTON is a parish of some considerable extent, contiguous to Dalkeith on the south: having Lasswade and Liberton on the west and north, and Inveresk on the east. Coal is obtained abundantly within the parish, and from the Edmonstone colliery the quantity produced is great and the quality superior. There is also an extensive manufactory for fire bricks, and sewerage pipes, which, together with the coal mines, employ a large population—and belong to the Edmonstone Colliery Company. There is a handsome church belonging to the parish, and some useful schools—those for children of the colleries are well conducted, and have a very beneficial tendency. MILLER HILL is the principal village in the parish, and a station on the Edinburgh and Dalkeith branch of the North British Railway.

NEWBATTLE is a parish and village—the latter situated about a mile from Dalkeith. This parish likewise abounds with coal, and there are several brick and tile works, and a paper mill. The church is a plain substantial building, and adjoining to it is the minister's residence. Newbattle Abbey, the seat of the Marquess of Lothian, stands in the centre of an extensive domain, several miles in circuit. The mansion is venerable and has historical associations of some interest. There is a well attended parochial school, and at Newton Grange are handsome school premises erected by the munificence of the Marquess of Lothian, in which the colliers' children of the district are instructed.

COCKPEN parish is about two miles long and one and and a half broad, lying on the banks of the South Esh river. Dalhousie Castle, the seat of the Marquis of Dalhousie, is a building of great antiquity, and is pleasantly situated on the northern bank of that stream. The mansion of Cockpen, purchased by the Earl of Dalhousie, is deservedly admired for the beautiful position it holds, and the romantic scenery by which it is environed. The places of worship are the parish church (about a mile from the village), a Free church. A parochial and several charity schools are in the parish.

HERIOT,

STOW, BORTHWICK, FUSHIE BRIDGE, STOBS MILL, CARRINGTON, CRICHTON, TEMPLE, AND GORE BRIDGE.

HERIOT parish is ten miles in length, six in breadth, and situate sixteen from the capital; and within the parish is a station on the Edinburgh, Dalkeith, and Hawick branch of the North British Railway. The surface of the land in this district is generally uneven; on the banks of the Gala and Heriot waters it is fertile; these two streams take their rise in the Muirfoot hills here, and afford fine sport to the angler. There are the remains of several ancient fortifications, most of them of a circular form, to be seen in this neighbourhood. The name of the parish imports the fine paid to the lord of the manor of a tenant. A fair is held at the head of Gala water, on the first Friday after Whit-Sunday for sheep and lambs.

STOW is an extensive parish in the southern extremity of the county. It is nearly sixteen miles long and eight broad. At the village of Stow, which is a station on the Edinburgh and Hawick branch of the North British Railway, are three churches, which belong respectively to the Establishment, the Free Church and the United Presbyterians. There is also in the same village a very handsome Town Hall, part of which is devoted to a literary institute and library, and a public room for lectures. A hiring fair for servants is held in the village on the second Tuesday of March.

BORTHWICK parish lies about twelve miles from Edinburgh, on the Carlisle road. Near the church, which is beautifully situated on an eminence, are the ruins of Borthwick Castle, erected in the year 1436, by Lord Borthwick; these interesting remains, which are only two miles west from Crichton, are eminently worthy of being visited by the tourist. The parish has been the birth place of several highly distinguished men, among whom may be enumerated Principal Robertson, and Dundas of Arniston.

FUSHIE BRIDGE is a neat village, in the parish of and about one mile from Borthwick, and five from Dalkeith. At this village is a station on the line above mentioned. About a mile to the north is the village of STOBS MILL, lying partly in Borthwick parish, and partly in that of Temple.

CARRINGTON, or PRIMROSE.—This small parish lies in the southern part of the county, on the descending braes which, at their summit, divide the district from the wilds of Peebles-shire. The village is pleasantly situated on elevated land, nine and a half miles south-east from Edinburgh, and consists of but a few houses and the kirk. Though not unfavourable to the growth of corn, the soil is more particularly adapted to that of the potato and green crops; coal is wrought in abundance, and there is also an indication of ironstone. Prior to the reformation this parish had the valuable peculiarity of being a rectory independent of any monastery.

CRICHTON village is eleven miles south-east from the metropolis, situate near the road leading to Coldstream, by Soutra hill. The kirk stands apart from the village, on a brae overlooking the Tyne, which is here a mere rivulet. There are many limestone quarries in this parish; there are likewise veins of coal, but none are at present worked. The Castle of Crichton is a very ancient and magnificent fabric; it was first erected by Chancellor Crichton, joint guardian, with the Earl of Callender, to James II; during the life of its founder it was levelled with the ground, by William Earl of Douglas, but was afterwards re-built, and part of the latter work exhibits uncommon elegance.

TEMPLE parish, near the head of South Esk, is bounded on the east by Borthwick, and on the south by Heriot. The village, which is about ten miles from Edinburgh, occupies a secluded situation in a hollow, on the banks of the Gladhouse water, which falls into the South Esk a short way below; it has an old Gothic church, founded by King David I, for templars. In this parish is GORE BRIDGE, a populous village about four miles south from Dalkeith. Sixty years ago there were only a few houses here; now, through the opening of extensive coal fields adjacent, and the establishment of the manufacture of gunpowder, it has become a place of importance.

POST OFFICE, GOREBRIDGE, William Borthwick, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive from EDINBURGH every morning at twenty-five minutes past eight, and afternoon at twenty-five minutes before five; and are despatched thereto at twelve noon, and at ten minutes past seven at night.

Money Orders granted and paid.

Post Office, STOW, James M'Intyre, Post Master.—Letters from EDINBURGH and all parts arrive every morning at nine, and evening at ten minutes past five; and from HAWICK and GALASHIELS every forenoon at seven minutes before twelve, and evening at twenty-five minutes before seven; and are despatched to EDINBURGH every morning at twenty-three minutes past eleven, and evening at twenty-five minutes before seven; and to HAWICK and GALASHIELS every morning at sixteen minutes before nine, and ten minutes before five in the evening.

LASSWADE,

BONNYRIGG, LIBERTON, GILMERTON, GREENEND, LOANHEAD AND ROSLIN.

LASSWADE is a small neat market village and parish—the former six miles s. from Edinburgh and two from Dalkeith; delightfully situated on both sides the North Esk, which is here crossed by a good stone bridge. With its handsome modern church, crowning the height on the north bank of the stream—and its modest rural cottages below, embosomed in luxuriant gardens and umbrageous trees—it may be esteemed one of the prettiest and most picturesque villages in Scotland. Within the last five and twenty years this place has been greatly improved by the erection of many substantial dwellings, and the opening of several manufacturing establishments; among the latter are four paper mills, and a carpet manufactory. The Polton Mills, belonging to Messrs. Annandale & Son, are extensive works for making both writing and printing papers, of various qualities. The carpet manufactory of Messrs. Widnell & Son produces some beautiful specimens of weaving in both carpets and rugs; and, together with the paper works, gives employment to a large number of the inhabitants of the village.

The North Esk runs through the whole length of the parish, and on its banks is presented a continuous succession of charming seats, in the most inviting situations, such as Melville castle, Mavisbank, and Hawthornden—the latter remarkable for having belonged to Drummond, the poet and historian, and for the caves under it. These caves are three in number; the largest is 12ft. wide at the entrance, gradually tapering inwards; the height is 6ft., and the length 90; above there is a tunnel cut, for the admission of light and the circulation of air: in a recess there is a well, several fathoms deep. These caves are said to have afforded shelter to the Scots in turbulent times. At a little distance stand the ruins of Roslin castle; and adjacent is Roslin chapel, one of the most entire and beautiful pieces of Gothic architecture now remaining in Scotland. In the cemetery of Lasswade church are interred the remains of Drummond, the poet before mentioned; and an aisle of the old structure is appropriated as a burial vault for the noble family of Melville, and here lie the remains of the first viscount of that title, whose prominent situation during the ministry of Mr. Pitt will still be recollected by many yet living. The whole parish abounds in coal mines, which have been wrought for two centuries and more.

BONNYRIGG is a large village, adjoining Lasswade, in the parish of Cockpen, and about two miles from Dalkeith. The Peebles Railway passes through it, and it is a station on the line. There is a handsome Free church, and a good school belonging to the church in the village. The parish church is a mile distant.

The parish of LIBERTON includes three villages of its name—UPPER (or OVER) LIBERTON, LIBERTON KIRK, and NETHER LIBERTON, with GILMERTON and GREENEND—all of great antiquity, but neither of them now of extensive importance. The kirk town is about three miles from the capital, and the like distance from Dalkeith and Lasswade. Gilmerton, the most considerable village in the parish, is situated about midway between Edinburgh and Dalkeith. There is a neat church or chapel of ease to Liberton in the village, which is chiefly occupied by colliers. Greenend village is about four miles from Lasswade, on the road to Edinburgh. The old church of Liberton, which was of Gothic architecture, survived till a recent date, when it was removed to make way for the present handsome semi-Gothic structure, whose square turret and pinnacles can be seen at a great distance; an excellent manse is adjacent, and the village is contiguous. The parish, which lies at the base of the Pentland hills, is exceedingly populous; and its mines of coal and its lime works are most extensive and valuable. Numbers of the inhabitants are employed in carting coals to Edinburgh, and many of the women in getting up linen for the opulent families of that city. The celebrated cave, dug by George Paterson, a blacksmith, out of the solid rock, was finished in 1724, after five years' hard labour. In this cave are several apartments with beds, a table with a large punchbowl, all formed from the same unmalleable material; there are also a smith's forge, a well, and a washing-house. Here Paterson lived several years, and here he died about 1737. Craigmillar castle, sometime a favourite residence of Queen Mary, stands on a rising ground of moderate elevation, and commands a beautiful and extensive prospect over the surrounding country.

LOANHEAD is a neat and populous village in the parish of Lasswade, one mile from that town, rather more than two from Liberton, and five south-east from Edinburgh. It contains many respectable houses, and in the neighbourhood several families of distinction are resident. A considerable proportion of the population is employed in the collieries, and some in the neighbouring paper mills. This village has the advantage of being well supplied with water, which is conveyed to the houses by pipes.

ROSLIN is a small village and parish, the latter separated from Lasswade some years ago, and erected into a distinct parish of itself. The village is reached by a cross road, leading southward from the line betwixt Peebles and Edinburgh; distant from the station about a mile and a half, and from Edinburgh by rail twelve and a half, but by road seven miles only; from Lasswade two and a half; and from Loanhead two miles. It is much visited by tourists and parties from the metropolis, both on account of the beauties of the scenery and of the ruins of Roslin castle and its chapel. These stand south from the village, the former on the bank of the North Esk. The chapel is one of the most perfect specimens of Gothic architecture that time has spared in this part of the kingdom. These interesting relics, in connection with the loveliness of the district by which they are surrounded, form an attraction that invariably delights the visitor of cultivated taste, and the admirer of the picturesque and beautiful. Agriculture is the prevailing occupation of the inhabitants of the parish; but there are the Roslin Gunpowder Mills and a bleach works, which furnish employment to other industrious hands.

MUSSELBURGH AND FISHERROW,

WITH THE PARISHES AND VILLAGES OF INVERESK, MONKTON-HALL, BRUNSTAIN AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

MUSSELBURGH a town of great antiquity a burgh of regality and now represented in parliament; is in the parish of Inveresk; 6 miles E. from Edinburgh; situated on the shore of the Firth of Forth, at the mouth of the Esk. It occupies a low site on a flat expanse, betwixt the eminence on which the church of Inveresk is placed and the sea, on the east bank of the river Esk: the suburb of Fisherrow lying on the opposite side. The Esk at its junction with the Forth is of considerable breadth, but is very shallow, and meanders over a gravelly bed, in dry seasons, containing little water; but in rainy seasons rising with irresistable force from the sources and tributaries in the interior mountainous districts, and on such occasions the appearance of the river is grand. Musselburgh derived its name from the mussel banks near the shore. The place is noticed in the seventh century as the Eskemuthe of the Northumbrian Saxons, which may probably refer merely to the river—the name Esk signifying water, and inver the mouth. For centuries afterwards Musselburgh was a paltry village, though it gave its name to the adjacent district, which in old charters is designated Musselburghshire, and a locality on the river below the parish church is still known as the Shire Haugh. After the erection of the priory of Dumfermline into a Benedictine Abbey by David I. the town until the reformation was a burgh of regality belonging to that abbey. James VI. granted the superiority to Lord Chancellor Maitland of Thirlestane, with whose descendants, the Earls of Lauderdale, it remained till 1709, when it was purchased by Anne, Duchess of Buccleuch, and the Duke of Buccleuch is now Lord of the regality. It is said that Musselburgh received its first charter from Donald Earl of Marr in 1340, as an acknowledgment for the attention shown by the inhabitants to his cousin the celebrated Randolph Earl of Moray, Regent of Scotland the nephew of King Robert Bruce. The regent died at Musselburgh in 1332, in a homely tenement, then the best in the place, which stood on the south side of the High-street, near the enclosures of Pinkie House, and now represented by a plain house of two stories used as a school and masonic lodge. Marr, who succeeded Earl Randolph in the regency, conferred on Musselburgh the appellation of the 'honest town' which it still retains and the motto is Stonestas. But the most ancient charter now extant is that bearing date the 11th of December, 1562, in the reign of Queen Mary, which was obtained from Robert Pitcairn, commendator of Dunfermline, and was confirmed by subsequent charters and acts of parliament—more particularly by one from John Duke of Lauderdale, dated 1670, in which all the ancient rights and privileges are acknowledged. In the year 1632 it was erected into a royal burgh by charter under the great seal, which excited the jealousy of the magistrates of Edinburgh, who contrived to obtain a reduction of the charter that year. Musselburgh which municipally includes Fisher-row is governed by a provost, three baillies, a treasurer and seven councillors elected according to the provisions of the Burgh Reform Act. The burgh unites with Leith, Newhaven and Portobello in returning one member to parliament. The magistrates are empowered to hold a court of record, and to grant enfeoffments. Their jurisdiction extends two and a half miles along the shore from the Magdalen bridge rivulet on the west to Ravensheagh streamlet on the east, which at that locality is the boundary with Haddingtonshire, and in the centre of which is the burgh and its suburb of Fisherrow; but the magistrates possess no jurisdiction over Inveresk village, which is included within the county.

The town consists of two streets in the direction of nearly east and west; the main, or High-street extends from the bridge over the Esk, on to the west to the beautiful enclosures of Loretto and Pinkie on the east, and is on the great road from Edinburgh to Berwick and London. Parallel to the High-street is the Mill hill which leads from the Esk to the London road at the entrance to the Links and Loretto grounds. A street known as Newbigging, extends south from nearly the centre of the town opposite the cross, and leads directly to Inveresk, a quarter of a mile inland. The town contains a few minor streets and alleys. The only public edifice is the town hall, occupying an angle in the High-street, a substantial and commodious edifice,including an assembly room. Connected with the town hall is the gaol, now used since the passing of the prison act, as a temporary place of confinement for petty offenders, and externally ornamented with fantastically sculptured human heads on an entablature. This prison is said to have been erected about 1590 from the materials of the ruinous chapel of Loretto, for which act of sacrilege the burgesses, it is alleged, were annually excommunicated at Rome till the end of the eighteenth century, when the progress of the French revolution finished such harmless denunciations. The gaol displays a diminutive and homely elated spire, the clock-dial of which has the date of 1496, and the machinery is said to have been sent from Holland. The cross, a pillar resting upon a pedestal, surmounted by the Unicorn sitting with a shield, on which is the town's arms, is in front of the Town Hall. Behind the cross is the only inn in the town, called the 'Musselburgh Arms. The town is lighted with gas by a company established in 1831, who have erected works on the Links at the mouth of the Esk. The Esk is crossed by two stone, and the same number of wooden bridges. The new bridge, an elegant structure erected in 1806-7 from a design by Rennie, consists of five eliptical arches, and the old bridge a clumsy though venerable edifice of three arches; the roadway, high and narrow, and only used by foot passengers is a short distance further up the river. This bridge erroneously alleged to be of Roman origin was built by Lady Jane Hepburn wife of the then Lord Seton, an ancestress of the Earls of Winton and grand-aunt of the notorious Earl of Bothwell, associated with the history of the unhappy Queen Mary. The Scottish army crossed this bridge after the fatal battle of Pinkie in September 1547, when Lord Graham eldest son of the Earl of Montrose and others were killed on it by cannon shot from the English fleet at the mouth of the Esk. The lower wooden bridge is maintained for pedestrians from or to Fisherrow and Musselburgh, and the upper wooden bridge, above the old bridge, is the exclusive property of the North British railway company, leading directly to the Musselburgh branch station of the Hawick branch of that line, which diverges at Niddrie, upwards of a mile inland. The station-house of this branch, which is the terminus, is on the Musselburgh side of the Esk close to the old bridge. and is a very handsome and commodious edifice.

The manufactures and most prominent branches of business in Musselburgh and Fisherrow are the making of hair-cloth, sail cloth, ropes, herring nets, starch, oil cake and eathenware, and tanning and brewing; but the hair-cloth and herring-net manufactures, and the tanning of hides, are, however, the principal, and employ hundreds of individuals. The hair cloth manufacture was introduced about the year 1820, by James Porteous, Esq., and the establishment is now carried on by Mr.Wm. Turnbull. The patent herring-net manufacture was introduced about the period above mentioned by Mr. James Paterson, who invented looms of an ingenious and novel construction, from which superior and cheaper articles are produced than those formerly in use. This branch of business is now extensively carried on by the Messrs. Stuart, in large and commodious buildings on the side of the Esk, and who employ some five or six hundred hands. A large mill is in operation for making linseed or oil cake, and one for starch. A branch of the Royal Bank, and one of the Commercial Bank of Scotland, also a savings' bank are established in Musselburgh, and there are several benevolent and religious societies, a subscription library and a news room. Inland Musselburgh is surrounded by a rich agricultural country, and by a number of coal mines, in active operation.

The places of worship in Inveresk parish including, Musselburgh and Fisherrow, &c., are detailed in a list appended to the directory of the town. The parish church occupies the right of the hill of Inveresk, and isa large square edifice without any architectural pretensions: it is a conspicious object in all directions, and its lofty and elegant spire is a land-mark in the navigation of the Firth of Forth. In the church-yard are the remains of many naval and military heroes, and here also is the grave of David Macbeth Moir, the celebrated poet 'Delta,' to whose memory a handsome monument is erected at the top of High-street. Musselburgh has long been distinguished for its schools —among which the most conspicious is the burgh grammer school: this school is under the control of the town council, who are also the patrons of an English burgh school in Musselburgh,and another in Fisherrow. There are two or three private academies of high reputation. Loretto House, conducted by Langhorne, and that of Campie House, by Mr. Balfour. The spacious common known as the 'links,' extending east from the town along the shore from the Esk on the west has long been in deserved repute as golfing-ground, and a silver cup is contested for annually by the members of a club established in 1670. These downs are also the resort, for one day in the year, of the 'royal company of archers;' since 1817 the Edinburgh horse-races have been run here in the autumn, and the races of the Caledonian Hunt occur every third year. Cromwell quartered his infantry on Musselburgh Links in 1650, before the battle of Dunbar, and his tent was fixed opposite the villa of Linkfield. No weekly, monthly, or annual markets are held in Musselburgh, and a corn market was once attempted, which was unsuccessful. No fairs are held, with the exception of an annual gathering on the second Tuesday and Wednesday of August, which is solely the resort of idlers and juveniles.

Fisherrow which consists of four parallel streets, is connected with Musselburgh by the stone and wooden bridges previously noticed, and both are municipally, politically, and locally, one town or burgh, under the sole jurisdiction of the provost, magistrates, and town council of Musselburgh. The small harbour is at the west end of Fisherrow, and is under the control of commissioners. A large sum has been expended in erecting and improving the piers, but the harbour is tidal, the access shallow, and never can admit vessels of any considerable tonnage. The custom house, connected with that of Leith, is near the harbour. A proportion of the inhabitants of Fisherrow are fisherman, and the produce of their industry is conveyed to the Edinburgh market by their wives and daughters. These women are a peculiar class, distinguished from the rest of the community by their dress, habits and manners, and partake little in the general improvement.

The parish of Inveresk is situated at the north-eastern extremity of the county, and possesses a soil peculiarly adapted for agricultural productions. The situation of Inveresk village is so pleasant that it has been often designated 'the Montpelier of Scotland.' Delightful views are obtained of the Firth of Forth and the coast of Fife on the north, and on the south the fine vale of the Esk to the Pentland hills. This village, which chiefly consists of elegant and substantial mansions and villas with charming gardens, was represented by two shepherds' huts when the battle of Pinkie was fought in 1547. The principal Roman station in this quarter was the hill of Inveresk on the site of the parish church, and the Prætorium was in the adjoining grounds of Inveresk house. The old bridge, already mentioned as built by Lady Seton, is in all probability on the site of a Roman structure, as it is in a direct line with site of the Prætorium. Pinkie House, with the exception of the tower, which is of the reign of James III. or James IV. is at the east end of the High street of Musselburgh, amid fine pleasure grounds and stately old trees. This edifice, which is on the property of the abbots of Dunfermline, was erected by Alexander Seton, first Earl of Dunfermline, a brother of the first Earl of Winton, and consists of two sides of an unfinished quadrangle. The mansion is admired as a fine specimen of the Scottish manor of the reign of James VI. The battle field of Pinkie, in 1547, most disastrous to the Scottish army, is chiefly within the enclosures of Pinkie House. Overlooking Pinkie, upwards of a mile inland is Carbery Hill, celebrated for the surrender of Queen Mary to the confederated nobility in 1567, and where she finally parted with Bothwell. Near is the fine mansion of Carberry Tower, to which extensive additions were commenced in 1850. Numerous villas adorn the vicinity of Musselburgh. New Hailes, a fine mansion half a mile southwest from Fisherrow, was the seat of Sir David Dalrymple, Bart., Lord Hailes, distinguished as the great restorer of Scottish history and antiquities. He died in this mansion, in which his valuable library is carefully preserved. In this parish are found limestone, freestone, and coal, the latter particularly in abundance.

MONKTON-HALL a small village in the parish of Inveresk; is of some little note in the annals of Scottish warfare, as on the eve of the battle of Pinkie the army lay around this village; and here a sort of parliament was held, by Governor Arran, at which an act was passed providing that the nearest heir of any churchman who should fall in the ensuing battle should have the gift of his benefice.

BRUNSTAIN, or Brunstain Mills is a hamlet situated on the road from Musselburgh to Edinburgh distant from the latter about four miles. The mills here were some years since, particularly during the war, employed in the manufacture of thick shamoy or buff leather for soldiers belts—the only mill now is that for grinding corn. Brunstain Castle, or house, which stands on high ground to the west, was formerly the patrimonial residence of the family of Creichton, who took an active share in the reformation. In Brunstain and Ormiston Castles John Knox and other reformers, always found a welcome and a shelter. At a later period of Scottish history, Brunstain was occupied by a very different person—namely, John, Duke of Lauderdale: it is now tenanted by a private family.

PATH-HEAD, CRANSTON, EDGEHEAD,

AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

PATH-HEAD, or Path-Head Ford, is a considerable village, partly in the parish of Crichton and partly in that of Cranston; 11 miles S.S.E. from Edinburgh, five from Dalkeith, and three from Fala; situated on both sides the Lauder, the great south county, and London road passing through it. The village is almost contiguous to that of Crichton (described, along with Heriot, which see). The principal street is broad and straight; and the houses, which are mostly of one storey, are well built. The surrounding country abounds with beautiful scenery, and several seats of the gentry contribute in ornamenting the district.

The parish of CRANSTON, or Cranstoun, is intersected by the river Tyne, having Dalkeith and Newbattle on the north and west, and Crichton on the south, extending five miles in length by three in breadth, but very narrow in the middle. The land is high and undulating, but is well cultivated and enclosed, and embellished with numerous delightful plantations. A handsome church, of white freestone, in the Gothic style of architecture, is within the parish on the road to Dalkeith. Besides a part of Path-head, as before mentioned, the parish comprises the colliery village of EDGEHEAD—the Oxenford colliery at this place produces coal of a very excellent qualjty. COUSLAND and PRESTON are two other villages in Cranston parish, but they contain nothing worthy of note.

POST OFFICE, PATH-HEAD FORD, Isabella Brown, Post Mistress.—Letters arrive from all parts at a quarter-past eight in the morning, and at twelve noon; and are despatched at ten minutes past two in the afternoon, and at ten minutes before nine in the evening.—Money Orders granted and paid.

PENNYCUICK, GLENCROSS, AUCHINDINNY,

AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

PENNYCUICK, or, as it is sometimes written, PENICUIK, is a parish—the village, a thriving one and well-built, is seated on high land over-hanging the north bank of the North Esk river; and on the road from Edinburgh to Peebles, about 9½ miles s.w. from the former, 13 N. from the latter, and 9 s.s.w. from Dalkeith. The name Pennycuick is of Celtic etymology, and signifies 'the hill of the cuckoo,' or, as other authorities contend, the cry or song of that bird. Below the village, on the margin of the river, are the paper mills of Messrs. Cowan & Sons, Valleyfield—they are the largest in this part of the country, and manufacture both writing and printing papers, and furnish constant employment to upwards of five hundred hands. There is another paper mill in the parish, which likewise employs many persons. During the late war, the spot on which these mills are now at work was covered with barracks, for the reception of French prisoners. The parish extends from eleven to twelve miles in length, and six in breadth, and is watered by the river Esk, which runs through its whole extent. Towards the northern border, the parish includes a considerable part of the Pentland Hills, on which are pastured numerous flocks of sheep; the southern parts are more level and the soil is various. Pennycuick House is an elegant edifice, built about 1761, by Sir James Clerk, and is now the residence of Sir George Clerk, Bart. There is a good collection of paintings in it, and Ossian's Hall, the work of Runciman, is much admired. Sir James also collected a considerable number of Roman antiquities. To the south of the house is an obelisk, erected to the memory of Allan Ramsay, the poet, who frequently resided here. There is abundance of coal and limestone, the latter occasionally so hard as to admit of a fine polish, and in which many petrifactions are found; whinstone and freestone are also plentiful; and in Cartope hill have been discovered specimens of lead and iron-ore. There are several chalybeate and petrifying springs in this quarter, and on the banks of the North Esk, near Spittal Hill, there is a well the waters of which have a bitterish taste, and are drunk by the country people as a cure for bowel complaints. The ruins of some old castles, and several vestiges of encampments are pointed out in this district.

GLENCROSS is a small parish in the county of Mid-Lothian, containing about three square miles, and at a distance of six south from Edinburgh. The roads to Dumfries, Biggar, Moffat, Peebles, and Pennycuick pass through it. In the vale of Glencross, on the north side of the Esk, are the ruins of a chapel, dedicated to St. Catherine. The church is built on an eminence surrounded by trees. Near Woodhouselee is the scene of that favourite pastoral, 'The Gentle Shepherd,' written by Allan Ramsay—a romantic fall of the water is still called 'Habbies Howe.' At GREENLAW, in this parish, is a large prison or penitentiary for military offenders.

AUCHINDINNY is a village in the parish of Glencross, 7½ miles s. from Edinburgh, on the road to Peebles; situated in a romantic dell, through which flows the north Esk. This place has been long known for the manufacture of paper, and it is said that one of the first mills established in Scotland was erected in this locality; and there is one now in operation contiguous to the village. The manufacture of paper was introduced into North Britain about seventy years ago, previously all stationery articles were imported regularly from Holland.

PORTOBELLO
DUDDINGSTON, JOPPA AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

PORTOBELLO is a flourishing town and watering place, in the parish of Duddingston, about three miles E. from Edinburgh, on the North British Railway, for which line there is a station at a short distance from the town. It is situated on the main road to Berwick, on the shore of the Frith of Forth, and is annually improving in population, size and importance. Less than a century ago the site of this now prosperous little town appeared an unproductive waste, with a wide expanse of low, sandy shore, uncheered by a single habitation; it now boasts several well built streets, two extensive suites of baths, and several good inns, among the latter Purdie's Commercial Hotel, at the top of Bath street, and the Crown in High street, rank high in the grade of houses famed for excellent accommodation. Between these inns and Edinburgh coaches are running hourly. The lodging houses are of various sizes and degrees of elegance, to suit the different classes of visitors who resort hither for the purpose of sea-bathing; whilst the beach, a noble breadth of pure sand, affords at all times an unobstructed access to the sea. These immediate local advantages, together with its proximity to the metropolis, combine to render Portobello a most desirable place for either temporary retirement or permanent residence. The scenery around is varied and extensive, and commands a delightful view of both sides of the Forth, the shores of which are studded with neat villages, and a busy population: the air is pure and invigorating, and the society of the place is unexceptionable on the score of respectability. Portobello joins with Musselburgh and Leith in sending a member to parliament. A considerable trade exists in the manufacture of stoneware, bricks, tiles, terra-cotta, and paper, and in the adjacent village of JOPPA, which is now almost a part of the town, are salt works. The places of worship are an Established church, a Free church, and United Presbyterian, Episcopal, Independent, and Roman Catholic chapels. There are two or three good private schools, one connected with the Free church, another of the Secession church, and a charity school for girl.

DUDDINGSTON parish is bounded by the parish of Canongate, a part of the metropolis, on the west, South Leith on the north, the sea and part of Inveresk on the east, and Liberton on the south. The parish derives its name from the settlement here of one Dodin, during the reigns of David I. and Malcolm IV.; this is ascertained by a charter of William de Venterponte, to the canons of Holyrood, of which 'Hugo Filius Dodini de Dodinestun,' appears to have been a witness. From a very early period it seems that there have been two villages called Easter and Wester Duddingston; the former continues in its original extent, though much improved. Wester Duddingston, the kirk town of the district, is charmingly situated near the base of Arthur's Seat and at the east end of the loch which bears its name. The church, an edifice of very great antiquity, occupies a small eminence rising from the verge of the water. Though modernised externally, its interior ornaments and arches appear to be as old as the days of Dodin. The village consists of only a few detached cottages, of humble character, and several neat and tasteful villas, the country residences of families connected with the adjacent city. Duddingston Loch is a beautiful sheet of water, about the third of a mile in length, and not more than half a mile from the southern outskirts of Edinburgh. An excellent road was made about twenty years ago, betwixt Duddingston and Portobello, which has proved of great mutual benefit.

JOPPA before mentioned, is intimately connected with, and may indeed be reckoned a suburb of Portobello, and is of modern growth. Some years since a freestone quarry was opened in the neighbourhood, and subsequently a mineral spring was discovered; the latter attracts some of the visitors to Portobello, who fancy the waters may be beneficial to them. A number of neat villas have been built near the road, some of which are neatly furnished for the accommodation of visitants. About half a mile further east, are salt works called the 'Joppa pans.'

POST OFFICE, High street, PORTOBELLO, James Scott, Post Master—Letters from all parts arrive (from EDINBURGH), at seven in the morning, ten minutes before one afternoon, and eight in the evening; and are despatched in the morning at twenty minutes before seven, at two, and a quarter past four in the afternoon, and night at ten.

Money Orders granted and paid here.

RATHO, KIRKLISTON, AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

RATHO is a small village situated about 8 miles w. by s. from Edinburgh, nearly in the centre of its parish, and contiguous to the Edinburgh and Glasgow Railway and the Union Canal, by which communications it enjoys a ready access to the capital, and the intermediate district. The parish, which is about four miles long, and three broad, lies in the middle between the Pentland Hills, and the Frith of Forth. The east part is flat and fertile, but the ground rises gradually towards the west. Dalmahoy, the principal residence of the Earl of Morton, and Hatton, formerly belonging to the family or Lauderdale, both beautiful and elegant seats, are in this parish; these, with the plantations of Addiston, give a rich and pleasant aspect to the country. Agriculture is carried on with spirit and success, of which Mr. M'Knight first set the example. The hills of Dalmahoy and Kaimes abound with freestone. The parish church is rather a handsome building, and the parochial school is spacious and well attended.

KIRKLISTON is partly in Mid-Lothian and extends into Linlithgowshire; the village is eight miles from Edinburgh: situated on the left bank of the Almond, on the road to Falkirk. This place was anciently called Temple-Liston, from the circumstance of the knights templar having formerly had an establishment here. The village is well built; it is however of but limited trade; distilling and grinding corn are the principal branches. The church is neat and its situation remarkably pleasant. The surface of the country is agreeably varied by rising grounds—is rich, well cultivated and produces excellent crops; here Lord Stair first introduced the culture of cabbages in the open fields. Within a field on the east side of the Almond stands a remarkable monument of antiquity, called the , Catstane,' erected at a period too remote for conjecture it stands four feet and a half above the ground, and is about eleven feet and a half in circumference; its surface bears a delapidated inscription, which it has puzzled the skill of antiquaries to decipher. About a mile from Kirkliston is Newliston House, principally erected and finished by John, Earl of Stair, and now the elegant seat of Thomas Alexander Hog, Esq. The house is handsome and modern; the plantations extensive, and tastefully disposed.

ABERDEENSHIRE.

THIS important and extensive county is situated in the north-east part of Scotland, and is bounded on the north and east by the North Sea; on the south, by the counties of Kincardine, Forfar, and Perth; and on the west by Inverness-shire and Banffshire. In form it approaches to that of an oval, the length of which, from north-east to south-west, is about eighty-five miles—and its extreme breadth about forty. It is estimated to comprise 1,950 square miles of land and ten of lakes. There is a characteristic difference to be observed in the inhabitants of Aberdeenshire from those of any other county in Scotland; they are in general regarded as an active, vigorous, and enterprising race; and when they emigrate, they seldom fail of success. The dialect of the inhabitants, too, is peculiar from those of the south of Scotland; and to a stranger's ear appears to be attended with a quick, sharp, and rather angry accent. On the sea-coasts they have a distinct difference of physiognomical appearance from other inhabitants of Scotland; and attest by this, as well as by their speech, that they are descended from a race which originally came from the northern regions of Europe, and fixed themselves in this part of Scotland.

SOIL, SURFACE, &c.—Towards the sea, the county is fertile, and comparatively level; but a great proportion of the county lies amidst the wilderness of the central highlands The county is popularly divided into five districts, namely, —Marr, the southernmost, comprehends all south of the river Dee, from the sea to the east end of the hill of Benochie; Garioch lies north of the Don, bounded by a ridge of hills beginning near the royal burgh of Kintore; Strathbogie lies to the north-west of Garioch, and south-east of the upper part of Marr; Formarten, east of Garioch, and bounded on the south by the Don, and on the north and east by the Ythan and the North Sea; Buchan, extending from the Ythan to the Deveron. These five districts are subdivided into lesser districts or divisions, whose names are generally descriptive of their appearance and situation. The district of Marr, on the confines of the shires of Banff, Inverness, Perth, and Angus. may be considered as the centre of Scotland, being at the greatest distance from the sea in every direction. The appearance of the upper part of this district is wild, rugged, and mountainous. Towards the east and north-east the county becomes more level, but is in many places moorish and barren; but the woods, mostly fir, are extensive, producing fine timber. The rivers Don and Dee have both their sources in this quarter. Balmoral, the Highland residence of Her Majesty the Queen; Abergeldie, the seat of Her Grace the Duchess of Kent, and also the extensive estates of His Royal Highness the Prince Consort, are in this district. From the top of Craigendarroch there is, perhaps, one of the most grand and picturesque views in Scotland. The district of Buchan is not so hilly, lying mostly on the east and north coasts; but, being almost destitute of wood, its appearance is bleak and naked: from the quantities, however, of large timber found in many mosses, no doubt can exist of its having been once well wooded. Anciently this extensive domain was the property of the Earls of Buchan, on whose attainder, in 1320, King Robert Bruce divided the land amongst his adherents Subsequently the title was revived in the Erskine family, but without a restoration of the lands; and the present Earl has but little property in this quarter. The districts of Strathbogie, Garioch, and Formarten are generally well cultivated. At the termination of a deep glen in Strathdee is the pass, or craigs, of Bollitar, which forms the eastern entrance into the Grampian mountains. To the south of Peterhead are the remarkable breakers on the coast, called the Bullers of Buchan: they represent a large oval cavity, in depth about one hundred feet, formed by the steep rocks on the coast; a natural arch opens into the sea at the eastern end, into which boats are sometimes drawn, and dashed to pieces. The mountains of greatest altitude in Aberdeen are, Buck, 2,377; Firmouth, 2,500; Cairneach, and Scroneach, 2,700; Morven, 3,100; Montkeen, 3,180; Lochnagar, 3,800; Benaven, 3,920; Benaburd, 3,940; Cairntoul, 4,220; Macdui, or Ben-Macdui, 4,300, and Braeriach, 4,304 above the level of the sea; besides several others of less, but considerable, elevation.

COMMERCE, MANUFACTURES, MINERALS, &c.—The making of linen and sail-cloth has been successfully introduced in several parts, and Aberdeen is the seat of various other branches of manufacture. The sea-coast abounds infish of great variety and richness, and the river and sea fishing, together, form a great source of wealth to the inhabitants. Granite is a valuable and extensive production of this county, and presents an article of considerable traffic, many thousand tons being conveyed to London, and other distant parts, for paving and building purposes. Other minerals are found in different parts of Aberdeenshire, and are eminently worthy of notice:—in the parish of Old Machar was discovered a valuable mine of manganese; Lesly produces amianthus, made by the peasants into snuff boxes and ornaments;—plumbago has been found on the banks of the Deveron; and, near Peterhead, onyx pebbles are to be met with. The largest rock crystal ever found in Scotland was discovered upon the estate of Invercauld, in this county; its size was nearly that of a child's body at the age of four years. On the same estate have also been obtained amethysts and aqua-marines, equal in colour and hardness to those so eagerly sought after in the East. Topazes of great value, provincially called Cairngorm stones, are also to be met with in Aberdeenshire. Talc, mica, asbetos, and amianthus, commonly called mountain cork, and mountain leather, are found in several of the hills, and in great variety. At Craig, in the district of Strathbogie, there is a fine flazen asbetos, both green and white. This county produces plenty of game, black cattle, deer, sheep, horses, &c. A very great proportion of the landholders reside permanently or occasionally on their estates, and countenance by their presence many valuable improvements. The rearing of plantations and fences, the introduction of superior breeds of cattle, and better modes of agriculture, have for some time engaged their attention, to the manifest advantage of the district.

RIVERS AND SPRINGS, CANALS AND RAILWAYS.—The principal rivers of Aberdeenshire are the DEE, the DON, the YTHAN the UGIE, and the DEVERON. These rivers are of great value, from the immense quantity, and fineness of the salmon they produce; but are too rapid to admit of navigation to any great extent. The river Ythan deserves particular mention, on account of the pearl fishery, formerly carried on in it with great success. The Dee runs through the vale of Strathdee, surrounded with awful fronts of lofty mountains. On the Don are seen the princely ruins of Kildrummy Castle, another ancient seat of the Earls of Marr. At the top of the vale of Braemar, a short way above Marr Lodge, is the noted waterfall called the Linn of Dee. In the valley of Glenmuick there is likewise another picturesque cascade; and a little below, on the southern banks of the Dee, most romantically situated, are Pannanich Wells much frequented in summer. There are other sanitary springs at Peterhead, which possess chalybeate properties, and are in high repute.—The Aberdeenshire canal extends from the harbour of Aberdeen to the bridge over the river Don, near Inverury; and, previous to the construction of the Railway, opened a wide field for industry, enterprise, and wealth, to the inhabitants of the districts of Garioch and Strathbogie. On the sea-shore are several remarkable caves, curious perforations in the rocks, and echoes which reverberate sounds with wonderful distinctness. The lines of RAILWAY with which Aberdeenshire is at present interested, are the 'Aberdeen,' communicating with Edinburgh and all parts south; the 'Scottish North Eastern, and Scottish Midland Lines;' the 'Dundee, Perth, and Aberdeen Junction;' the 'Deeside,' from Aberdeen to Banchory, and the 'Great North of Scotland,' from Aberdeen, by Inverury, to Huntly.

This shire contains eighty-five parishes, and three royal burghs—Aberdeen, Kintore, and Inverury. The contributory boroughs (or those which, in conjunction with others, are represented in the senate), belonging to this county, are Inverury, Kintore, and Peterhead. The city of Aberdeen returns one member, and the shire at large, one: the gentleman representing the latter, is Lord Haddo, elected at the general election in 1859.

POPULATION OF THE SHIRE, IN THE YEARS, 1801, 1811, 1821, 1831, 1841 AND 1851.

The Italic letters c. p. b. and t. signify respectively City, Parish, Burgh, and Township.

The total annual value of Real Property, in Aberdeenshire, as assessed in April 1815, amounted to £325,218; and the amount assessed to the Property Tax in 1843, was £503,968. The amount assessed to the Property and Income Tax in 1849 was £621,821.

ABERDEEN AND ITS VICINITY.

ABERDEEN, a city and the capital of the county to which it gives name, is 109 miles nearly north from Edinburgh, 103 S.E. by E. from Inverness, and 501 from London, and by means of its rail communication, it possesses easy access to any part of the United Kingdom. Aberdeen is of great antiquity, and is supposed to have been known to the Romans by the name of Devana. Antecedently to this period, all relating to any history of Aberdeen, or its origin, is involved in obscurity; and for many ages after, no records appear to afford any authentic accounts relating to it. Aberdeen is probably among the earliest of the burghs in Scotland found entitled to any royal mark of distinction; and, from various circumstances occurring in history, it is reasonable to presume that at a very early period it was a place of some commerce. As far back as 1153 it seems to have been known as such to the Normans; and in Macpherson's treatise on commerce it is observed that, in the year 1179, Esteyn, one of the joint kings of that country, landed and pillaged the town, in the course of a piratical cruise along the British coast. In early times Aberdeen was frequently visited by royalty; and it appears that King William, surnamed the Lion, had an edifice for his occasional residence here, which was situated at the lower side of the town, near the east end of what is called the Green, and was dignified by the title of Palace: this edifice he afterwards bestowed on the monks of the Holy Trinity, who were about that time introduced into Scotland. Her present Majesty Queen Victoria has visited Aberdeen, and distinguished several of its inhabitants in business, by her patronage while residing at Balmoral House. A neat triumphal arch marks the spot where she landed on the quay. The first charter that was obtained by Aberdeen is supposed to have originated about the year 1179, and granted by King William, which confirmed to the burgesses the power of enjoying their trade of merchandise as freely, quietly, fully, and honourably as their ancestors did in the time of Malcolm, his grandfather: this charter was dated at Perth. King William afterwards granted two other charters: both these, which were dated at Aberdeen, 28th August, are still in a state of good preservation, and have the great seal of Scotland, in green wax, appended to each. The great charter was granted by Charles I, and is dated at Oatlands, 1638: all previous charters are by it confirmed—this charter was also subsequently confirmed by parliament. From these documents, and other historical accounts, it is beyond all doubt that trade and commerce were a prevailing pursuit at that time, which have progressively extended themselves to this period, by the industry and enterprising spirit so long characteristic of the inhabitants. This is now the third city in Scotland in population, rank and opulence, and may justly be called the capital of the north of Scotland.

SITUATION, STREETS, BUILDINGS, &c.—Aberdeen is pleasantly situated upon an eminence rising gradually from the sea, the beach presenting a beautiful even surface of fine hard sand. When the tide is receding, a person may walk for many miles along the shore, and contemplate a noble expanse of the German ocean, which, from the town, has a fine appearance, and adds to the beauty of its picturesque situation. The new streets are spacious, uniform, and elegant; the houses are built of granite stone, which the neighbourhood produces. A noble street, named Union-street, running to the south, is particularly handsome. About the middle of this fine street, a magnificent granite bridge, designed by Telford, of one arch, spanning one hundred and thirty feet, is thrown across a ravine, through which runs a brook called the Denburn, and divides the older parts of it from the more modern and fashionable. This latter part has been all built within the last fifty years, and is of very considerable extent. There are two other fine streets, namely, King-street and George-street—the former handsome, and the latter wide and regular. The town-house, gaol, and new court-house are situated in Castle-street. In the centre of this street stands a highly finished statue of George, the late Duke of Gordon, erected by the gentlemen of the county. It is composed of that beautiful grey granite for which Aberdeen is so noted, and represents his grace in a martial cloak and head uncovered, with one foot placed upon a cannon, and both hands supported by a sword. The pedestal is a square slab of granite, and the entire height of the whole is about twenty feet. In the town-house is the town's armoury, in which are deposited about three hundred stands of muskets, an ancient coat of mail, the standard carried by the citizens at the battle of Harlow, and other warlike implements; also the axe of the machine known by the name of the maiden, which in times of old was used for decapitating criminals, and the furniture of the provost's charger, when he attended as commissioner for the town, at the coronation of King Charles I at Edinburgh. The court-house was commenced in the year 1818, and first opened in 1820. It stands behind the town-house, and is connected with it. The principal entrance is from Castle-street, by a Gothic doorway, and a handsome stone stair leads to the vestibule of the court on the first floor. The bridewell is situated towards the west of the town, and is surrounded with a wall fourteen feet high, enclosing a garden, and airing grounds for the prisoners. The entrance is from Union-street, through a handsome gateway, to which are attached a porter's lodge and a guard-house. The public assembly or county-rooms, intended chiefly for the accommodation of the united meetings of the counties of Aberdeen, Banff, Kincardine and Forfar, are in Union-street, near the entrance of the town from the south. This elegant edifice is decorated with a portico of six columns of the Ionic order, thirty feet in height. The principal entrance, under the portico, leads into an outer vestibule, having a flight of six steps conducting to the grand saloon, which is sixty feet in length and twenty feet in breadth, and is divided into three compartments by fluted Ionic columns, with ornamented capitals and corresponding pilasters. The centre part is thirty-two feet high, and the ceiling is a dome, finished with coffering. In the middle of the building, and opening into the saloon, through a screen of columns, is a spacious gallery or promenade, seventy feet in length, finished with pilasters, and an arched and panelled ceiling. It communicates on one side with the ball room, and on the other side with the supper or refreshment room, and the card-saloon. The end of the gallery opens into the banqueting-room, which is of the same dimensions with the ball-room; the walls are finished with pilasters, in imitation of Sienna marble, with ornamented capitals. The whole forms a superb suite of rooms, opening into each other by folding doors, and presenting vistas the full length of the building. The expense of erection was £11,500.; the foundation-stone was laid on the 26th of April, 1820, by the Right Honble. James, Earl of Fife: the building was designed by the late Archibald Simpson, Esq. The Corn Exchange, erected in 1854, is the property of a joint-stock company; the cost of erection was about £1,000. The market cross, near the western extremity of Castle-street, cannot be too highly admired, whether as an architectural object or as an antiquarian curiosity. It is of a hexagonal form, with a pillar rising from the centre. In a cornice around the upper part of the structure are twelve compartments for figures cut in relief: ten of these contain the portraits of Scottish monarchs; the last of the series being James VII, in whose time the edifice was completed. This fine erection was once removed by the magistrates as a nuisance, but was afterwards restored by civic authorities of better taste. The market-house, which stands in Market-street, is one of the largest and most beautiful buildings of its kind in the kingdom: it was erected by a joint-stock company, and opened in 1842. It contains two floors and north and south galleries. In the west end of the market is a beautiful fountain of polished Peterhead granite. The theatre, in Marischal street, is finished in a very neat style, and has accommodation for about six hundred persons: this erection cost near £3,000 The barracks, on the Castle-hill, are fitted up for the convenience of six hundred men, although, according to the usual mode of military accommodation, it is capable of containing double this number; there is an excellent hospital attached to it on an adjoining eminence. The town is admirably paved with granite, well lighted with gas, plenteously supplied with excellent water, and the arrangements for cleansing the streets and watching the city are fully efficient.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.—The port of Aberdeen is admirably adapted for commercial intercourse with the northern parts of Europe, and it also participates in a good share of trade with America and the West Indies. On the north side of the entrance to the harbour a fine stone pier extends two thousand feet into the sea, the entire composed of granite. Many of the stones of the outside walls are upwards of three tons in weight, with dressed beds and generally four feet long. The whole of this grand piece of masonry forms one solid mass and is an improvement of the most beneficial character to the shipping interests of the port. On the opposite side of the entrance to the harbour is a breakwater, which projects from the land about eight hundred feet, rather to the northward; it extends partly across the channel of the harbour, and is a great protection from the violence of storms from the south-east. In the interior of the harbour, a wharf, nearly a mile in extent, runs along the north side of the harbour, and a corresponding wharf on the south side. A fine canal runs from the quay for a length of eighteen miles to Inverury: this undertaking was opened in 1807. In 1843 an act was obtained by the harbour commissioners for making extensive improvements, and the large sum of £153,341. 5s. 11d. was expended thereon. The cost of the harbour improvements during the last fifty years amounts to upwards of £900,000. The Custom-house, which is a plain building, is situated on the quay, and near the bottom of Marischal-street. Formerly only a part of the house was required for business, but owing to the increased trade of the place, the whole is found necessary. The customs' revenue in 1858 amounted to £93,399. The imports of Aberdeen consist principally of Scotch and English coal, lime, bones and guano, cotton, flax, tow, hemp and wool, wheat and flour, American and European wood, salt, iron, tobacco, brandy, and wines. The following exhibit the description and amount of exports for the year ending Sept. 30, 1858:—

Flax manufacture	41,205 B. B.
Cotton manufacture	1,474 B. B.
Woollen manufacture	3,531 B. B.
Oats, barley and bear	76,158 qrs.
Meal	69,652 bolls.
Eggs	5,600 B B.
Salmon	581 B B.
Butter	1,064 cwt.
Pork	15,018 cwt.
Porter	141 hhds.
Scotch fir timber	15,800 loads.
Granite stones	32,422 tons.
Cattle	5,652
Horses	93
Sheep and lambs	6,622
Pigs	1,709
Dogs	95

The registered tonnage of the port for the year ending September 1858, was—tonnage inwards, 347,494; outwards, 26,981, and that of vessels wintering in the harbour, 19,855 tons. The number of vessels registered at the port was 260, and the tonnage 71,000, of which there are 14 steamers of 6,511 tons. The number of vessels which entered the harbour was 2,468. The amount of shore dues on shipping and imports in the same year amounted to £13,733. 13s. 1½d.; the dues on goods outward, £5,302. 9s. 6½d.—total amount of shore dues for the year, £19,036. 2s. 8d. The total revenue of the harbour in 1858 was £24,755. 18s. 3d.; the expenditure amounted to £19,649. 16s. 10d., leaving a surplus of £5,100. The Greenland whale fishery was at one time extensively pursued from this port, but at present there are only two vesssels employed here in this trade. The salmon and white fishing are other branches in this department of industry. The salmon that are caught in the Don and Dee have long been celebrated for their quality and abundance. The white fishing consists in the taking of haddock, cod, turbot, halibut, &c., of which there is generally an abundant supply in the market. Much praise is due to the magistrates of the city for the encouragement bestowed on persons employed in the fishery; and a town of modern erection, called FOOT DEE, near the mouth of the harbour, affords accommodation to the fishermen and their families.

The first indication of manufactures was noticed about the end of the sixteenth century, when a Fleming was permitted to settle and exercise his occupation of a manufacturer of grograms, worsted, and stamings [tammies], on condition of taking an apprentice of the town to be taught the trade. In the seventeenth century the manufacture of woollen goods became very prevalent. The chief articles made for exportation were stockings and mits, and woollen plaids—the latter to a very considerable extent. It is estimated that twenty thousand persons derive support from the manufacture and sale of woollen goods in the county of Aberdeen. Linen manufactures were introduced in 1749, and very soon became an important branch. There are very many important establishments in the town and its vicinity, as large cotton mills, linen and woollen manufactories, extensive thread and tape works, and bleach works, paper mills, iron foundries, ship yards, breweries, quarries, &c. A new application of the power of steam has been discovered by Mr. M'Donald, of King-street, by which the granite raised in the neighbourhood is made to bear a polish equal to marble. It will be seen by the Directory that there are no fewer than eight banking establishments in the city, three of which are parent offices; and there is also a savings' bank. Aberdeen is the head station for two highly respectable insurance companies, namely, the 'Aberdeen,' established in in 1825, and the 'Northern,' in 1836; and there are, besides, numerous agencies of other offices. Many very excellent inns afford accommodation to various grades and travellers—the commercial man, the tourist, or the family passing through, will find a domicile suited to their respective desires, and their means. Amongst the principal may be mentioned with confidence in their general perfect arrangements, 'Robertson's Royal Hotel, in Union-street; 'Duffus's Queen's Hotel,' also in Union-street; and 'Douglas's Hotel,' in Market street. Although the commerce of this city has been subjected to incidental fluctuations, yet, on the whole, it has greatly increased of late years, and is still being extended.

A regular communication is maintained with London, Edinburgh, Newcastle, Inverness, and the Orkneys, by steam packets, a species of conveyance which has done more to lay open the north-east shore of Scotland to improvements from the south than any other means. In addition to the above, there exists the means of rapid transit on land by the Scottish, North Eastern, and Scottish Central railways, and by the Dundee and Arbroath lines to all parts south of Aberdeen; and access is given to the north by the Great North of Scotland railway, opened to Inverness. The Dee Side line to Banchory was opened in 1853, and is now in course of extension to Aboyne. Of other conveyances the Directory furnishes full information: this includes coaches to many places yet unapproached by the rail, and carriers to the numerous towns and villages similarly excluded.

The MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT.—The burghal constitution of Aberdeen has undergone various alterations since its first establishment. The original magistracy consisted of an alderman, four baillies, and a common council, chosen by the inhabitants; subsequently this arrangement gave way before the gradual and perfect introduction of a self-electing system. From the year 1817 until 1826, the city revenues were gathered by and dispensed under the control of trustees, for behoof of creditors. The credit of the burgh may now be considered as good as that of any other in the kingdom. In 1855 its revenues produced a surplus of £2,964., being a larger sum than the entire revenue thirty-five years before. The government of the city is now regulated by the Municipal Reform Act, and the corporate body consists of a provost, four baillies, a dean of guild, and a treasurer, with a council of seven deacons of the incorporated trades. The police establishment consists of a board of eighteen commissioners, of which the provost, the dean of guild, the treasurer of the city and the convenor of the trades are commissioners ex-officiis. The circuit court of justiciary for the counties of Aberdeen, Banff and Kincardine is held in Aberdeen in the months of April and September, for the trial of criminal cases, at which one or two lords of justiciary preside; and here also appeals from inferior courts, in civil cases, are decided. A sheriff's court is held every Wednesday, Thursday and Friday; a burgh baillie court every Saturday; a justice of peace court quarterly, and their small debt court every fortnight. A sheriff's small debt court and a commisary court also sit at stated periods. The city returns one member to the imperial parliament. Aberdeen confers the title of Earl on a branch of the noble family of Gordon, which was distinguished for its active loyalty to the crown in the seventeenth century.

Municipal, Benevolent, Literary, Scientific, &c. Institutions.—The municipal institutions consist of seven incorporated trades:—1st, the Hammermen, incorporated September, 1519; 2nd, the Bakers, recognised as a company as early as the year 1398; 3rd. the Wrights and Coopers, who obtained their original seal of cause on the 5th of August, 1527, 4th, the Tailors, who were recognised in a corporate capacity about the year 1511; 5th, the Shoe Makers, acknowledged as a corporate body in the years 1484 and 1520; 6th, the Weavers—the deacons of this corporation were approved by the council and sworn into office in the year 1449; and, 7th, the Fleshers, or Butchers; these originally dealt in fish as well as flesh, but were prohibited, in the year 1518, from practising more trades than one; they received a seal of cause in 1534. The affairs of each corporation are under the direction of a deacon, box-master, and masters, who are chosen annually. In the year 1609 a common fund was instituted by the corporations, intended to afford pecuniary relief to members contributing to it, if they should happen to be reduced to indigence. The Society of Advocates was erected into a corporate body in 1774, and had their privileges confirmed in more ample terms in 1799. A library, principally on law subjects, was established in 1786: it contains about four thousand volumes; the books are kept in an apartment in the new court-house; the number of members belonging to this institution considerably exceeds one hundred. A new hall, for the use of this society, is in Union-street. Among several clubs formed in this city, the 'Union Club' and the 'Aberdeen Reading Club' are the principal, members are elected to the latter by ballot, and an annual subscription of a guinea and a half. There is the Athenæum in Union-buildings, and there are several well stored circulating libraries. The Mechanics' Institute, in Market street, was erected in 1846: it is in the Italian style of architecture, and contains a library of four thousand volumes, and reading and news rooms, &c. The various institutions of a charitable, social, educational, and humane character, are numerous and well supported. A list of all such will be seen under the head 'Public Buildings,' &c.; whilst those most prominent, or otherwise remarkable, have been, or will be, more particularly described. Four newspapers issue weekly from the Aberdeen press—their titles and other particulars are given in their place; they are all conducted with great talent, and have a most respectable circulation. The first almanack ever printed in Scotland was published in Aberdeen in 1677, by a printer named John Forbes; it was entitled 'A New Prognosticator, calculated for North Britain.' He sold fifty thousand copies annually, and the price of each was only a plack, or the third part of a penny sterling. His success induced the publication of pirated editions at Edinburgh, which were very properly put down by the court of session, and for many years the town enjoyed a complete monopoly in the sale of almanacks; and to this day the common penny almanacks printed at Edinburgh and other places retain the title of 'Aberdeen Almanacks.'

Places of Worship.—East and West Churches.—These form one building, and occupy the site of the ancient parish church of St. Nicholas, which was probably first built about the middle of the twelfth century. The original church was progressively built at various periods, and the only part of the fabric now remaining is the transept, with the superincumbent belfry and steeple.—The present West Church occupies the site of the ancient nave, and was erected about a century ago, from a design by the celebrated architect Gibbs, a native of Aberdeen. It is in the Italian style, and accommodates about 1,700 persons. There are several monuments in it worthy of attention, particularly one to the memory of Mrs. Allardyce, of Dunnottar, which is a splendid specimen of the talents of Bacon.—The old East Church, founded in 1477, which it was deemed necessary to take down, stood on the site of the original chancel of the church. The new church, from a design by the late Mr. Archibald Simpson, is built of granite, on the foundations of the old one, and is a beautifully chaste specimen of the simple Gothic style. It is calculated to accommodate 1,700 persons, and is so constructed that the pulpit is visible from every sitting. The roof of the interior is lofty, and adorned with the appropriate ornaments of the antique Gothic hall. The building combines, in an eminent degree, convenience of arrangement with simple elegance of design.—The South Church is situate in Belmont-street, and is calculated to accommodate 1,600 persons. It is in the Gothic style, and is distinguished by a handsome and lofty tower, which forms a striking object in the approach from the south.—The North Church, placed in King-street, is a handsome building, in the Grecian order, executed in finely dressed granite: it will sit a congregation of 1,200.—Old Machar Church, at the north extremity of Old Aberdeen, in the parish of Old Machar, consists of the nave of a cathedral founded by Bishop Alexander Kyninmunde II, about the middle of the fourteenth century. The ceiling is of the finest oak, of excellent and curious workmanship, and may vie with anything of the kind in Scotland. It consists of three compartments of square panels, joining at the opposite angular points. On these panels are painted the arms and titles of the princes, nobles, and prelates who contributed towards the expense of the building. Along the top of the walls, on the south side, are inscribed the names of the successive sovereigns from Malcolm II. to Queen Mary. On the north side are the names of the several bishops, from Nectanus to William Gordon—the last Roman Catholic prelate. All these inscriptions, as well as those on the roof, are painted in the old black Saxon character. This church, within these few years, has been renovated in a very tasteful style.—Saint Clement's Church or Foot Dee Church, has a tower forty-five feet high, with a clock presented by the magistrates,—Greyfriars, or College Church, which stands on the east of Broad street, near Marischal College, is said to have been erected by Bishop Dunbar, for the Grey friars, about the beginning of the sixteenth century, and is now the only church in town where the Roman Catholic worship was performed previously to the Reformation.—Saint Paul's Chapel was erected in 1721, for the accommodation of such of the Episcopalians as refused to submit to the jurisdiction of the Scottish bishops. It contains sittings for 1,000 persons.—Saint Andrew's, or Scotch Episcopalian Chapel, is an elegant edifice, built in 1813; in it is performed the service of the Church of England. It occupies the centre of the east side of King street; the gable or end fronts the street, presenting a centre and side aisles, the corners of which are ornamented with lofty octagonal turrets, those on each side of the entrance being upwards of eighty feet in height. The turrets are finished with panelling and richly crocketed pinnacles. The entrance gate is embellished with clustered columns and crocketed mouldings, and the windows are finished with tracery in a corresponding style. The interior presents a simple style of Gothic architecture, corresponding with the entrance front. At the west end is a large and fine-toned organ, underneath which is a handsome monument to the memory of the late Bishop Skinner.—Saint John's Chapel, for Scotch Episcopalians, has a small spire on the north end, and will contain about 500 persons; the interior has undergone much alteration and repair.—Saint Peter's, the Roman Catholic Chapel, built by the present incumbent, the Rev. Charles Gordon, in 1803, is situate at the north-east end of Castle street, at the bottom of a court. The interior is handsomely fitted up, and has accommodation for 800 persons; it has the advantage of an excellent organ, and an exceedingly well-trained choir. There is, in connection with the chapel, a very handsome school-house in Constitution-street, erected in 1832, in which are educated Catholic children belonging to the congregation.—A new Catholic Church was consecrated on the 16th of March, 1859; the ceremony, which was solemn and very imposing, manifested great public interest, it being the first of the kind witnessed in the north of Scotland for more than three hundred years. Longitudinally the church is almost east and west, with a nave, north and south aisles, north and porches, and a tower, with a spire, at the west corner, one hundred and seventy feet high. The nave is divided from the aisles by lofty arcades of polished freestone, seven bays on each side. The sanctuary, situated at the east end, forms a continuation of the nave. On each side of the sanctuary are vestries; and in advance of the high altar, which is raised seven steps, are two side altars under lofty arched recesses, formed in the east end of the aisles. Internally the dimensions of the church are—one hundred and fifty feet in length, sixty-nine feet wide, and sixty-nine feet high from the floor to the apex of the roof: it will comfortably seat 1,500 persons. The principal entrance is from Huntly-street, and above this entrance is the large west window, which is thirty feet high by fifteen in width, with tracery and sculptured figures in the centre. On the north side is the priest's house, and on the south a convent, the schools running backward from the convent along the wall of the south aisle—all having access by a doorway to the church, the whole of which (the arcade excepted) is built of Aberdeen granite. The cost of erection was £12,000., the architect being Alexander Ellis, Esq.—In addition to these places of worship, there are others belonging to various denominations, for the names and situations of which we must refer our readers to the list given at a subsequent page, where will be found also the name of the officiating minister.

UNIVERSITIES, COLLEGES, SCHOOLS, &c. — The universities of Aberdeen are very ancient seminaries of learning, particularly the King's College, in Old Aberdeen, and Marischal College, situate in Broad-street. The former was first instituted in the year 1494, by a bull of Pope Alexander VI, dated at Rome, February 10. The original foundation charter is still extant in the charter chest of the college. The library, to which all the students have free access, is a very valuable collection of books; the museum, also for their use, is furnished with an extensive assemblage of Greek and Roman coins, specimens in mineralogy and zoology, fine engravings, and a good assortment of most things interesting in natural history. The students wear a scarlet cloth gown, with hanging sleeves, but do not reside within the college. The building forms a quadrangular court; the east end is a plain structure, containing the public hall, and class-rooms underneath; the north-east corner is a lofty building of six storeys. On the north side are the public school and library hall. On the south-west corner is a lofty square tower, strengthened by buttresses, and covered with a flat roof, having on the top a parapet, over which springs from each of its corners a slip of stone-work highly ornamented. These slips meet at the top, and form four open arches, in imitation of an imperial crown. On the top of this is a stone lantern, surmounted by another imperial crown of stone-work, with a globe and cross. The tower formerly contained a peal of thirteen bells. The south side of the court consists of a plain building, one hundred and twelve feet long, with a piazza underneath; there was anciently a round tower at each end, but one only now remains. The common hall is ornamented with portraits of Bishops Elphiston, Dunbar, &c. The erection of these buildings commenced about the year 1500.

The Marischal College and University is situated in Broad-street, and was founded and endowed by George Earl Marischal of Scotland, by charter dated the 2nd day of April, 1583. This college has no public connexion with the King's College at Old Aberdeen, but the students wear the same sort of gown, with the difference of a red velvet collar. Some years since the old college, which was inconvenient, was taken down, and a grant obtained from government for the erection of a new one immediately adjoining. The foundation stone was laid in 1837, and the building finished in 1841; at a cost of £21,240. Of this sum government granted £15,000, and the balance was raised by public subscription. The new college is a spacious elegant, and convenient building, in the Gothic style, from a design by the late Mr. Archibald Simpson, architect. It forms three sides of a square of one hundred feet. From the centre of the middle compartment springs a lofty tower, surmounted by an observatory; the public hall and museum extending the whole length of one of the sides—the approach to them is by a noble staircase of polished granite. The philosophical apparatus belonging to this college is perhaps the finest and most extensive in the kingdom. The museum contains many curious specimens in natural history and antiquities, and an extensive collection of antique coins. The library, which numbers about fourteen thousand volumes, contains some beautifully illuminated manuscripts. Strong efforts were for a long time made to amalgamate this college with that of King's, but was strenuously opposed by the latter on the grounds of ineligibility. The professors of King's College alleged that Marischal College was not an university, but merely a school, whose right to confer degrees was constituted merely from long practice, and therefore could not meet them on equal terms. Notwithstanding this opposition, a charter of union has recently been obtained.

The Grammar School, at School-hill, is a neat modern building, forming three sides of a square, with a belfry in the centre. It contains a public hall and four teaching rooms on one floor. The building stands on part of the ground which formerly belonged to the Dominican friars. This institution is of very ancient origin, and has produced many eminent scholars.—The Free Church Divinity Hall is a beautiful building in the Elizabethan style of architecture, erected in 1850, at a cost of £2,000. In this hall the Aberdeen Presbytery of the Free Church hold their stated meetings.—Robert Gordon's Hospital, School-hill, is a spacious building, standing on the ground anciently possessed by the Dominican friars, and having an extensive piece of ground in front. It consists of a centre or main building, and two wings. The original structure occupies the greater part of the centre, and is three storeys in height, having a small but neat spire rising from it. The hall, on the second floor, is thirty feet by twenty feet feet wide, and twelve high. This building was erected in 1739, after a design by Gibbs, at an expense of £3,300. The remaining part of the centre and the wings are new, and were completed in 1832, from a design by the late John Smith, Esq., architect, at an expense of about £13,000. The new erection is in the Grecian style of architecture, presenting a chaste and elegant appearance. The more ancient part has been altered to correspond, and a colonnade now traverses the building from the old house to the projecting fronts at the ends of the wings. The ground in front, which is tastefully laid out, much improves the appearance of the edifice. There are generally one hundred and fifty boys in the institution, but there is accommodation for one hundred more. The sum originally bequeathed was £10,000.: this was invested in land of constantly increasing value, so that at the present time the annual revenue is about £4 000. The object of the charity is to maintain and educate the sons and grandsons of decayed burgesses; they are admitted between the ages of eight and eleven, and remain until they are fifteen

A Trades' Hospital was founded in 1632 by Dr. Gould, one of the town's ministers, afterwards Principal of King's College, and in the year 1633 the same gentleman granted to the members of the town's corporations the monastery and other property, which had formerly belonged to the monks of the Holy Trinity, for the benefit of their indigent brethren; the town council also gave 1,000 merks, and the different corporations made liberal contributions. The new buildings were designed by the late John Smith, Esq. city architect, and erected in 1846-7, the old building, with the ground, &c. having been sold to the Aberdeen Railway Company in 1845.—The Royal Infirmary, which is situated on the Woolman-hill, is a modern erection, and consists of a central compartment and projecting wings, the length in front being about one hundred and fifty feet, and the breadth one hundred and twelve. The building rises to the height of three lofty storeys, the lowest containing the requisite offices for the establishment, and the other floors wards and private apartments. There is accommodation for three hundred patients. One of the wings is so contrived that it may be used as a separate fever hospital. In the centre of the upper part of the front is a spacious operation room, lighted from above through a dome of thirty feet in diameter. The whole is designed in a simple style of Grecian architecture, and executed in dressed granite. From the elegance of the design and the beauty of the materials, as well as the situation of the building, it forms an ornamental feature of the city from various points of view, and is allowed to be a highly creditable proof of the skill of the architect, the late A. Simpson, Esq., to whose talents the city is indebted for some of its most tasteful public buildings and private mansions.—The Lunatic Asylum consists of two buildings, one of which was raised in 1800, the other in 1819. The insufficiency of the old building for the purposes of the institution rendering the erection of a more spacious and commodious one necessary, an adjoining field of three acres was purchased, and an elegant edifice erected according to a plan given by the architect of the Infirmary—the late Archibald Simpson, Esq. Since that period it has received additions, under the superintendance of William Ramage, Esq., architect.—The Asylum for the Blind, situated in Huntly-street, was endowed by Miss Cruickshank, and opened in 1843; there is accommodation for forty inmates. The funds of this charity have lately received an important accession, from the bequest of the late Miss Janet Walker, of Kirkhill. Several trades are taught, as the making of baskets, mats, rope, twine, and weaving, &c.—The Institution for the Education of the Deaf and Dumb is in Belmont-street, and is principally supported by voluntary contributions. The average number of pupils of both sexes is thirty.—The Poor's Hospital, for boys, is in Upper Kirkgate; that for the girls in the Gallowgate.—The Medical Society's Hall, King-street, has a handsome front, with a portico of four Ionic columns. It contains a library and museum, a large room for the meetings of the society, committee-room, &c. It was built in 1818, at a cost of £2,000., from the plan of the architect of the Infirmary. In the hall are some portraits; among the rest, an original painting of Harvey, by Vandyke; there are also two by T. Giles, Esq. R.A. which are both favourable specimens of the skill of this distinguished native artist.

The weekly market is held on Friday; and the annual fairs are Paschal market, on the last Wednesday in April, and a fair the last Wednesday in August. At Old Aberdeen, fairs on the last Thursday in April, and on the Wednesday after the third Tuesday in October (old style).

Old Aberdeen stands about a mile to the north of the city, on an eminence on the south bank of the river Don, in the parish of Old Machar, of which it is the capital. Formerly this town was the seat of the Bishop of Aberdeen, but it now derives its only importance from King's College and the Cathedral. Its charter was renewed by George I., when a power was conferred of electing its own magistrates, which are now provost, three baillies, a treasurer, and council, with the deacons of six incorporated trades. The principal curiosity in the neighbourhood is the old bridge, which crosses the river Don by one Gothic pointed arch—the only structure of the kind in Scotland, if not in the United Kingdom. Mr. Kennedy, in his 'Annals of Aberdeen,' states it to have been erected by Robert Bruce. The parish of Old Machar lies in the peninsula betwixt the Dee and the Don, where they join the ocean; its length is about seven or eight miles, and its greatest breadth four. The land rises in a gentle slope from the sea, and is beautifully diversified by undulating grounds. The windings of the Dee and Don—the manufactories and the woods on the banks of the latter, interspersed with many gentlemen's seats and villas, together with the numerous admirable prospects of the sea—impart a pleasing variety to the general appearance of the parish. Great improvements in agriculture, at a very considerable expense, have been effected, which have been the means materially to enhance the value of the land, and beautify the neighbourhood of Aberdeen.

ALFORD,

GLENBUCKET, STRATHDON, KEIG, KILDRUMMY, MIDMARR, TOUGH, TOWIE, AND TULLYNESSLE WITH FORBES.

ALFORD is a village and parish—the former the seat of a presbytery, is 27 miles from Aberdeen, and 18 from Huntly, and it is the terminus of the newly opened Alford Valley line, a branch of the Great North of Scotland Railway. The parish, which is seven miles in length and about three in breadth, contains several cairns, two of which are of great extent. Fairs are held on the first Mondays in January, February, March, April and May, the second Friday in June, and the first Mondays in November and December (new style) and the second Friday in September (old style).

KEIG, a small parish intersected by the Don, is nearly of a circular form, and between three and four miles in diameter. Castle Forbes, the seat of Lord Forbes, is in this parish, surrounded by thriving plantations, besides a natural wood of considerable extent. The seat commands a fine view of the windings of the river Don for many miles. The parish is about twenty-five miles from Aberdeen.

GLENBUCKET is a small Highland parish in the district of Marr, 29 miles from Huntly, situated on both sides the Bucket, a tributary stream to the Don, and extending four miles in length by about one in breadth. The ruins of Badenyon House, alluded to in the popular Scotch song of Jonn of Badenyon, are in this parish.

STRATHDON parish lies between those of Glenbucket and Kildrummy. The land in this district is for the most part fertile, and tolerably well cultivated, although its surface is irregular.

KILDRUMMY parish lies in a valley, distant 35 miles from Aberdeen and 16 from Huntly. The castle of Kildrummy, which anciently belonged to David, Earl of Huntingdon and Garioch, was a seat of King Robert Bruce, and served as a place of retreat to his queen in the winter of 1306; it is a ruin of great antiquity, and appears to have been strongly fortified, having subterraneous passages and concealments. It was distinguished by its seven towers, one of which, from the whiteness of its stones, was called the Snow Tower: these ruins cover an acre of ground. Fairs are held on the first Tuesday in February, the first Tuesday in May, on the Friday next after the third Tuesday in July, and the Thursday after the second Tuesday in August.

MIDMARR parish, 15 miles from Aberdeen, is about four miles and a half in length and four in breadth. The Vale of Corrichie, near the southern boundary, is well known as the scene of a battle, fought during the reign of Queen Mary, when the contending parties were headed by the Marquis of Huntly and the Earl of Murray. The principal eminence in this part is the Hill of Fare, which rises nearly eighteen hundred feet above the level of the sea.

TOUGH parish is 23 miles from Huntly and 22 from Aberdeen. Several Druidical temples may be seen in this district, one of which, on the hill about two miles from the church, still retains the name of the Old Kirk of Tough.

The parish of TOWIE is 23 miles from Huntly, and is watered by the Don, which flows through it from east to west. The general appearance of the country is hilly, and the eminences are mostly covered with heath.

TULLYNESSLE and FORBES, parishes united, lie 27 miles from Aberdeen and 18 from Huntly, on the north bank of the Don. The appearance of the country is hilly, or rather mountainous, and the soil not the most fertile; some of the hills are of considerable altitude, and game is abundant.

POST OFFICE, ALFORD, William Hay, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive at eleven minutes before ten in the morning, and are despatched at five minutes before ten in the morning.

Money Orders are granted and paid here.

POST OFFICE, TULLYNESSLE, Andrew Wilson, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive every forenoon at four minutes past ten, and are despatched at twenty minutes before ten in the morning.

POST OFFICE, TOUGH, William Mitchell, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive every morning at half-past nine, and are despatched at ten minutes past ten in the forenoon.

RAILWAY

The ALFORD VALLEY RAILWAY TERMINUS, Alford—Farquharson Minto, station master

AUCHTERLESS, FORGUE, MONTQUHITTER,

CUMINESTON, GARMOND AND INVERKEITHNY.

AUCHTERLESS, a parish situate about midway betwen Aberdeen and Banff, is about seven miles long and three broad; the soil is generally productive, and is watered by the river Ythan. The vestiges of an extensive fortified camp, the enclosed area of which is computed at one hundred and twenty acres, are well worthy the attention of the antiquary.

FORGUE is a parish nine miles in length, and its greatest breadth about six; its situation is north-west of Huntly, and it is intersected by two rivulets, the Fendraught and the Forgue. The soil in the lower parts produces good crops, but towards the south the ground is mostly covered with heath. On several of the estates much has been done in planting and improving the wastes. The celebrated Glendronach distillery is situated in this parish.

MONTQUHITTER is a parish, extending about nine miles from north to south, and six from east to west; bounded by Turriff on the west, King Edward on the north, New Deer on the east, and Fyvie on the south. The surface is uneven, and arable in the lower parts; the district was once very mossy and moorish, but has been considerably improved. The parish is watered by two small rivers; one of these discharges itself into the Ythan, and the other into the Deveron; both abound with delicious trout. CUMINESTON and GARMOND are two modern villages in this parish.

INVERKEITHNY, a parish in the south-eastern corner of Banffshire, lies on the right, or south bank of the Deveron, along which, it extends about six miles, and measures from one to four miles in breadth. Marnoch bounds it on the north, Turriff and Auchterless on the east, Forgue on the south, and Rothiemay on the west. The district is chiefly hilly and pastoral.

POST OFFICE, AUCHTERLESS, John Fraser, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive from TURRIFF every afternoon at one, and are despatched every evening at eight.

POST OFFICE, FORGUE, Alexander Stewart, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive (from HUNTLY) every evening at thirty minutes past six, and are despatched every morning at six.

POST OFFICE, CUMINESTON, John Hay, Post Master.—Letters from all parts arrive (from TURRIFF) every morning at fifty minutes past twelve, and are despatched every morning at half-past four.

CRATHIE AND BRAEMAR, WITH CASTLETOWN,

CRATHIE, or Crathy, is an extensive mountainous parish, in the heart of Marr, among the Grampian mountains, incorporating the suppressed parish of BRAEMAR; jointly they comprise a territory forty miles in length and twenty in breadth. This district is supposed to be more elevated above the level of the sea, and farther distant from the coast in every direction, than any other parochial section of Scotland. On some of the mountains snow may be found all the year round. Ben-Macduie, four thousand three hundred feet in height, is among the stupendous eminences in this quarter. Nearly the whole of this district was once covered with wood, and was called the Forest of Marr, which, with those of the Duke of Athol in Perthshire, and the Duke of Gordon in Badenoch and Glenaven, constituted the principal part of the great Caledonian forest. In Braemar a considerable portion of the wood still remains, which is well stocked with deer. Balmoral Castle, the highland residence of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, and Lochmuich a shooting-box belonging to Prince Albert, are in this parish; and many seats of the nobility and gentry embellish this interesting locality—LOCHNAGAR too, so famed for its whiskey distilleries, is likewise in Crathie parish. The principal lakes are Loch Callader and Loch Brotachan, which contain trout, salmon and eels. The great military road from Blairgowrie to Fort George passes through the whole extent. On this line is the village of CASTLETOWN, near which are the ruins of an old castle, said to have been a hunting seat of King Malcolm Canmore. The village is divided by the river Cluny—the one side of the water, called AUCHENDRYNE, belonging to the Earl of Fife, the other to Mr. Farquharson, of Invercauld. On one side of the river is the 'Fife Arms,' and on the other the 'Invercauld Arms'—both excellent inns. At a short distance from Castle-town is the castle of Braemar, once garrisoned by King William, and burnt in the contest which took place between the royal forces and the Earl of Marr; it was rebuilt in 1749, and till within the last few years was occupied by Government troops, to prevent the smuggling which was so frequent in this district. This part contains inexhaustible quarries of limestone and fine slate.

CRIMOND, LONMAY, RATHEN AND ST. FERGUS.

CRIMOND is a parish lying at an equal distance from the towns of Fraserburgh and Peterhead, upon the coast of Buchan, with a front to the German Ocean, of about three miles in breadth, which declines to a point, inland, at the distance of rather more than five miles. Rattray Head is on this coast, a very dangerous promontory. Near the east end of the lake Strathbog, is a small hill, called the Castle hill, where Comyn, Earl of Buchan, had a castle. About a hundred years ago, there was a communication between the loch of Strathbog and the sea; and a harbour at the east end, close to the castle, for small craft: in one night the mouth of the harbour was filled up by the drifting of sand, and the communication has been interrupted ever since. On this harbour formerly stood the burgh of Rattray.

The parish of LONMAY has about four miles of sea-coast, is ten miles long, and nearly four broad. The soil is various, but generally fertile; and there are two fishing villages on the estate of Mr. Gordon, of Buthlaw. A considerable branch of the Ugie passes through the parish, which abounds in limestone.

RATHEN parish is about three miles distant from Fraserburgh, about seven miles long, at a medium of two in breadth; it possesses two creeks, on each of which, is built a fishing village. There are two old castles in ruins, at Cairnbulg and Inverallochie, which seem to have been places of considerable strength. This parish is destitute of growing timber, though large masses of oak are occasionally dug up from morasses.

ST. FERGUS, a village and parish, though locally situate on the coast of Aberdeenshire, is in that part of the district of Buchan which belongs to the county of Banff. It is bounded on the east by the North Sea, and on the south by the small river Ugie, which separates it from Peterhead—the village is five miles distant from that town, and 13 from Fraserburgh. The great Field Marshall Keith was born, in 1696, at Inverugie castle, the ruins of which, in a bend of the river, still attract the notice of the traveller.

POST OFFICE, CRIMOND, William Pirie, Post Master.—Letters from all parts NORTH and SOUTH arrive (from PETERHEAD) every morning at half past eight, and are despatched every evening at half-past five.—Letters from FRASERBURGH, arrive every evening at thirty minutes past five, and are despatched thereto every morning at half-past eight.

ECHT,

DRUMOAK, KINNELLAR, BLACKBURN, NEWHILLS, PETERCULTER, AND SKENE.

ECHT, a parish 12 miles west of Aberdeen, is about five miles in length, and the same in breadth; it is a hilly district, but having a large proportion of the land under cultivation. In this parish is Dunecht House, the property of the Earl of Crawford and Balcarres, the present residence of Lord Lindsay. Fairs, the first Wednesday in January, February, and March; on the Wednesday before the last Thursday in March, the 1st of May, the Tuesday before the 26th of May, the first Wednesday in June, the third Tuesday in August, the last Tuesday in September, the Wednesday before the 22nd of November, and the first Thursday in December.

DRUMOAK parish is chiefly in Aberdeenshire, having a small portion in Kincardineshire: it is about four miles long, and about the same in breadth. The surface is hilly, a great part being fit only for sheep-pasture; while the arable land is shallow, and produces scanty crops. There is a station here on the Dee Side line. The tower of Drum is a very ancient edifice.

KINNELLAR is a small parish, on the south side of the Don, on the Inverness road, distant from Aberdeen about eight miles and a half; and comprises an irregular assemblage of hills of considerable elevation, the summits of which, are covered with small plantations of firs. The village of BLACKBURN is in this parish.

NEWHILLS parish is of an irregular hexagonal form, six miles and a half in diameter, distant from Aberdeen five miles, the river Don forming its boundary on the north-east. The general appearance of the country is hilly, and towards the west becomes mountainous. In this parish are several extensive mills, for the manufacture of paper, and one corn mill.

PETERCULTER parish is about eight miles in length, and six in breadth; the surface is rugged and uneven, with hills and valleys, rocky eminences and marshy flats, interspersed. On the banks of the Dee, and its tributary streams, however, the soil is tolerably fertile. On the summit of the hill of Oldtown, are the remains of a rectangular encampment. The Dee Side Railway Company have a station in the village. In this parish are paper mills, called the 'Culter Paper Works,' in the occupation of Messrs. Alexander Pirie & Sons, and a tweed and woollen manufactory, worked by Mr. Chadwick.

SKENE parish is about eight miles from Aberdeen, the same number of miles in length, and four at its extreme breadth. On the south is the Luchar burn, a tributary stream of the Dee, issuing from Loch Skene, a small lake; and in a north-west direction, thence, is Skene House, belonging to the Earl of Fife—an elegant country residence, surrounded by some thriving plantations, now occupied by Colonel Ewart. In this parish is an extensive spinning and carding mill, worked by Messrs. Alexander Haddon and Sons: these gentlemen have benevolently founded a very excellent school. For the churches of these several parishes, and their ministers, see places of worship.

ELLON, BELHELVIE, CRUDEN, FOVERAN, NEWBURGH, AND LOGIE BUCHAN.

ELLON parish extends about nine miles in length from north to south, and five in breadth; the surface is uneven, and there are some rising grounds, the height of which is considerable. The village of Ellon is about 16 miles N.E. of Aberdeen, pleasantly situated on the Ythan, which is crossed here by a handsome bridge. Upon the river, which is navigible for large boats, within half a mile of the village, a trade in coal and corn is carried on of some importance; and the monetary affairs of the district are facilitated by three highly respectable banking establishments—they are, branches respectively of the 'Union Banking Company;' the 'Aberdeen Town and County Bank;' and the 'North of Scotland Bank.' A small debt-court is held here four times a year, for adjudicating claims of debts, not exceeding £5. The places of worship are, Established and Free churches, and others for United Presbyterian and Episcopal congregations, There are several public schools in the parish—chiefly parochial—See list in Directory. The market is held on the 1st Monday in each month

BELHELVIE is a coast parish in the district of Formarten, eight miles from Aberdeen. The aspect of the country is very unfavourable, especially at a distance from the sea coast, where it exhibits nothing but heath and stones; towards the sea, however, there is some arable land.

CRUDEN parish lies on the east coast of Buchan district, and extends from eight to nine miles along the shore, and about seven miles inland. The soil is various; a large proportion being a deep rich clay, while the remainder is light and gravelly, with some mosses. Slaines castle, the seat of the Earl of Errol, a large edifice, on a precipice overhanging the sea, is in this parish. In the village, which is about eight miles from Peterhead, is an Episcopal chapel.

The parish of FOVERAN extends four miles in length from east to west, and about two in breadth; distant from Aberdeen ten miles, and from Belhelvie two. Its general appearance is level, but the ground rises by a gradual ascent from the sea, though not to any considerable height. The soil varies from sand to a rich loam and strong clay, the whole of which is arable. The Ythan, navigable for about three miles, forms the boundary of the north. At the mouth of the river is the small village of NEWBURGH, in which a considerable trade is carried on, in grain, lime, bones, and guano; and on the quay, there is a large bone-crushing mill. In this parish are to be seen, the ruins of several ancient castles and chapels.

LOGIE BUCHAN, a parish giving name to a district, is about four miles in length, from one and a half to two and a half in breadth; and is thirteen miles from Aberdeen, and three from Ellon. It is divided into two parts by the river Ythan, on to the right of which, stands the parish kirk. The surface of the country is tolerably level, and presents capabilities of cultivation, the soil being in general fertile. The Ythan is navigable with the tide, for small boats, to the extent of three miles up the country—which is of material advantage to the agriculturists, by supplying them with lime. At TIPPERTY, in this parish, are extensive brick and tile works, carried on by Mr. William Forbes.

POST OFFICE, ELLON, John Rae, Post Master.—Letters from ABERDEEN and the SOUTH, arrive every morning at twenty minutes past eight, and evening at thirty eight minutes past five, and are despatched every morning at ten minutes to nine, and evening at ten minutes to six.—Letters from PETERHEAD and the NORTH, arrive every morning at twenty minutes past nine, and evening at half-past five, and are despatched every morning at forty minutes past nine, and evening at fifty minutes past five.

FRASERBURGH AND NEIGHBOURHOOD.

FRASERBURGH is a respectable and flourishing sea-port town and burgh of reality, in a parish of that name, 151 miles N. E. of Edinburgh, 42 N. E. of Aberdeen, 22 E. of Banff (26 by the new road), and 18 N.W. of Peterhead; situated on the south side of Kinnaird Head, which is a bold promontory, surmounted by a lighthouse. The parish occupies the north eastern angle of land in this part of the county, and extends about three miles and a half each way, containing 7 000 acres, of which 6 914 are arable. At one time the name of the parish was Philorth, and the possessions of Lord Saltoun here retain that appellation. In the middle of the 16th century, a town was erected upon the estate of Sir Alexander Fraser, of Philorth, which, from the name of the proprietor or superior, was called Fraserburgh. The charter of erection is dated February 13. 1613, by which considerable powers are vested in the proprietor. The town is neatly built, and the streets, which are tolerably spacious, are lighted with gas by a company. Near the centre are the town-house and a cross—the latter of modern date. A sheriff's small debt court is held quarterly in the town-house. Lord Saltoun is hereditary provost, and, with a baron baillie and twelve councillors, regulate the affairs of the burgh. There is an excellent harbour, which has been much improved under powers granted by an act of parliament of 2 and 3 Victoria, cap. 65. It is managed by the magistrates, the town council, and five fenars, who are appointed commissioners for executing the act. Up 1846 the sum of £25,702. had been expended. Since that time a new harbour has been constructed, containing an area of eight acres, and affording a berthage of 2,110 feet, but making, with the former berthing, an aggregate of 5,010 feet. Up to the present time £46 292. has been expended. It is calculated that £20,000. more, judiciously laid out, would make Fraserburgh a harbour of refuge. In connexion with the harbour is a patent slip, capable of carrying vessels of 400 tons burden, and which is found to be of great utility. Contiguous to the harbour is a tolerable road for shipping, in a bay nearly three miles in length, and upwards of one in breadth, with a good anchorage ground. A herring-fishery, with excellent accommodation for curing, has been established here half a century, and is now one of the most successful stations on the east coast of Scotland. The average number of boats employed in this fishery is between two and three hundred. The principal exports are herrings and other fish, grain, potatoes, and butter; also fat cattle for the London market.

The places of worship are, a church of the Establishment, a free church, a Scotch Episcopal chapel, and one for Independents. A parochial school, one Free Church school, one belonging to the Episcopalians, and several respectable private schools are in the parish. The markets, chiefly for corn, are held on Tuesdays and Fridays; the fairs on the second Wednesday in March, the second Thursday in June, and the second Friday in September—all old style.

POST OFFICE, Frithside-street, FRASERBURGH, Charles M'Beath, Post Master.—Letters from the SOUTH arrive (from PETERHEAD), every morning at ten; from the NORTH and SOUTH (from ABERDEEN) at a quarter past twelve noon; and from the NORTH (from BANFF), at half past eight in the evening.

Letters for parts NORTH and SOUTH are despatched (to ABERDEEN) at six in the morning; for the NORTH (to BANFF), at a quarter before one in the afternoon; and for PETERHEAD, at four in the evening.

The Money Order Office is open from nine in the morning till six in the evening

FYVIE, METHLICK, AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

FYVIE is an inland parish, on the high road from Aberdeen to Banff, eight miles from Meldrum, and 26 from Aberdeen; lying on both sides the river Ythan. Fyvie Castle, the seat of Captain C. W. Gordon, stands in a delightful situation; it is among the first specimens of Gothic architecture, and has been repaired and greatly improved. The scenery around is highly pleasing, and a beautiful loch intersects the grounds. Near the church, on the banks of the river, are the ruins of a priory, founded along with the parish church, in honour of the Virgin Mary by Fergus, Earl of Buchan, in 1179, and was given to the abbey of Arbroath. The places of worship in the parish are Established and Free Churches—one each, and two Episcopal Chapels, respectively situated at the villages of WOODHEAD and MEIKLEFOLLA. At MILLBREX is a chapel of ease under the establishment.

METHLICK parish, about 22 miles from Aberdeen, is bounded by Fyvie on the west, New Deer on the north and east, and Tarves also on the east, and south; it extends seven miles in length, by upwards of three in breadth. The district is intersected, throughout its extent, from the north-west to the south-east, by the river Ythan; on the banks of which, there now appear, some thriving and decorative plantations. The village is neat and rural; close to it the river is crossed by a handsome iron bridge. There are two churches in the parish—one Free, the other under the Establishment. About two miles from the village is Haddo House, a seat of the Earl of Aberdeen. Fairs are held in the village on the first Thursday after the 11th of May, and the first Wednesday after the 18th of November.

POST OFFICE, FYVIE, Sarah Rose, Post Mistress.—Letters from ABERDEEN and the SOUTH arrive every morning at ten minutes past ten, and are despatched every morning at seven.

Letters from BANFF and the NORTH arrive every morning at ten minutes past eight, and are despatched every morning at twenty minutes past nine

POST OFFICE, METHLICK, William Stephen, Post Master.—Letters arrive from ABERDEEN every morning at twenty minutes past nine and in the evening at half-past seven, and are despatched at twenty minutes-past ten in the morning and a quarter to seven in the evening

GARIOCH,

CLUNY, CULSALMOND, DAVIOT, INSCH, KEMNAY, LESLIE, MONYMUSK, OYNE, PREMNAY, RAYNE, AND THEIR NEIGHBOURHOODS.

GARIOCH, CHAPEL OF GARIOCH or LOGIE-DURNO is a district and parish lying in the centre of the county 20 miles from Aberdeen, 18 from Huntly, and 5 from Inverury. It is eight miles in length and seven in breadth—the river Don dividing it on the south from Kemnay, the water of Urie being its northern boundary. The castle of Balquhine, now in ruins, in this parish, is famed for an echo, supposed to be the finest in Scotland. In this district was fought the battle of Harlaw, in 1411, between Alexander, Earl of Marr, and Donald, Earl of the Isles. Buchan relates that the number of nobility who fell, in this obstinately contested action, was greater than had fallen in any foreign engagement for many years before.

CLUNY parish is in the district of Kincardine-O'Neil, situated between the Dee and the Don waters, distant from Aberdeen 18 miles, and from Inverury 9. In length it is about ten miles, and in breadth from two to three. Four-fifths of this parish are under cultivation. There are three druidical temples, and several cairns of great size in this district, besides two large castles—Castle Cluny and Castle Fraser, erected in the beginning of the 15th century. The Castle of Cluny has still a double-barred iron gate, weighing thirty-two stone, with massive iron bolts. This is said to have been the birth-place of the 'Admirable Crichton.'

CULSALMOND parish is distant from Huntly 10 miles, and from Aberdeen 28. This is one of the most fertile parishes in the shire, having a flat surface, intersected with thriving plantations. Newton House is the principal residence in this parish, which extends about three miles both in breadth and length.

DAVIOT, a parish in the district of Garioch, is 19 miles N.W. from Aberdeen, and is about five miles in length by four in breadth; the surface is level, and has a south-eastern exposure. It has two druidical temples, one of which forms part of the church yard. The land is now enclosed, and very productive. The small village of Daviot contains a church of the Establishment and a school belonging to it.

INSCH is a burgh of barony in the before-mentioned district, 27 miles from Aberdeen. The parish extends five miles in length by three in breadth, and is bounded by Culsalmond on the east, Kennethmont on the west, and separated by the water of Urie from Drumblade and Forgue. The burgh and village has been much improved of late years; it is lighted with gas, supports three banking establishments and a savings' bank, and there are two churches, with schools in connexion. On the top of the hill of Dun-o-Deer are the ruins of an old castle, said to have been erected by King Gregory the Great. In the most elevated part of the hill of Foudland, within this parish, are extensive quarries of fine blue slate. Markets are held in the months of January, February, March, April, May, July, October, November, and December.

KEMNAY parish, four miles and a half in length, and three in breadth, is distant from Aberdeen 15 miles, and from Inverury 5. The House of Kemnay is delightfully situated on the banks of the Don, and surrounded with a park and pleasure-grounds, laid out with great taste.

LESLIE, a parish in the district of Garioch, comprehends a superficies of four square miles; it is watered by the small river Gadie—a stream celebrated by Arthur Johnston in his elegant Latin poems. In several places towards the south there is found a species of greenish coloured amianthus, which is easily cut, and formed by the common people into snuff-boxes and other trinkets, which have a very beautiful appearance. Several remains of druidical temples, cairns, and an ancient encampment, are pointed out. In the parish is a church of the Establishment, a Free church, and a Congregational chapel.

MONYMUSK parish is about seven miles long, and from four to five broad; and is distant from Inverury eight miles. Monymusk House, the seat of the Grant family, is an elegant building on the right bank of the Don, environed by fine plantations. The village is well built, in form of a square, with the church in the centre, and the houses being constructed of granite, the place altogether has a remarkably neat and clean aspect. A market or fair is held annually on the 29th of August.

OYNE, a parish likewise in Garioch district, is of an irregular figure, stretching about six miles in length, by from two to three in breadth; it is mostly of a fertile and cheering aspect. Aberdeen is about 25 miles distant, and Huntly 14. In this parish may be seen the ruins of an old castle, which tradition states to have belonged at one time to the family of Leith.

PREMNAY parish is 24 miles from Aberdeen, and extends four miles in length, by from one to two in breadth. It is bounded by Insch on the north, Oyne on the east, Tough and Keig on the south, and lies on the north side of the hill of Bennochie. The land is chiefly arable, and the greater part of it is enclosed.

RAYNE parish lies on the left bank of the Urie, betwixt Culsalmond on the north-west, and Daviot and the Chapel of Garioch on the south-east; it extends about four and a half miles from the Urie, by a breadth of from two to four miles. Except a small eminence, covered with heath, on the north side of the parish, the surface is flat, with a few rising spots on the banks of the Urie. The district on the whole has a pleasing appearance, and is ornamented by plantations. In the central part of the parish stands the village of RAYNE, and on the public road, along the Urie, is the little post village of OLD RAYNE, distant 24 miles N.W. from Aberdeen, and 9 from Inverury: it is in Old Rayne that the church is situated. An annual fair is held on the second Tuesday in August.

GLENMUICK, GLENGAIRN, AND TULLOCH,

WITH THE VILLAGES OF BALLATER, PANNANICH, WELLS, AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

GLENMUICK is a large parish in the district of Marr, formed by the union of the parishes of Glenmuick, Tulloch, and Glengairn. It lies about 40 miles west of Aberdeen; is about 18 miles in length, and 15 in breadth, intersected by the Dee and several of its tributary streams. The soil is shallow, and early producing good grain; the hills are of considerable elevation, and many of them covered with wood to the very summits. Specimens of lead ore have been found near the castle of Glengairn, and limestone is everywhere abundant.

In the village of Tulloch are seen, the remains of the old kirk, the walls of which, inclose the burial place of the Farquharsons' of Whitehouse. The view from this spot, looking towards the west, is much admired, and presents a series of hills rising one above another, with the lofty Lochnagar towering over all.

In this parish (Glenmuick) is the agreeable and quiet village of BALLATER, much resorted to in the summer by tourists, on account of the scenery around, which combines both the picturesque and the grand. The neighbourhood is also occasionally honoured by the presence of Royalty—Balmoral Castle being at no great distance; and His Royal Highness, Prince Albert having two shooting boxes—Birk Hall and Gairnshiels, in this vicinity. The ruins of Knock Castle is ornamental to the scenery at one point, and the country is studded with many seats of the gentry. Loch Cannor, or Kan, a lake, is in this neighbourhood; on a small island within it are the ruins of a castle, said to have been once a hunting seat of Malcolm Canmore. The lake is beautiful and romantic in its features, and skirted with birch, hazel, and other woods; speaking of this district, indeed, it may be pronounced, one of the most interesting in Aberdeenshire. The village of Ballater is small, but regularly formed—the church standing near to its centre. Several houses have been erected expressly for the reception of visitors, and additional accommodation is found in a very superior Hotel—the 'Monaltrie Arms,'—it contains every convenience that may be desired, either by families or commercial gentlemen.

The mineral wells and baths at PANNANICH are within about two miles of Ballater, on the banks of the Dee. The waters are highly serviceable in cases of scrofula and dyspepsia, and in all complaints where the blood is either deficient in quantity or vitiated in quality; they have also proved beneficial in cases of stone and gravel. The increasing demand for accommodation evinces that the wells are justly rising into public estimation. Fairs are held at Ballater on the first Tuesday in May, and the second Monday and Tuesday in September (o. s.), and on the Saturday previous to the twenty-second of November, (N. s.).

POST OFFICE, BALLATER, John Farquharson, Post Master.—Letters from the SOUTH and NORTH, arrive (from ABERDEEN) every forenoon at seven minutes before twelve, and are despatched at twenty minutes before nine in the morning.

Letters from BRAEMAR and CRATHIE arrive at twenty minutes before nine in the morning, and are despatched at twenty three minutes past twelve noon.

Money Orders granted and paid from ten in the morning until six in the evening.

HUNTLY,

WITH THE PARISHES AND VILLAGES OF CAIRNEY, GLASS, DRUMBLADE, GARTLY AND NEIGHBOURHOODS.

HUNTLY, a burgh of barony and seat of a presbytery, is a pleasing and modern town, the capital of the parish of that name; 123 miles N. of Edinburgh, 66 E. of Inverness, 38 N. of Aberdeen, 21 S.W. of Banff, and 18 S.E. of Fochabers. The parish is about ten miles in length and four in breadth, formed by the annexation of the parishes of Dunbenan and Kinnoir. Perhaps there is no part of the county, in which agriculture has acheived more success than in this parish. A few years ago, the general surface was anything but productive, but through systematic culture and perseverance, it has been wonderfully enriched; and now for production and quality, is inferior to none in the North of Scotland. The acreage of arable land is very considerable, and some of the eminences are clothed with fine plantations. The district is watered by the Bogie and the Deveron. St. Mungo's hill, in the district of Kinnoir, has the appearance of a volcano; and on the summit there is an opening, which is generally filled with water—though, in dry seasons, peat is obtained from it, strongly impregnated with sulphur; and pieces of lava, it is said, have been found round it. Limestone, some of which approaches to the nature of marble and takes a very high polish, is obtained in the parish The town, which is well lighted with gas by a joint-stock company, is in a dry and salubrious situation, on the point of land formed by the confluence of the Bogie with the Deveron, the stream of each being crossed by a handsome bridge; it is neatly built, having two principal streets, crossing each other at right angles and forming a spacious square for the market-place. The Duke of Richmond who is superior, appoints a baron baillie. Justice courts are held as occasion require and a sheriffs' small debts court quarterly—the jurisdiction of the latter extends over twelve parishes. Huntly is a station on the Great North of Scotland Railway—a constant supply of manures, coals, &c. and facility for the transmission of agricultural produce, are amongst the advantages, which this line affords the town and neighbourhood. This town was once famed for the weaving of fine linen, introduced by an Irish manufacturer, in the year 1768; and the quantity annually manufactured used to amount to £30,000 or £40,000.; but during and since the time of the continental war, this branch of industry has gradually decreased. It is now a place of no particular manufacture and the trade is merely local and domestic.

There are, besides the parish and Free churches, several other places of worship in Huntly and its vicinage—these include temples for the worship of various religious denominations—of which a list with their officiating ministers is appended: among them is a handsome Roman Catholic chapel. Several public and charitable educational establishments are well sustained and conducted with ability. The Gordon schools opened in 1841, were founded by her Grace of that title, in 1839, and are situated near to the Lodge, the residence of the lady. The school premises, which are handsome and fitted in every convenient way for their purpose, comprise four departments—namely, the Parochial school, the school of the Free Church, the Industrial school, and one for infants; the teachers of the two latter classes have residences in the establishment; and the pupils of the industrial school have a dinner provided for them, daily. A home for the aged, founded and endowed by the late Alexander Scott, Esq. of Craibstone House, affords an asylum for the aged destitute of both sexes. The market is held on Thursday and the fairs, January 2nd and 29th, February 20th, March 11th, April 8th, May 7th, June 10th and 25th, July 16th, August 20th, September 21st, October 16th, November 18th and December 16th; these are all for cattle and horses. A sheep fair is likewise held on the 14th of August; and there are four feeing markets for hiring servants, which are observed, May the 21st and 26th, and November the 20th and 22nd.

CAIRNEY is a tolerably extensive parish, contiguous to that of Huntly, lying chiefly in the county of Banff. The land for the most part is mountainous, but much of it is notwithstanding, in a high state of cultivation, and bears prolific crops.

The parish of GLASS is likewise adjacent to that of Huntly on the west, and is also in both counties, lying on either side of the Deveron river.

DRUMBLADE parish extends from five to six miles in length and from four to five in breadth. There are three tumuli, near one of which are the remains of an encampment of King Robert Bruce, after he had defeated Comyn, Earl of Buchan, near the burgh of Inverury. The soil is generally fertile and the surface greatly diversified.

The parish of GARTLY, partly in Aberdeenshire and partly in Banffshire, is of an irregular oval figure, extending about twelve miles in length, by six in breadth. The Duke of Richmond is sole proprietor of this extensive tract. An excellent quarry of blue slate is in the parish and the hills afford peat in abundance. Improvements in agriculture have been actively progressing for some years past.

POST OFFICE, Nelson st, HUNTLY, James Lawson, Post Master—Letters arrive from parts NORTH at ten minutes to ten in the morning, from parts SOUTH at ten morning and at three in the afternoon and are despatched to the SOUTH at twenty-five minutes past nine morning, to parts NORTH at ten morning and three in the afternoon.

Money Order Office open from half-past nine in the morning till six in the evening.
